BRITISH NAVAL PAY REDUCTION FIGHT SPREADS

Sailors of Mediterranean Fleet Await Results of Protests.

SHIPS IN ATLANTIC ARE ORDERED HOME

Crews Cheer King as Board Plans to Propose Wage Readjustments.

Gibraltar, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Great Britain's Mediterranean fleet is quietly awaiting the results of the Atlantic fleet's protests against wage reductions, it was learned tonight. Sailors refused to make a statement.

London, Thursday, Sept. 17 (A.P.). The London Daily Mail this morning prints a dispatch from Malta saying there has been some discontent among the members of the British air force there over the pay reductions, but no actual trouble has developed.

A dispatch to the London Daily Herald, printed in its morning editions, describes how "the proudest vessels of the navy lay idle and helpless while 12,000 sailors refused to obey orders." The correspondent said he watched from the shore while the leaders addressed the men from gun turrets as cheers and shouts echoed from the mountains around Cromarty Firth.

The officers stood helplessly by, he said, but the strike was carried on in an orderly fashion. The men, he said, were in control of the ships and, although they refused to obey orders, they undertook to keep the ships in good order. Officers, he said, had to "make a pretense" of keeping watches.

The officers tried to raise the anchors themselves, and the pickets did not try to stop them, but merely warned that as soon as they raised one anchor the men would drop the other. Stokers, meanwhile, checked the fires in boilers.

The shore leave of the men was stopped by their own leaders and none except mail and water boats were permitted to leave the sides of the ships.

Sail for Home Ports.

Invergordon, Scotland, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—The battleships of the British Atlantic fleet, their regular maneuvers suspended by the admiralty because of unrest among the sailors over economy pay cuts, sailed for their home ports shortly before midnight tonight on orders from London.

A large crowd watched the departure of the battleships which was effected as quietly as if they were leaving for ordinary maneuvers.

There was some delay until assurance was given that home ports actually were the destinations in every case and that there was no possibility of the ships being redirected to distant stations after putting out to sea.

The passive resistance of the sailors to orders apparently was ended when the ships' companies learned of the decision of the admiralty to consider cases of hardship arising from pay cuts without delay.

Off for Inverness.

The battle cruiser Repulse and the battleship Valiant sailed for Inverness.

The battleships Warspite and Nelson and the cruiser Hood were ordered to Portsmouth and the battleships Rodney and Malaya, with the cruisers Exeter, Dorsetshire, Norfolk and Adventure, were ordered to Plymouth. The cruiser York was ordered to Catham.

London, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Demonstrations by seamen of the Atlantic fleet against pay cuts—demonstrations which have shocked Britons to whom naval tradition is a sacred thing—today set in motion government machinery to alleviate hardships that may result from the new economy policy.

Man Is Hurt, One Held In Left-Turn Accident

An elderly man was injured and a taxicab driver arrested late yesterday as the result of Washington's first serious accident attributed to the new left-hand turn. The victim was Samuel Sanford, 72, who is in Gallinger Hospital, and the driver was Milton Collins, 41, 1238 New Hampshire avenue, who is charged with reckless driving.

Collins was turning left into Pennsylvania avenue from Seventh street when he struck Sanford, according to police. Although he suffered only lacerations to the arm and shock, the elderly man was transferred to Gallinger Hospital from Emergency after receiving first aid since his years may aggravate his injuries. He lives at 313 Linworth place southwest.

Sharp Earthquake Rocks Tokyo Area

Vertical Shock Causes Alarm in Vicinity; New Zealand Hit.

Tokyo, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—A sharp earthquake shook Tokyo and vicinity at 9:45 o'clock tonight (7:45 a. m., Eastern standard time) today.

As far as could be learned there was on damage.

Shizuoka, across Suruga Bay to the west of Numazu also felt vertical heavings. These excited the inhabitants because they are more rare than the horizontal movements in this region often visited by earthquakes. No damage was done, however.

Industry Head Offers New Deal for Worker

Cooperative Program Is Proposed by Swope to Manufacturers.

New York, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—A cooperative management-employe plan he said would help eliminate unemployment, stabilize business, and remove the worker's fear of idleness, illness and old age was offered industry tonight by Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric Co.

Addressing the National Manufacturers Association, Mr. Swope warned industry it must act to forestall legislation which he said threatens the fundamental structure of American business and society.

Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of General Electric, who frequently has been mentioned as a possible presidential candidate, also spoke at the meeting and praised Mr. Swope for his courage in advancing the plan.

"The plan is not free from criticism," he added. "* * * There are grave questions both of public and business policy lying at its very foundation.

"Its significance, however, does not lie in possible criticism of the plan, but in the fact that a responsible industrial manager * * * is ready to put to the public an offer to assume voluntary responsibilities of vast consequence, not only in the economic, but in the social field."

"Industry exists basically for serving the needs of the people," Mr.

Lindberghs Continue Flight Toward Nanking

Osaka, Japan (Thursday), Sept. 17 (U.P.).—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh continued their air trip from Tokio to Nanking today. They left here at 12:57 p. m. (7:57 p. m. Wednesday P. S. T.) for Fukuoka on the west coast of Kyushu Island. The American fliers planned to follow the inland sea to reach there.

Col. Lindbergh and his wife arrived here from Tokio last Sunday. They have rested and visited places of interest in this vicinity.

COLLINGS HELD DEAD BEFORE BEING BOUND

Autopsy on Body Discloses Pirate Victim Was Probably Slain on Yacht.

New York, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—An autopsy on the battered body of Benjamin Collings, washed ashore on a Long Island beach, tonight furnished authorities with a theory that the Stamford, Conn., yachtsman was dead of a series of terrific blows—and not alive as his wife's story indicated—when he was bound and thrown into the water.

District Attorney Alexander Blue of Suffolk County said the examination of the body had convinced him that Collings was beaten to death aboard his cruiser, the Penguin.

"He was unconscious when a rope was tied about his hands and ankles," said Blue. "There was no slack in the rope whatever as there would have been—must have been—had he struggled ever so little while being tied. The killers fastened their rope to a limp body."

Mrs. Collings, in relating a story of two "pirates" who invaded their boat last Wednesday midnight, bound her husband and threw him overboard, has told of hearing her husband say "They are tying me up" and also "They are putting me overboard."

Asked if it were possible Collings might have been asleep when he was beaten to death, Blue said:

"It seems to me that if he was awake he might have dodged the heavy blow that evidently struck him full in the forehead, inflicted a fracture 8 inches long and probably caused death.

"Dr. Otto H. Schultze, who performed part of the autopsy tonight, found eight cracks in Collings' skull, two of them in front. He found many bruises on the arms and legs."

Blue was asked whether Mrs. Collings would be called tomorrow at a continuation of an inquest to repeat her story of being kidnaped by

Queen Marie May Get Radium Treatments

Bucharest, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Physicians in attendance upon Dowager Queen Marie, who has been ill for some time, held a consultation today to determine whether to try radium treatments or to proceed with an operation. The queen is reported to have gathered some strength at Castle Bran, where she is staying.

BRUTALITY QUIZ MAY BE PUSHED TO NEW LIMITS

Grand Jury Will Be Given Every Opportunity to Widen It, Rover Says.

HEAVY GRIST OF WORK DONE BY INQUISITORS

80 Witnesses Remain to Be Heard in Nearly 50 New Police Cases.

The District grand jury will be given every opportunity to extend the scope of its investigation of third degree practices by Washington police beyond the mere return of indictments in instances appearing to require action in the criminal courts.

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover said yesterday afternoon, after the jury had completed a heavy day's work with new cases of alleged police brutality presented by the Department of Justice, that should the jurors decide to go beyond investigation of the cases now before it and make a special report on the situation, it would be at liberty to summons any witnesses it desired.

The recent attack from several quarters on the jury's special report in the Orville Staples case will merely make the grand jury more determined to carry out its third degree inquiry to the limit and in the end to present another special report and recommendations, some observers believe.

Temper Tried by Critics.

It is known that the temper of this particular jury has been tried by the attack on its special report and indications are that the jury will reply indirectly to its critics with a new report.

The jury moved rather slowly yesterday in its investigation of the nearly 50 cases of alleged police brutality ready for presentation by Mr. Rover and the Department of Justice.

When it adjourned at 4:35 p. m. it had heard witnesses in only about six of the new cases. Approximately 35 witnesses of the more than 100 under subpena were questioned yesterday.

This apparent deliberation was explained by officials in charge of the probe on the ground that the investigating body was moving only in cases where indictments could be reasonably expected. It was thought by some that every case where persons had appeared to complain that they had been beaten would be presented in order to save the face of the Police Department as much as possible, but this was denied by those in charge of the grand jury's activities.

Every case to go before the jury has

Eruption of Mount Etna Is Growing More Violent

Messina, Sicily, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Activity of Mount Etna, which went into eruption today, had become more serious this afternoon when the lava level reached an old eruption conduit and began flowing, accompanied by earthquake shocks.

The shocks caused the wall of a church to fall, killing two children and wounding two others. The eruption was not thought to be dangerous, however, because the villages in the way of the lava flow which were destroyed in the eruption of 1928 have not been rebuilt.

AMERICA PAVES WAY FOR NAVAL HOLIDAY PACT

State Department Busy With Study of World Sea Armaments.

EUROPE IS EXPECTED TO TAKE INITIATIVE

U. S., However, May Propose 'Truce' Itself; Bids on 10 Destroyers Opened.

The State Department has been engaged for some time in a study of the international naval situation, with the idea of being ready and helpful if the other major nations should agree to take up the question of a holiday in naval construction. This country is most sympathetic toward the holiday proposal.

The American Government feels that there are three good reasons for a suspension in naval construction:

First, it will create a more friendly atmosphere for the big disarmament conference to be held in Geneva next February.

Second, it ought to encourage a settlement of the many perplexing political problems in Europe that now stand in the way of disarmament.

Third, it would mean a welcome reduction in the budgets of all the nations involved.

U. S. Awaits Europe's Action.

At present, the United States is waiting for Europe to take the initiative in the movement for a naval holiday. It would rather that it got under way in that quarter. If, however, Europe should fail to take the initiative, it is entirely possible that the American Government will come out with a definite holiday proposal.

In that case, the naval holiday plan, if it should be adopted, would become a companion to the Hoover debt moratorium plan. As a matter of fact, it would be a companion, regardless of who sponsored it, for President Hoover has consistently linked the burden of armaments with the depressed economic situation throughout the world.

Thus far, two suggestions have been heard for a truce in naval construction. The Italian Foreign Minister, Dino Grandi, urged one in a recent speech before the League of Nations Assembly. A few days ago, Senator William E. Borah (Republican) of Idaho, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, suggested a definite 5-year suspension.

Bids on Cruisers Opened.

Neither of the two went into any detail about the proposed holiday. It is assumed, however, that ships under

Mrs. Sinclair explained that physicians said complete relaxation was necessary and it was believed he would better obey in the hospital instructions to do no writing or work of any kind.

TOKYO TO U. S. FLIERS, FOUND BY SOVIET SHIP ON UNINHABITED ISLE

Allen and Moyle Picked Up by Vessel After More Than Week.

LACK OF GAS AND OIL BLAMED FOR LANDING

Wreckage of Cramer Plane Located in North Sea by Passing Boat.

C. A. Allen (top) and Don Moyle, and map showing course of their flight and rescue spot. They hopped from north of Tokyo and were put ashore at Miano, Island of Tilgino, shown by cross, just west of Cape Navarin, Siberia.

Bremerton, Wash., Sept. 16 (A.P.). The Naval radio station received a message relayed from the Russian steamship Buriat, saying Don Moyle and C. A. Allen, transpacific fliers, reported today after they were missing for more than a week, were set ashore at the village of Miano on the Island of Tilgino, in latitude 62 north and longitude 180 east.

The message, which was relayed from the St Paul Island station in the Bering Sea, said the Buriat reported the fliers were forced down because of lack of gasoline and motor oil.

The St. Paul Island operator told the naval station here the message was relayed to them from the Buriat by a "local Russian operator."

The message from the steamer did not say how far the position where the fliers were put ashore was from the uninhabited island on which they landed. It was not disclosed by what means Moyle and Allen would be able to reach the outside world.

A message sent today to Miss Frances Bresson, fiancee of Moyle, said they would be in Seattle by September 22. Radio operators said they believed the message was garbled and the date should have been October 22.

Latitude 62 north and longitude 180 east is in the Bering Sea slightly southeast of the Gulf of Anadir and northwest of the Aleutian Islands. It is almost directly due north of Samushiro Beach, where the fliers took off a week ago Monday on a proposed nonstop flight for Seattle.

New York, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—A radio message flashed over the fringe of civilization today to apprise a despairing America that her supposedly lost Pacific fliers—Cecil Allen and Don Moyle—were "safe and well and on the way home."

Cramer's Plane Found.

The startling news that Moyle and Allen had been picked up from a remote and uninhabited island followed within a few hours the receipt of a terse message that a British trawler in the North Sea had found the remnants of an airship identified as the Detroit-to-Copenhagen plane of Parker Cramer and Oliver Pacquette. Meanwhile, in this crowded day of flying sensations the Atlantic Seaboard was scanned fruitlessly for the Junkers plane of three foreign airmen which was two days overdue in New York from Lisbon, Portugal.

Allen and Moyle, who dropped from sight more than a week ago, en route from Japan to Seattle, were reported aboard by the Soviet steamer Pialy Krabalobe, now in Olyutoski Gulf, North Kamchatka.

Messages, telling of the self-landing of the fliers on the island, were intercepted by the United States radio at St. Paul Island, Bering Sea, and by the United States coast cutter Itasca.

Dispatch to Fiancee.

One dispatch was from Moyle to his fiancee, Miss Frances Bresson, Riverside, Calif.

"Landed on uninhabited island," it said. "Everything all right. Have Frank put publicity man on the job. Will be in Seattle September 22."

The date was believed in error because of the apparent impossibility of the fliers reaching Seattle then.

"I am so happy at their rescue that I can hardly talk," Miss Bresson exclaimed. "I gave up hope last night. It was hard to believe Don and Cecil had lost in their effort to span the Pacific and up until last night I had some hope they would be rescued."

Mrs. Mary Allen, wife of the other flier, whose marital differences with him were reconciled on the eve of his take-off, said, "Something told me Cecil was out there somewhere in the world alive, well, and coming back to me again."

And in Maywood, a Los Angeles suburb, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Moyle, parents of Don, told how one more day remained, by agreement, before they were to give up hope. "We knew our prayers would be answered," said his mother.

Allen and Moyle were seeking a $25,000 prize offered by the Tokyo newspaper Asahi when they attempt-

WIDOW CONFESSES SHE PLOTTED DEATH

Tells Police Murdered Mate, Otto Ziegler, Planned Trip With Girl.

Hackensack, N. J., Sept. 16 (A.P.). Mrs. Olga Ziegler confessed tonight, police announced, that with George Flanard, 21, she plotted the ambush slaying last night of her husband, Otto Ziegler, 40-year-old manufacturer.

"If you don't kill him, I'll have to do it," authorities quoted her as warning Flanard, whose jealousy had been aroused, they said, by Ziegler's attentions to Flanard's former sweetheart, Ruth Hering.

Flanard, a former employe of Ziegler's, had confessed earlier, police said, that he had fired the six shots that killed the silk manufacturer near his home last night.

Both Mrs. Ziegler and Flanard were committed to jail without bail on murder charges. Special Prosecutor George P. Losche said he would present the case to the grand jury as soon as possible.

In preliminary questioning police said Mrs. Ziegler, who is 38, told them she had learned last Friday her husband planned to accompany Miss Hering, a divorcee, who also was a former employe of his, on a trip to Canada.

"I could not tolerate raising my children in such a dreadful atmosphere," police quoted Mrs. Ziegler as saying.

Flanard was said by Lieut. Allyn to have given as his motive for the slaying Ziegler's rivalry for the affections of Miss Hering, a Westwood divorcee, who was granted permanent separation from her husband, John Prudhomme, of Saugerties, N. Y., last week.

GALE-RELIEF PLANE CRASHES; THREE DIE

Ship Carrying Medical Supplies to Belize Falls in Flames in Panama.

(Associated Press.)

Three of the crew of a Navy amphibian transport plane speeding medical supplies from the Canal Zone to hurricane-swept Belize, British Honduras, died yesterday as their ship crashed in flames near David, Panama.

The fourth member of the crew received serious burns, but was expected to live.

Reporting the accident to the department, Commander A. D. Bernhard, commanding the fleet air base at Coco Solo, whence the fliers left at 6 a. m., said a duplicate store of supplies was being prepared for plane transport tomorrow unless countermanded.

The dead:

Lieut. (Junior Grade) Creighton K. Lankford, Plattsburg, Mo., pilot.

Isaac L. Jenkins, chief aviation pilot, Couch, Mo.

Arthur O. Miller, aviation machinist's mate, LaSalle, N. Y.

Roy J. Miller, radio man, third class, Erwin, S. Dak., although seriously burned, was expected to recover.

Commander Bernhard said the cause of the forced landing which was being attempted when the ship crashed was unknown. The plane was demolished.

It carried 150 dozen bandages, 50 rolls of gauze, 100 pillow cases and towels and 100 sheets. The supplies had been requested by Lieut. Comdr. T. L. Morrow, of the Medical Corps.

Mahatma Gandhi

Indian Leader a Spiritual Athlete, Who in Choice Between Cowardice and Violence Prefers Latter; Ranked Among Saviors of Mankind.

By SYUD HOSSAIN.

(Third of three articles by an intimate associate of the amazing figure, spokesman for India's teeming millions at the historic London conference.)

Nonviolence, as I have indicated, is both a principle and an instrument of Gandhi's technique, but if any Westerner held that nonviolence, in Gandhi's sense and use of the term, was anything pusillanimous he would make a grievous blunder. There is nothing namby-pamby about Gandhi. He is a spiritual athlete. His is no creed of cowardice. Gandhi has little use for one who is pacific only because panicky.

"Where there is only a choice between cowardice and violence, I would advise violence," he has said. What he holds true of individuals he applies firmly to the nation:

"I would risk violence a thousand times rather than emasculation of the race. I would rather have India resort to arms to defend her honor than that she should in a cowardly manner become or remain a helpless victim to her own dishonor, but I believe that nonviolence is infinitely superior to violence."

In 1922 the British government in India arrested Mahatma Gandhi and placed him on trial for "sedition." It was a trial that ranks in significance with, and is reminiscent in details and drama of, the historic trials of Socrates, Jesus and Savonarola.

When Gandhi the accused was brought into the crowded court, escorted by two policemen, a curious and unexpected thing happened. Everybody in the court, the members of the public and of the bar, the minor functionaries of the court, the prosecuting counsel, and last but not least the august and panoplied British judge himself, as though propelled by an unseen force, simultaneously rose to their feet in silent homage to the prisoner in the dock. (It was a memorable demonstration of the power that "soul force," which Gandhi claims is more potent than any other force.)

Gandhi had engaged no counsel for defense and had offered no alibi or extenuation for his alleged offense. Technically he was charged with promoting "disaffection" toward the government. Instead of pleading "not guilty" he pleaded "guilty." He said that as he could not possibly have feelings of affection for a government whose practices and activities toward the people he felt and believed had been "satanic" the only alternative for him was to preach and promote disaffection toward it. He could not and would not compromise with evil. While he did not shirk his duty, on the other hand, he would not evade his responsibility.

"I am here, therefore (he told the judge), to invite and cheerfully submit to the highest penalty that can be inflicted upon me for what in law is a deliberate crime and what appears to me to be the highest duty of a citizen." And he ended his statement with these memorable words: "The only course open to you, judge, is either to resign your position or to inflict on me the severest penalty."

It was really the judge, a symbol of British rule, who was on trial. It must be said, however, that he acquitted himself, having regard to all

Texas Senate Brands Long Liar as House Rejects Plan

Louisiana Governor, His "No Cotton" Move for 1932 Defeated in Sister State, Declares He is Through With Project.

Baton Rouge, La., Sept. 16 (A.P.). After having been called a "liar" by the Texas Senate, Gov. Huey P. Long tonight gave up his fight for a Southern cotton holiday.

Gov. Long, in a radio address, said he was singing his "swan song" on the Louisiana cotton holiday plan and was "through" with his fight for cotton prohibition.

He fired a parting shot at Texas and its Legislature for opposing his plan and said he would have nothing more to say.

Austin, Tex., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Shortly after the Texas House of Representatives overwhelmingly defeated a bill embodying the principles of the "no cotton" plan of Gov. Huey Long of Louisiana, the Senate tonight adopted a resolution terming the State executive a "consummate liar."

The Senate resolution continued by asserting Gov. Long's statement that members of the Texas Legislature had been bought was "a lie made out of the whole cloth."

After defeating an amendment to couch the resolution in "more decent language," the Senate adopted the declaration by a vote of 21 to 7. Supporters of the defeated amendment said Gov. Long's statements were untrue, but they thought the wording of the resolution should be changed.

The Senate action followed a purported Long statement alleging that members of the Texas Legislature "have been bought like a sack of corn to vote against the cotton prohibition plan," and that "they have paid them off like a slot machine."

Senator Walter Woodful, of Houston, said he was for the resolution because "Long is a coward and afraid to come to Texas," and "this is the only way we can reach him."

The overpowering strength of opponents of the plan for a complete 1932 cotton planting holiday was demonstrated by the House vote of 92 to 38 which killed the measure.

Sponsors of a cotton curtailment program by a second vote placed the House on record as favoring the Olsen bill, embodying a plan for one-third

Moyle's Liquor Sentence Still Stands, Judge Avers

Los Angeles Jurist Says Flier Can Not Win Immunity, and Must Serve Delayed Term; Airman's Fiance Weeps With Joy Over Safety.

Los Angeles, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Tears and jumbled words of joy intermingled with the authoritative tones of a Superior Court judge today as news of the rescue of Don Moyle and Cecil A. Allen, missing transpacific aviators, reached southern California, where Moyle's fiancee, Allen's wife and the parents of both reside.

The sober tones of Superior Court came from Judge B. Rey Schauer, who sentenced Moyle to 30 days in jail and then deferred the sentence until October to enable Moyle to attempt to span the Pacific Ocean from Japan to Seattle. Moyle and Allen were found today on an uninhabited island off northern Kamchatka.

Judge Schauer said as far as he is concerned the deferred 30 days' jail sentence imposed on Moyle still stands.

"Not even by flying the Pacific Ocean can any one purchase one iota of immunity for driving an automobile on a public highway while under the influence of liquor," the judge said in commenting on the charge to which Moyle pleaded guilty July 8.

Miss Frances Bresson's typewriter in the municipal power and water plant's office at Riverside, Calif., changed from a rapid click-click to utter silence when she was informed her fiancee, Moyle, had been rescued. For fifteen minutes she remained speechless and then broke into tears and hurried words of thankfulness.

A woman's intuition was credited by Mrs. Mary Allen, wife of the rescued aviator, as being the one supporting prop in her faith that Allen was safe.

"Something told me Cecil was out there somewhere in the world alive, well and coming back to me," Mrs. Allen said. The Allens had been estranged, but Mrs. Allen said their differences had been patched up in letters written by Allen while he was in Japan pending the take-off.

In Maywood and Exeter, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Moyle, the aviator's parents, and Mrs. Delphis Redfern, Allen's mother, lifted their hands in thankful supplication. Mrs. Redfern,

RITCHIE ADVANCES AS ROOSEVELT FOE

Speech Against U. S. Control of Public Utilities Stirs Speculation.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Albert Cabell Ritchie, four times Governor of Maryland, and a presidential aspirant since 1924, stood out yesterday as a bold challenger of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York in the battle for the Democratic nomination for President.

Either by design or as a result of possible misinterpretations, the Maryland executive was in a position where he was regarded as the pivot man in a "stop-Roosevelt" movement.

He was catapulted into this position by the speech he made Monday in Atlantic City before the utilities section of the American Bar Association, a speech in which he vigorously opposed Federal ownership of public utilities.

If his speech is analyzed closely it will be seen that his position on this question is in no way in conflict with that of Gov. Roosevelt as so far revealed. The New Yorker favors construction of power plants by the State and the sale of the electricity to private companies under contract. However, he says the contracts must be "satisfactory." If they are not, he would have the State sell the power direct to the cities and counties.

Would Not Deny Right.

Gov. Ritchie, in his Atlantic City speech, said he would "not deny the people of any State the right to protect and develop their power resources in whatever way may seem to them best adapted to that end."

Feeling thus, he could not possibly object to Gov. Roosevelt's plan for having the State sell electricity if it could not make "satisfactory" agreements with private companies. Gov. Ritchie is opposed only to the Federal Government going into the power business.

Gov. Roosevelt, so far as could be recalled here, has never advocated Federal ownership of public utilities. However, he has so consistently harped on the power question that, somehow, a headline-reading public has associated him with Senator George Norris and other apostles of Federal ownership. For that matter, he has associated himself with Norris and the other progressives who believe in Government ownership. When the Progressive Conference was held here last March the New York governor sent a message that brought cheers from all present.

Extremely Popular.

Out in Wisconsin, Nebraska and the other so-called Progressive States, Gov. Roosevelt is reported to be extremely popular and largely because of his stand on the power question.

One effect of the Ritchie speech, it is expected, will be an incessant demand that Gov. Roosevelt clarify his stand with regard to, not only of State control, but of Federal control of public utilities.

The one paragraph in Gov. Ritchie's speech which convinced observers that he was aiming at Gov. Roosevelt was that one wherein he said:

"And without meaning to question anybody's sincerity, I may be permitted to wonder whether gentlemen who discourse so extravagantly and so passionately on the subject are not really laying down a barrage or a smoke screen with which they hope to hide other issues—such, for example, as prohibition—about which they may not think it wise to speak so boldly."

Stand on Prohibition.

If it is true that former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and John J. Raskob are cool toward the candidacy of Gov. Roosevelt—and there is no reason to doubt that it is true—the principal reason is Roosevelt's pussyfooting stand on prohibition.

True, he favors repeal, and has said so. But he has been so timid about it since the presidential bee hit him, has had so little to say about it, that Smith, Raskob and the other Eastern wets are reported to be thoroughly disgusted with him.

Meanwhile, the Southern drys and the western drys have been flocking to his banner, thus heightening the impression that he is making a runaway race of it toward the nomination.

And so it is not hard to believe that when Gov. Ritchie, a rampant wet, took a crack at those who are using the power issue to hide the prohibition issue, he actually had Gov. Roosevelt in mind.

Spotlight on Self.

The question is, what will be the effect on Gov. Ritchie's own political fortunes? As has been said, the speech has catapulted him into a position where he is regarded as having squared off with Gov. Roosevelt. Also, he has succeeded in focusing the spotlight on himself, a thing his friends have been praying for. In all the world there are no more enthusiastic individuals than the "Ritchie-for-President" people in Maryland. The difficulty they have had has been to get the country as a whole to study the man, to learn of his achievements and to find out what he stands for.

Through one speech, the Maryland executive has brought this about.

The result of that speech, if political observers here are correct, is that a considerable number of conservatives in the Democratic party will rally around Ritchie. At least, they will rally around him for the time being.

To stop Gov. Roosevelt, the Eastern politicians who are opposed to him right now need only line up a little over a third of the delegates against him, the votes of two-thirds being necessary for the nomination.

One view yesterday was that the Raskob element plans to make Gov. Ritchie a reservoir for a substantial number of votes, and then switch these votes to Owen D. Young.

This view perhaps was encouraged by Gov. Ritchie himself. Twice now he has heaped lavish praise on Mr. Young—in his inaugural speech last January and again Monday.

Another view is that the votes originally assigned to Gov. Ritchie would be shifted to Newton D. Baker, while another is that the anti-Roosevelt people would try to put Ritchie over.

If these reports about Gov. Ritchie being used as a reservoir for others are uncomplimentary, it is only because hard-boiled politicians can never forget that Maryland has only eight electoral votes.

BAR LEADERS ASSAIL U. S. TRADE CURBS

Lawyers at Atlantic City Lay Blame for Ills on Laws; Session Opens Today.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 16 (A. P.).—Leaders of the American Bar today assailed Federal interference in business, urged relaxation of the antitrust laws, and otherwise plunged into a detailed examination of the economic depression.

They were preparing for the opening tomorrow of the annual convention of the Bar Association. Crime, too, was considered, one section being told the Wickersam report condemning "third degree" police methods, was a crime breeder.

Robert H. Jackson, New York lawyer, attacked present conditions in the utilities securities field, warning that the investor must be protected, perhaps by State regulation. "We have too many power securities which have little to do with power and less with security," he said.

Ross C. Butler, chairman of the commerce committee, assailed the antitrust laws, charging they ignore "economic considerations, even threatening the producer with imprisonment if he agrees to limit his production to the needs of his fellow men."

James D. Francis, of Huntington, W. Va., vice president of the Island Creek Coal Co., raised a dissenting voice in arguments against the antitrust laws. He said that coal operators were too individualistic to cooperate, and that the same spirit enervated most lines of American business.

William J. Donovan, former assistant United States Attorney General, argued that Federal regulation of public utilities was wrong because only 13.1 per cent of the total electricity is in interstate commerce. He advocated State compacts to govern this current.

Turning to crime, Col. Joseph A. Gurk, chief of the St. Louis police and president of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, said obstructionist tactics of defense attorneys in criminal trials was one of the most serious obstacles confronting the police.

The Wickersham report was assailed by Joseph O. Smith, prosecutor for Essex County, N. J., who objected to the committee's condemnation of "third degree" methods. Smith said the Wickersham report gave criminals confidence the police no longer could obtain confessions.

Poor Flying Weather Halts Airplane Raids

Night maneuvers of bombardment and attack planes from Bolling Field, to test new methods of antiaircraft defense at Fort Humphreys, Va., were called off last night because of the low ceiling and generally poor flying weather.

The series of night raids will begin tonight, continuing each night through September 25. Six attack planes commanded by Capt. Lotha A. Smith arrived at the field yesterday from Fort Crockett, Tex., for the tests, and an equal number of bombers from Langley Field are based at Bolling. Additional groups are expected.

Struck by Automobile, Marlboro Woman Dies

Struck down by an automobile in the corporate limits of Marlboro, Md., last night, Irene Digges, colored, of Marlboro, was almost instantly killed.

Milton Wimsor, also colored, who lives near Marlboro, alleged driver of the car, was arrested by Town Constable R. A. Naylor. Taken before Judge Thomas D. Griffith, he was held in $1,000 bond, pending the outcome of an inquest to be held tonight.

20 SHIPS WRECKED IN VERA CRUZ STORM

Hurricane Unroofs Houses, Damages Harbor; 7 Men Drown Near La Paz.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Sept. 16 (A.P.). Twenty small ships were wrecked in Vera Cruz harbor early today, and considerable damage was done in the city by a hurricane which swept in from the Gulf of Mexico and after venting its force for an hour in this district headed toward the Pacific Coast.

Port authorities were preparing to send a ship to the aid of an unidentified vessel, which sent a wireless call for help, giving its position as 80 miles out.

Reports from Progreso, Yucatan and other coast towns said that a number of fishing smacks were surprised by the storm at sea, and it is feared they have foundered or run aground. They carried a total in crews of about 100 persons.

In Vera Cruz trees were uprooted along the waterfront, a number of houses were unroofed and the damage in the city and to harbor shipping was estimated at over $100,000.

The hurricane was the worst in a year and the fact that more serious damage was not occasioned is attributed to the height at which it penetrated the coast. A number of persons were injured in the city, but there were no deaths.

La Paz, Lower California, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—A military escort of seven perished when the motor launch Gen. Bravo, which was being brought to La Paz on a charge of illegal pearl fishing, foundered in Saturday's hurricane off San Jose Island, it was learned here today.

The crew of six managed to escape, making their way to Point San Evaristo by swimming and clinging to wreckage. They said their guards perished because they did not know how to swim.

The packet boat Cataluna, en route from Rio Colorado to Mazatlan, went aground off Point San Evaristo, but its crew was saved.

PORTO RICO TOBACCO RAIDERS WARN TRADE

American Cigar Manufacturers Told Properties May Be Blown Up.

San Juan, Porto Rico, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—Letters have been received by American cigar manufacturers here telling of activities of the "Caballeros de la Noche" (night riders) in the tobacco district and warning that lives may be in danger and properties may be dynamited.

The latest letter, copies of which were received by two American concerns, warned that the night riders would begin operations on Sepetmber 15. Previously tobacco growers, who had begun to prepare seed beds for the new crop, were warned not to plant more and fifteen tobacco drying barns were burned.

The night rider phase is the latest development in the difficulty of marketing the last crop of more than 25,000,000 pounds, of which from one-half to one-third remains unsold. A tobacco cooperative has advised farmers not to plant a new crop until all of the old is sold.

Representatives of buyers and growers, who were called together recently by Gov. Theodore Roosevelt have been conferring since his departure for the United States without reaching an agreement.

A special police guard has been placed over the larger tobacco warehouses.

European 'Affront' Ires Central American Consuls

New Orleans, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—The Central American Consular Corps expressed indignation today over the failure of European consuls to attend their celebration of the 110th anniversary of independence of the Central American Republics.

Some of them said they would file formal protests with their governments for appropriate diplomatic action. The consuls couched their feelings in diplomatic language but made it clear that they regarded the absence of the Europeans as an affront, the more so when the report was spread through the banquet hall that one European consul had referred to the Central Americans as "banana consuls."

"It certainly is rather odd, as you may see—the complete absence of our consular colleagues from Europe," said Col. R. Arturo Ramirez, consul general of Guatemala. "To us Central Americans it is a most regrettable episode because we have always complied with the elemental courtesy due the historic dates of our European consular colleagues in New Orleans."

who is assisting in directing relief work in Belize.

Panama City, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—The Navy airplane carrying medical supplies to Belize, Honduras, which crashed near David, Panama, today, killing three of its crew of four, had landed at David to refuel after a flight from Coco Solo, Canal Zone, earlier this morning.

After rising about 300 feet the plane suddenly burst into flames and attempted to make a landing, crashing about 3 miles to the northwest on "Yeguada" plain.

The ship fell enveloped in flames. Automobiles rushed from the field at David and gave all the aid possible, removing Roy J. Miller, radio man, and Lieut. Lankford. The latter died later.

Two observation planes and a bomber were sent immediately by the United States Army from France Field with a surgeon and medical supplies. They carried back the bodies of the dead fliers. Meanwhile another plane was ready to start for Belize with duplicate supplies.

Hospital authorities said tonight they believed there was small chance that Miller would recover. He was conscious tonight and able to speak, but could not explain the cause of the fire.

Sister Accuses Brother As Kidnaper of Mother

Charges that her brother, William Hitchcock, had kidnaped their mother, Mrs. Alice Hitchcock, were made yesterday when Mrs. Alice Covert, of Cheverly, Md., appeared before Judge Robert E. Altemus to ask a kidnaping warrant for the brother.

Mrs. Covert said that her brother, who lives in Illinois, came to her home and induced her mother to go away with him. The brother, she said, wanted to have their mother change her will to leave her estate to him. Learning that her mother was going away with her brother, Mrs. Covert got into the cab and refused to get out.

The vehicle stopped in Bladensburg, and the matter was taken before Judge Altemus, who interviewed the mother. Finding that she had accompanied her son willingly, he refused to issue the kidnaping warrant. One charging Hitchcock with assault and battery on his sister was issued, however, and he posted bond of $100.

POLICEMAN'S TRIAL SOUGHT BY COUNSEL

Suspension of Hunt Provided He Be Arraigned Soon to Be Asked Today.

Immediate suspension of Policeman Joseph Hunt, of the Second Precinct, provided that charges are placed against him and he is brought to trial shortly afterward, will be asked of the District Commissioners today by Hunt's attorney, Albert W. Jacobson.

Hunt and Mr. Jacobson have both expressed themselves as particularly anxious to bring the matter to trial and thus give the patrolman a chance to defend himself from charges made by the grand jury that he had a part in "framing" former Policeman Orville Staples, and allegedly gathered "false affidavits" and gave "false testimony" to that end.

The grand jury recommended Hunt's dismissal from the Police Department in its special report on the Staples case. The District Commissioners have taken cognizance of the report by appointing one commission and preparing for the appointment of another to investigate the matter, but no definite action to bring Hunt to trial has been taken.

Mr. Jacobson's decision to ask for immediate suspension for his client, provided some form of trial follows shortly after, comes close upon action of Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, in demanding from the Commissioners information regarding Hunt's status as a policeman. Senator Brookhart wanted to know why the man had not been suspended after the grand jury report.

Mr. Jacobson said he would bring his request before the District Commissioners today.

Senator Brookhart last night said he had received no reply to his letter to the Commissioners and would have nothing to say until this reply is received.

The Commissioners yesterday were understood to be in the process of framing a reply to the senator's letter. It was said at the District Building that the course of action being followed in the affair was taken to assure justice for Hunt as well as policemen involved in the grand jury's charges.

Selection of the extraordinary civilian board to try any member of the Police Department recommended for trial in connection with the "framing" charges was started yesterday by the Commissioners. A list of 30 outstanding citizens of Washington nominated by presidents of five major trade and civic organizations, has been received, and the work of selecting members of the board was finally under way.

From this list of 30, 5 persons will be picked as members of the board.

BRUTALITY INQUIRY MAY BE BROADENED

Grand Jury Will Be Granted Every Chance to Widen It, Rover Says.

not only the word of the complainants, but a number of reputable supporting witnesses, it was said.

When the grand jury adjourned late yesterday afternoon about 80 witnesses who were waiting to be called were excused until 10 o'clock this morning. Mr. Rover said that while only 35 persons testified yesterday the jury would wipe clean its slate of criminal cases in the brutality probe before it quits work today.

No indictments will be returned in any event before next Wednesday, Mr. Rover said. The jury has routine cases to consider and will return any indictments in the police investigation with the others on that day.

Records of Casualty Hospital have been requested by the grand jurors for use in their investigation, it was learned last night.

Dr. Joseph D. Rogers, superintendent of the hospital, appeared at the courthouse shortly after the grand jury had suspended operations for the day and presented his subpena. He was told that the jury had left for the day and that he would have to return at 10 o'clock this morning.

When he protested that hospital work would prevent him from appearing at that time, Mr. Rover told him that only the records of the hospital were desired and if he cared to he could have some one connected with the hospital bring them over.

Dr. William Bowman, an interne at the hospital, who is also under subpena to appear before the grand jury, would be delegated to present the records, hospital officials finally decided.

When the jury completes its work today it will have finished all of the cases the Department of Justice has prepared in the third degree investigation.

Hoover's Work Completed.

Director J. Edgar Hoover appeared before the grand jury as it started its work yesterday and announced the formal completion of the work of his agents.

The Department of Justice is now at work on a formal report which will first be presented to Acting Attorney General Thomas Thacher and then sent to the Board of District Commissioners.

The secrecy which marked the presentation of the first five cases to the grand jury—those which resulted in the indictment of five First Precinct policeman—was present again yesterday.

United States marshals probably had more trouble keeping a watchful eye over their charges because the number subpenaed overflowed the Motions Court room, where it has been the rule to sequester witnesses in this inquiry. It was necessary to place benches and chairs in the corridors and these were filled, mostly by women.

All Warned Not to Talk.

All had been warned, however, not to talk with any passersby and particular instructions not to converse with newspapermen were handed down.

Several policemen were among the witnesses waiting to testify yesterday. Among them were Capt. Ira Sheetz, commander of the Tenth Precinct; Policemen R. L. Jenkins, B. G. Lewis and William R. Sheetz, of the First Precinct, and Policeman Henry Rinke, of the Second Precinct.

Detective A. D. Mansfield, of the First Precinct, was also among the witnesses. He spent a large part of the morning awaiting a call from the jurors, but in the afternoon was excused "for the time being." He was told to be ready to testify, however.

It is believed Mansfield was called in connection with the charges of Robert Martz, 19 years old, under indictment in connection with the slaying of Irvin Leroy Zirkle, pool room proprietor, last May.

The Martz case was the first considered by the jurors. Martz was brought to the courthouse from the District Jail, and was called into the jury room with his attorney, Denny Hughes. They testified at length.

Macon, Ga., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Zellner Holloman captured a mad dog that attacked a group of children here today and held it in his bare arms as they fled to safety. He was bitten severely.

Great Investigation Game Goes On as Endless Chain

By JOHN J. DALY

IN the off season, just before the world series and the beginning of football, after the race tracks close, Americans love to have an investigation. It does not matter much what they investigate, nor what they find, if anything, just so there is a probe. It all goes to make a Roman holiday.

Now, a probe is something to write home about. It can be either a large probe, a medium-sized probe, or an exceedingly small probe; a probe into big or little business, or an investigation into official life. No probe is ordinary. Large or small, the process is the same, and the attendant fireworks always illuminating. Armed with authority, an investigating committee starts on its joy ride, and no one knows just where or how the inevitable crackup will occur.

THEY begin to investigate the nefarious workings of eleemosynary institutions; to find out, for instance, why people go over the hills to the poorhouse; why there is no subway system to take them there, or buses, or something, to ease the way, instead of making men and women walk over the mountains—putting, as it were, more obstacles in the way of the poor. This brings indictments against the superintendent and most of his staff. They are charged with making the road rough for prospective guests.

All well and good. While the investigators are running down facts, chasing rumors and posing for photographers, they come across evidence tending to show that the head of the agricultural department at the poor farm is getting rich selling victuals to the leading hotels and restaurants; broccoli and other delicacies grown in the Japanese gardens. Even the bellhops and boys attending the fairways are not above suspicion.

This deflects the investigation into new channels. It eventually leads to the highest offices in the local, State, and national governments—until all work is suspended while all hands are being investigated.

* * * *

NEW investigators enter the field. The United States Government sends the Department of Justice experts. The governor puts the State troopers on the trail. The local police assign a squad of detectives. The stock of investigators runs short, and it finds a flock of candidates ready and willing. Schools start up to train operatives, overnight. To qualify is simplicity itself. All a candidate needs do is first wash up his own desk, send his dirty linen to the laundry, and then start to search the dark corners in another man's bailiwick. This insures a mass production of scandal, which eventually leads to literature. The book market is always open to memoirs, by muckrakers.

After indictments have been returned by the grand jury against the attorney general, the district attorney and his assistants, a disinterested party—usually an irate citizen—writes to the editor, suggesting: "Now, that that's out of the way, why not investigate the investigators?"

* * * *

THIS furnishes an idea. Lo and behold, another investigation gets under way—a greater and deeper probe—and the law descends upon a new crop of suspicious characters. Then libel suits are filed, and the process starts all over again. It makes life interesting.

In this life every citizen is either investigating or investigated. The safe rule to follow is to be ready to play both roles. When you are hard pressed by investigators, start an investigation of your own.

INDUSTRY HEAD OFFERS PLAN TO GIVE WORKERS A NEW DEAL

Swope said in opening his address, "and therefore production and consumption must be coordinated. * * * Shall we wait for society to act through its legislatures or shall industry recognize its obligation to its employes and to the public and undertake the task? Coordination of production is impossible under our present laws."

His plans call for compulsory pensions, unemployment, disability and life insurance, and workmen's compensation protection, the cost to be borne equally by employer and employe.

Under the plan the employe would lose none of the accrued benefits of such protection by switching from one company to another, and if he went into business for himself, returned or changed his trade he would receive back all he had paid in, plus interest.

The stabilization of industry would be brought about through the compulsory formation, by law, of trade associations in virtually every business and industry in the country.

These groups would have broad powers under Mr. Swope's proposal. They would seek to coordinate production and consumption by controlling each industry's output "on a broader, more intelligent basis, thus tending to regularize employment."

Would End Fear Psychology.

They would also play a part in the stabilization of prices and in the control of business ethics and "all matters relating to the growth and development of industry and commerce."

They would be in charge of an advisory board composed of representatives of employers, employes and the public, which in turn would be responsible to a Federal supervisory board such as the Federal Trade Commission.

"The psychology of fear must be removed," Mr. Swope said, "and this can not be done unless they (the workers) have reasonable expectation of protection for their families in case of the breadwinner's death, protection from old age, and protection against unemployment. By protection * * * I mean protection they themselves help provide. * * *"

The details of the Swope plan are:

Within three years all companies with 50 or more employes shall be required to form a trade association under supervision of some Federal body.

All companies must adopt standard accounting and cost systems and earnings statements.

All companies with 25 or more stockholders shall send out quarterly statements of the condition of the business and its earnings.

A national workmen's compensation act shall be modeled after the best features in various present State acts.

A life and disability policy, equal in face value to one year's salary, shall be taken out for every employe, the employer and employe each to pay half the premiums. The portion paid for by the employe remains his if he leaves that field of industry.

Employe and employer shall each pay annually 1 per cent of the employe's yearly salary into a pension fund which shall be paid back after retirement at the age of 70 in annual sums of approximately half the employe's annual salary.

Unemployment Insurance.

Employe and employer shall each pay 1 per cent of the employe's salary for unemployment insurance for every one earning a normal yearly wage or salary of $5,000 or less. Loans without interest charge may be made from this fund to employes. Two weeks after the employe loses his job he can begin to draw the insurance at the rate of 50 per cent per week of his normal wage or salary. These payments shall be made for no more than ten weeks in any consecutive twelve months.

Companies engaging in export business may deduct from their Federal income taxes the equivalent of a certain percentage (to be fixed by law) of their export sales, this percentage to be deemed equivalent to the money spent on various employe benefits.

"By this method," Mr. Swope said, in referring to the last provision, "American industry can discharge its obligations to its employes, and, by holding its position in the markets of the world, bring additional work to America."

POWERS REVEALED AS FORMER CONVICT

Did Time in Wisconsin Prison, Fingerprints Show, for Burglary.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Police claimed today that they had lifted the veil cast over the past of Harry Powers, accused of operating a "murder farm" near here, far enough to find that he served a sentence in Wisconsin State Prison.

C. A. Duckworth, Clarksburg police chief, after examining fingerprints and photographs sent here from Wisconsin, said the man held here for the killing of Mrs. Asta Eicher and her three children, of Park Ridge, Ill., and Mrs. Dorothy Lemke, of Worcester, Mass., was a convict in the prison at Waupon, Wis., from July 22, 1921, until October 11, 1922.

The Wisconsin prisoner was sentenced under the name of Herman Drenth in Barron County, Wis., for burglary. His record was sent here by Warden Oscar Lee.

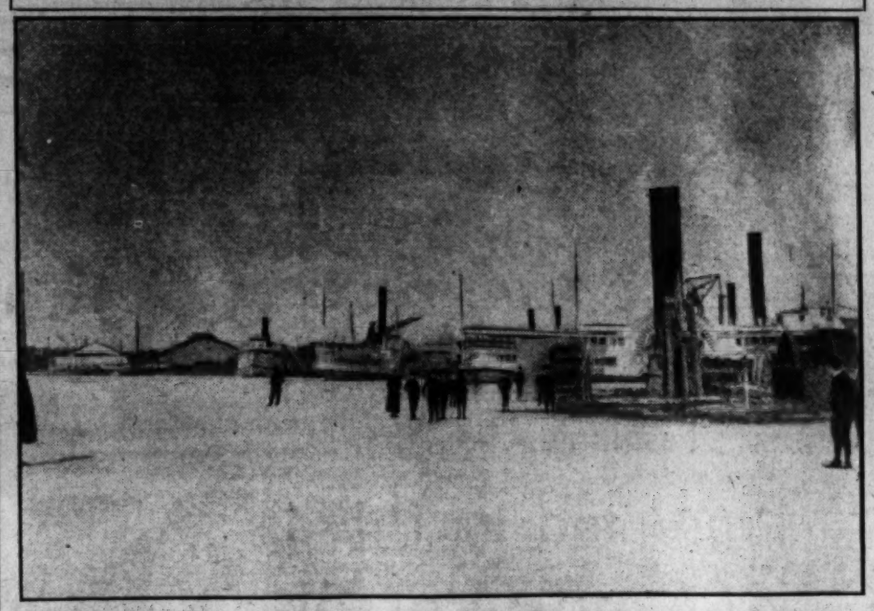
Since his arrest three weeks ago in connection with the "murder farm" killings, Powers has made no revelation of his past, and the authorities heretofore have had little success in tracing it. He used several aliases in writing to women through a matrimonial agency.

County officers obtained further evidence to substantiate their belief that Mrs. Eicher was killed late in June or early in July and that Mrs. Lemke was slain on the night of July 31. Carl Wilson, a constable who lived near the "murder farm," told them he heard piercing screams of women issuing from the place at approximately those times.

Wilson lives about 1,000 yards from the "murder garage." He said he paid no attention to the screams he heard because he believed "a drunken party was being held in the vicinity."

"It was about midnight, June 30, when I was awakened by the hideous screams of a woman," he said. "There were three different screams. The next was not so loud and the third was weak. It sounded exactly as if some man were choking a woman."

When Washington Was Younger—No. 47



THE above picture depicts a rare sight, the old Potomac River frozen solid and covered with snow. The boats are hopelessly icelocked and it was many days before they could move.

This happened during the "Great Blizzard" of February, 1899, when the city was covered with 34 inches of snow and the temperature dropped to the lowest ever recorded in Washington, 15 degrees below zero.

The city was cut off from the outside world for several days, telegraph wires were down and trains could not get in or out. No mail was delivered and much suffering was experienced by the poor.

The Washington Post raised a relief fund to help allay the suffering. The estimated property damage from this storm was placed at $50,000, quite a sum in those days.

CHURCHMEN ATTACK MENACE OF DIVORCE

Bishop Freeman Mentioned as Presiding Officer of Episcopalians.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—A denunciation of a "growing divorce menace," was voiced today before the fifteenth convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church, as a joint commission prepared to submit a proposed canon liberalizing rules for the remarriage of divorced persons.

The Right Rev. Michael Bolton Furse, Lord Bishop of St. Albans, London, England, declared before the convention that "to those who are convinced that Christian marriage is God's law for man, the alarming increase in the number of divorces and of the causes for divorce, is sinister enough."

Bishop Furse echoed views voiced Sunday by Presiding Bishop James De Wolf Perry, of Rhode Island, who opposed the liberalization of church laws against divorce.

In his sermon, the English churchman said:

"But far more sinister is the attitude toward this whole sorry business adopted by many individuals who profess the faith of Christ, and alas, even officially by some Christian communions, an attitude either of practical indifference or even of acquiescence and condonation, and sometimes among those who care most for the sanctity of marriage, an attitude of almost hopeless despair."

Convention politics began to buzz today in talk concerning election of a presiding bishop. The names of the incumbent, Bishop Perry, of Rhode Island; Bishop Ernest M. Stires, of Long Island, and Bishop James E. Freeman, of Washington, were mentioned. The house of bishops will make the selection the latter part of the week and the choice will be referred to the house of delegates for ratification.

The GIRL About Town

THE George Washington Bicentennial Commission nods at times. A letter was sent by one of its officials to a member of the Washington family, asking for a complete list of "his descendants." This official thus matched the blunder of a Senate functionary on February 22 last, when members of the Washington clan were given seats in the Senate to hear the reading of the Farewell Address. As the line of Washingtons reached the Senate portals, this functionary announced with a flourish: "The descendants of George Washington!" "Made us all illegitimate, by Jove," whispered one collateral to another.

I met Capt. Clarence Calhoun on the street and was struck anew by his remarkable facial resemblance to George Washington. I suggested that he personify Washington in the great pageant planned for 1932. He laughed and said that others had suggested it also. Capt. Calhoun's sister, Lelia Leidenger, who is a power in Louisville, came up to celebrate his birthday Sunday. Mrs. Leidenger was the first woman to serve on the school board in Louisville. Under her supervision school lunches were served, free of all cost, to 30,000 undernourished pupils of the public schools last winter.

'BACK-TO-SCHOOL' MOVE GAINS FAVOR

Wide Support Pledged as Unemployment Bodies Plan Meetings.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover's unemployment relief organization announced yesterday a Nation-wide response to its "back-to-school" movement.

The relief group has been conducting a campaign to keep young folks in school to prevent them from competing for jobs with heads of families and losing educational advantages. The movement has been indorsed, the organization announced yesterday, by school authorities, educators, chambers of commerce, service associations, character-building societies and women's organizations.

The relief group made public communications from all sections of the country pledging cooperation, and telling of local plans for promoting school attendance.

I. O. Stockton, superintendent of schools of Spencer, Nebr., outlined a plan under which children from rural districts were kept in school even though their parents were unable to maintain them.

Indianapolis was said to have attempted to keep every child under 16 years old in school by means of funds from associations and individuals. During the last school year 346 pupils were retained who otherwise would have stopped.

Meanwhile, relief headquarters were busy with wider phases of unemployment. Eliot Wadsworth, chairman of the committee charged with coordinating activities of organizations, announced his group would meet September 25.

The fund-raising committee, headed by Owen D. Young, will meet here tomorrow to plan its campaign.

A third committee, headed by Harry A. Wheeler, charged with devising plans for creating employment, will meet a few days later.

The relief organization has a pledge of cooperation from the American Legion. Ralph T. O'Neil, national commander, promised the legion's aid today after a conference with President Hoover. He said the forthcoming report of the legion's employment commission would hold the immediate unemployment situation to be "largely a community problem."

The commission will recommend increased public improvements, creation of work as well as direct charity and steps to prevent the migration of unemployed, O'Neil said.

PLANE OF CRAMER PICKED UP AT SEA

Wreckage Identified as That of American's Craft Lost in Storm August 9.

London, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Wreckage of an airplane identified as that in which Parker Cramer and Oliver Pacquette left the Shetland Islands for Copenhagen August 9 was picked up today in the approximate place where they are believed to have been lost.

Capt. Armaston, of the British trawler, Lord Trent, told of the find in a wireless message to the Associated Press. The message read:

"Picked up wreckage of seaplane, in latitude 56 degrees 50 minutes, longitude 1 degree, 10 minutes east. Model 3830, date 3-19-30, manufacturing number 07006 patent 1726439, Edo Aircraft Corporation, College Point, N. Y.,

In a later message Capt. Armaston said the marks of identification were not altogether plain. He is keeping the wreckage aboard his ship until he gets back to Hull on his return from the White Sea.

Cramer and his radio operator, Pacquette, had completed a flight by easy stages over the northern route from Detroit. They were blazing an air mail trail for an American aviation company.

New York, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—K. D. Vosler, factory manager for the Edo Aircraft Corporation, today definitely identified wreckage found in the North Sea by the British trawler Lord Trent as that of the plane of Cramer.

"If those are the numbers it is Cramer's plane," he said, after checking company records.

Vosler said the only thing that did not check absolutely was the manufacturing number. The marks, Vosler declared, were on floats manufactured by his concern for the Cramer plane. The plane itself was made by another company.

Cramer and his radio operator, Oliver Paquette, disappeared into a heavy storm August 9 after leaving the Shetland Islands for Copenhagen. Cramer, who had hoped to blaze an airmail route over the Arctic, was a veteran pilot.

In 1929 he was one of the pilots of the "Untin" Bowler, huge amphibian plane, which essayed a round-trip flight from Chicago to Berlin on the great North Circle course. The craft reached Port Burwell, on the Hudson straits, but was lost when ice to which it was moored broke up in a gale and drifted out to sea. Cramer and his companions made their way back to civilization.

Cramer also accompanied Sir Hubert Wilkins on one of his trips into the Antarctic.

4 Passengers, 2 Pilots Die in Roumania Crash

Bucharest, Roumania, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Four passengers and the two pilots of the Belgrade-Bucharest passenger plane were killed last night when the plane crashed near Turnu Severin, Roumania.

FARM BOARD SPURNS 'WALLA WALLA PLAN'

Proposal for Options on Wheat Surplus Called Impracticable.

(Associated Press.)

The "Walla Walla" wheat plan, designed to increase prices and reduce acreage, was rejected yesterday by the Farm Board as impracticable and without the scope of its authority.

The board's decision, arrived at after a series of conferences with a declaration of wheat growers, bankers and business men from the Pacific Northwest, was made known in a letter to Representative Summers (Republican), Washington, chairman of the group.

This plan was one of hundreds which the board has had submitted to it for consideration as a means of relieving distress among wheat farmers.

"The Farm Board can not approve this plan," C. B. Denman, acting chairman, wrote in the letter to Summers. "We do not believe it is likely to work to the advantage of the wheat producers of the country, or that we are justified, under the terms of the agricultural marketing act, in authorizing the Stabilization Corporation to make the contracts suggested."

The plan provided for options, expiring next July 1, to purchase surplus wheat held by the Stabilization Corporation with farmers reducing their 1932 acreage in an amount equal to bushels to the quantity of wheat optioned to them.

Summers and his colleagues argued that farmers could now buy the surplus, estimated at about 190,000,000 bushels, at prices far below costs of production and at the same time remove the excessive supplies which have been burdening the market.

Ships and Planes Halt For 3 Atlantic Airmen

New York, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Ships and airplanes today continued to watch for trace of the missing monoplane, Esa, missing on a flight from Lisbon, Portugal, to New York.

It was sighted twice on its trip west, once at the Azores and later by the steamship Pennland. The airplane had but 1,100 miles of its 3,700-mile journey left when it was seen by the Pennland 80 miles off Cape Race, Newfoundland, and 395 miles from Halifax.

Aviators expressed hope that the three fliers, with Rody and Christian Johannsen, Germans, and Fernando Costa Viega, Portuguese sportsman, might have come down in some remote spot in Canada, when they ran out of fuel.

The Esa had enough gasoline to keep aloft 48 hours. That time expired at 4:30 a. m. E. S. T. yesterday. They took very little food and a jug of water apiece.

Flier Missing 29 Days Found.

Sioux Lookout, Ontario, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Charles W. Gordon, aviator geologist, who had been missing 29 days since he took off on a flight to Trout Lake, was found today by searchers on the shores of that lake.

ed their unsuccessful flight in a rebuilt monoplane.

Rejoicing to the West in the safety of Moyle and Allen, America had reason to grieve to the East.

Cramer and Pacquette, trail blazers for an airmail route, completed a flight in easy stages from Detroit to the Shetland Islands. They left the latter place, bound for Copenhagen, on August 9, and were never more seen.

The American Aviation Co., for whom the fliers were blazing the trail, identified the plane from markings relayed by radio, as did the plane's manufacturer.

A transport passenger-mail plane caught fire and plunged into San Francisco Bay carrying three passengers and a pilot to death. Another plane, bearing relief supplies from the Navy to hurricane-stricken Belize, British Honduras, crashed in Panama, killing two pilots and a machinist's mate.

On a farm near Saratoga, N. Y., was found the burned wreckage of a small plane, from which the pilot may have parachuted to safety.

Word of the finding of the North Sea wreckage was withheld from Mrs. Pacquette, who suffered a collapse at her parents' home in Grand Rapids, Mich., due to the strain of waiting for word from her husband. Refusing to believe that he had perished, Mrs. Pacquette recently announced a plan to fly to the Shetland Islands next spring to search for her husband and Cramer.

On Uninhabited Island.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Despair over the fate of Don Moyle and Cecil A. Allen, turned to joy today with receipt of radio reports from Soviet steamers that the California fliers had been found on an uninhabited island off the coast of Kamchatka.

More than a week had passed since they took off from Samushiro Beach, northern Japan, for a 4,465-mile nonstop flight to Seattle.

First word of the fliers came from the United States Navy radio station at St. Paul Island in Bering Sea, which intercepted a message from the Soviet steamer Burlat, reporting the safety of the aviators.

The report also was intercepted by the United States Coast Guard cutter Itasca, cruising along the Aleutian Island chain to the westward of Dutch Harbor, looking for the fliers. The Itasca received its report from the Soviet steamer Esquimos, which radioed the fliers were safe aboard another Soviet steamer, the Piatey Krabolov at Olyutor (or Olyotorski) Gulf, at the northern end of Kamchatka.

No details of the end of the transpacific attempt were contained in early dispatches, which merely reported the fliers were safe and would be home soon.

Vanished September 7.

Many persons in the region understand English because of contacts with trading vessels from the United States and Alaska.

Allen and Moyle, flying a plane which had been abandoned as unairworthy by two other aviators, vanished to the northward of Japan Monday, September 7, an hour and 10 minutes after they took off.

Ships of Japan, Russia and the United States kept watch and hope for their safety had just about been abandoned.

John Buffelen, owner of the plane flown by Allen and Moyle, dispatched a search plane from here last night. Today he cabled to Clayton Scott, pilot of the rescue craft, at Ketchikan, to keep the ship in Alaska to bring Allen and Moyle to the States if conditions warrant.

The plane, renamed the Clasina Madge after the daughter and wife of Buffelen, had been rebuilt by Allen and Moyle before their take-off.

Plane Had Failed Before.

The ship was built for Harold Bromley, Tacoma aviator, who took off from Japan last summer with Harold Gatty as a navigator. They flew 1,000 miles toward the tip of the Aleutians before a collector ring on the motor burned out and they were obliged to return.

Thomas Ash, another American aviator, tried the plane out early this summer, but decided it was incapable of the long and grueling flight.

The aviators, although comparative novices at flying, made a perfect take-off from northern Japan. The plane weighed almost six tons as it rolled down the beach and mounted into the air. The fliers were sighted over Point Erimo, 110 miles north of their starting point. After that they were unreported until today.

Pilot Falls in Fog; Dies With 3 Aboard

Coast Flier Reports All Well Just Before He Lands in Bay.

Oakland, Calif., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—A pilot and three passengers were killed today when a Pacific Air Transport mail plane plunged into San Francisco Bay shortly after taking off from the Oakland Airport for Portland, Oreg., and Seattle.

The pilot was Ray Boudreaux, Medford, Oreg., former Army flier, and the passengers were Kirk Herre, Seattle newspaperman; Col. W. H. Bissell, San Francisco, and F. I. Sheahan, San Francisco.

The crash occurred about 4 a. m. Boudreaux was flying over Berkeley in a fog. He had informed the airport by radio telephone that he had only a 600-foot ceiling but that "all is O. K." Within five minutes the plane had dived into the tide flats of the bay. The plane broke into flames after it struck the water. Of the 400 pounds of mail aboard, virtually all was destroyed. Aviators believe the pilot mistook bay water for fog.

JUDGE SAYS MOYLE SENTENCE STANDS

who was unaware her son intended undertaking the ocean flight, has been under a nurse's care since the fliers left Japan.

"We decided not to give up hope until ten days had passed," Mrs. Moyle said, "and he has been found on the ninth day. We knew our prayers would be answered."

While the office staff crowded about her, offering congratulations, Miss Bresson told how she maintained hope until last night.

"Don and I had planned to marry as soon as he returned, but he may wish to make another flight now," she said. "I am willing to marry him as soon as possible."

HEART TROUBLE NEW THEORY IN DROWNING

Father of Accused Educator Reveals He Had Been Treating Woman.

Hampton, Va., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Dr. Evan O'Neill Kane, well-known Pennsylvania surgeon and father of Prof. Elisha Kent Kane, of the University of Tennessee, tonight advanced the theory that Mrs. Jenny Graham Kane, his daughter-in-law, came to her death in the waters of Chesapeake Bay from heart trouble.

Dr. Kane revealed that he had been treating Mrs. Kane for angina pectoris for several years. He made the assertion just before he was called to testify at the resumption of a coroner's inquest, to which he hoped to be called. He said he was certain his son, who is held on a murder charge, was not only innocent but had made heroic efforts to save his wife.

He expressed keen disappointment that a hearing on an application for bond for his son had been set for tomorrow instead of receiving immediate attention.

Search for a motive which might substantiate a murder charge against the 37-year-old college professor continued today, apparently without result, and authorities indicated it had been extended to several other States.

Meantime, attorneys who filed application for bond announced that the defense would not waive any hearing, but would insist on a preliminary trial and would fight the case every inch of the way. The Elizabeth City County Jury does not convene until October 5.

Letter Hunt Fails.

Coroner George K. Vanderslice, who said there were conflicts in Kane's statements of his actions before and at the time of his wife's drowning, and "that the case looked like homicide," admitted that no motive had been uncovered and that officers had been unable to find an alleged letter involving a New York woman. He had summoned several more witnesses for tonight's inquiry, but declined to discuss the testimony he hoped to obtain.

Kane, who has held to his statement that his wife slipped from a rock while they were swimming and drowned despite his efforts at rescue and resuscitation, was represented in the application for bond by his uncle, Francis Fisher Kane; a cousin, E. K. Kane, jr., and Percy and Masey Carmel, Hampton attorneys. It will be argued before Judge C. Vernon Spratley in circuit court.

Came From Camp.

It was learned today that Prof. Kane came here to the home of his wife's parents immediately after he left a summer reserve officers training camp at Fort Bragg, N. C. Authorities of the county are checking his movements closely in the search for a possible motive for homicide and they are taking verbatim statements of witnesses at the inquest.

Interest was centered tonight on whether several witnesses to be grilled would bear out the testimony of two unnamed men who officers said claim to have been present when Kane started for a hospital with his wife's body. Their testimony was contradictory to statements of the accused, the officers said.

the circumstances, political and psychological, with a sensitive and courtly decency which does honor to the British bench. The judge had to do his professional duty, but it obviously hurt him much more than it did the accused, to sentence him to six years' imprisonment. He was apologetic and unhappy. He referred to Mr. Gandhi as "a great patriot and a great leader," and as one whom even his adversaries look upon "as a man of high ideals and of noble and even saintly life."

The historic commentary to the episode was provided by the Lord Bishop of Madras, himself an Englishman and one of the leading ecclesiastical functionaries in India. He said: "I frankly confess, although it deeply grieves me to say it, that I see in Mr. Gandhi the patient sufferer for the cause of righteousness and mercy, a truer representative of the Crucified Saviour than the men who have thrown him into prison and yet call themselves by the name of Christ."

Has Immense Following.

We may conclude with the answer to the question that is often and inevitably asked: What is the secret of the phenomenal influence on the millions of his fellow countrymen? There is certainly no living leader in the contemporary world whose personal following comes anywhere near Gandhi's in numbers, or whose hold on the devotion of his followers is as firm and sustained as that of Gandhi. Moreover, it must be noted that he commands allegiance by the sheer force of his personality, and without resort to any sort or kind of coercion or compulsion. He holds no office and is the permanent head of no organization. The devotion he inspires is wholly voluntary. Here, with a vengeance, is a prophet who is honored in his own country.

Any attempt to account for this phenomenon must of course take into account at the very outset the stark integrity of the man. Here is a life that has been lived for 30 years and more in the full glare of publicity, and upon which has also constantly beaten the fierce light of hostile political controversy. The figure revealed under this X-ray is one of elemental simplicity. His integrity is equaled by his selflessness.

Renounces His Wealth.

So far from wanting anything for himself from the world, he has deliberately renounced the world and its so-called rewards and emoluments. He had become a wealthy man at an early age, with an income of more than $20,000 a year. He gave away his wealth for various philanthropies and took the vow of poverty and nonpossession of material things. This was in order better to achieve his personal self-realization, as well to be better able to lead the crusade of political and social deliverance for his people which he had planned.

Gandhi lives a consecrated life. He has not only spiritually identified himself with the sorrows and sufferings of his people, but in the comforts and conveniences of material life, he will take no more for himself than the poorest and humblest of his fellow countrymen. That is why he wears the famous loin cloth. It is the symbol of the destitution and disinheritance of millions of his compatriots who actually cannot afford any more. (The per capita income of India today is less than 8 cents a day.)

No wonder the people respond to a leader like that. His simplicity really represents a consecrated religious fervor—an intense, self-consuming dedication to the well-being of others.

If Gandhi has done nothing else he has provided our age, with all its materialism and self-sufficiency, its cynicism and disillusionment, with one more witness to the spiritual values of life cast in the heroic and classic mould of the prophets, the martyrs, and the saviours of mankind.

GANDHI ASKS LABOR TO HELP FREE INDIA

Plea Made to Members of Commons for Uncurbed Independence.

London, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Mahatma Gandhi stalked into the "mother of parliaments" tonight and pleaded for the British Labor party's support in India's struggle for independence. He had been invited to address Labor members of the House of Commons privately regarding India's claims.

He said his case was complete independence for India, the same as that enjoyed by Great Britain. He would accept no compromise, he said. Afterward he answered the questions of various Labor members.

Earlier in the day the federal structures committee of the second round-table conference was asked to give even the lowliest taxpayer of India representation in the legislature of the projected Indian federation.

Direct Election Urged.

A. Rangaswami Iyengar, a friend of Gandhi and a former secretary of the All-India National Congress, pleaded that there be "no taxation without representation," one of the significant phrases of the American Revolution.

His appeal, written with the Mahatma's help, was made in behalf of "direct election" to both chambers of the projected legislature, as contrasted with "indirect election."

It is the attitude of the Indian princes that each principality should select its members of the legislature in such a way as it chooses, appointive by the princes or otherwise.

Gandhi sat hunched in a chair and listened to the debate, hardly uttering a word except in greeting as he came and went.

The gnome-like Gandhi, clad only in a strip of white fabric, was followed into a committee room of the House of Commons for his meeting with the Labor members by his white-robed English disciple, Miss Madeline Slade, or Mira Bhen, as she prefers to be called.

Conservatives Are Ejected.

It was the first time in the ancient annals of the House that such strange figures had invaded its precincts.

While the mahatma was speaking, several conservative members of Parliament, including Lord Witchfield, entered, thinking the meeting was open to all. They were unceremoniously ejected.

The committee room was crowded when the mahatma entered. All arose and gave him an ovation. He appeared tired and remained seated, his frail voice hardly loud enough to reach the whole gathering. He spoke for more than half an hour, then answered questions for another 20 minutes.

Afterward he and his party remained for devotions and, according to the regulations of Parliament, one member of the House remained with them.

LONG CALLED LIAR BY TEXAS SENATE

acreage reduction. The vote on this motion was 95 to 34. No vote on any cotton progam has been taken in the Senate.

A further shift of Southern sentiment against the Long proposal also was noted today. South Carolina senators hostile to the no planting idea spoke in debate, asserting farmer mass meetings had approved the plan while "hysterical." A substitute bill proposing acreage reduction was introduced.

Talk of a special Oklahoma legislative session to consider Gov. W. H. Murray's proposals for a one-third cotton and wheat acre reduction as a basic future policy, and a 50 per cent curtailment in the next two years, developed from a farmers' conference in Oklahoma City.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—A large number of persons who had attended a mass meeting on the State Capitol lawn crowded into the offices of Governor Richard B. Russell late today and demanded that a special session of the Georgia Legislature be called for cotton relief.

The crowd, through a spokesman, told the governor a special session of the Legislature to act on the cotton situation was imperative. He replied he would call a special session when Texas passed legislation governing the planting of cotton.

Southern warehouses have been authorized by Secretary Hyde to advance to cotton farmers, who are recipients of drought relief loans, $5 a bale to cover cost of picking cotton which is to be held for later sale.

The Secretary of Agriculture previously authorized a $5 advance on cotton to be marketed at once. The warehouses may deduct the amount of the advance and interest when the cotton is sold. As much as necessary of the remainder will go to the Government in repayment of the loan. The advance will assist farmers in holding their cotton for better prices.

BRITISH NAVAL PAY PROTEST SPREADS

of the admiralty, announced in the House of Commons, to the accompaniment of jeers and taunts from the Labor side that an investigation would be conducted into the bluejackets' complaints. The board of the admiralty, he said, will propose readjustments when the inquiry ends.

The announcement of Sir Austen that the board of admiralty had agreed to reexamine the proposed reductions in naval pay created a storm of sharp exchanges in the House of Commons.

Labor members jumped to their feet demanding immediate debate. The government refused the demand and the Labor members then put a motion that the house suspend the 11 o'clock closing rule tonight, but the government defeated the motion by 286 to 195 votes.

Uproar of Questions.

In an uproar of questions from the opposition and retorts from the government benches the Laborites asked if the unemployed whose benefits had been cut would also be considered. They wanted to know if the soldiers and policemen likewise would be consulted about their reductions. They remarked on the fact that some of the naval rates of pay have been cut 25 per cent, while the first lord of the admiralty and some other cabinet members are taking only a 10 per cent reduction.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald replied that it had always been understood that the government could adjust the burdens.

Sir Austen also said that the fleet, which has been concentrated at Invergordon, Scotland, for maneuvers, has been ordered dispersed and each vessel directed to proceed to its home port.

Men Cheer and Sing.

In his statement he gave no details concerning the extent of the unrest or the manner in which it had been manifested. From other sources, however, a certain amount of information has reached London from Invergordon, where the trouble centered, and the man in the street is talking about "strike" and "mutiny" instead of "unrest," the term used officially.

The first overt act occurred when the fleet was ordered to sea for maneuvers and the men refused to obey. Instead, they sat astride anchor chains, making execution of the order impossible.

Today cheering was heard aboard the ships. When reveille blew on the battleship Rodney the men gathered on the gun turrets, where they raised a rousing cheer for King George.

Some one started the "Froth-Blowers Anthem," a favorite song of the fleet. The question, "Are we downhearted?" was shouted, and all hands yelled, "No!"

Leave had been stopped today, but normal harbor duties were carried out. Stories about what actually was going on aboard the battleships, battle cruisers and cruisers of the fleet ranged all the way from statements that practically no work was being done to reports that drills and routine duties were gone through as usual.

All stories agreed that the proceedings had been accomplished with the utmost good humor and with no disorder.

COLLINGS KILLED FIRST, THEN HURLED IN SEA, OFFICIAL SAYS the two "pirates" and marooned on a motorboat while the Penguin drifted with only the young daughter of the Collings' aboard.

Blue said:

"Mrs. Collings is more concerned in this case tonight than ever before. If she is asked to appear as a witness she will be advised by me or by her counsel that she is not obliged to answer questions."

In Stamford tonight one of her attorneys, Homer S. Cummings, said she had "completely collapsed" when told of the finding of her husband's body.

Meantime at Norwalk, Conn., Detective Lieut. Martin Lengyel said a speed boat containing two men whose clothes were soaking wet came to the harbor there last Thursday morning.

The age of the younger man was estimated at about 18 years; his companion appeared to be about 35 years old. Mrs. Collings had estimated age of her husband's assailants as 17 and 50 years, respectively.

The men told the gasoline station attendant they had slept on the boat near a mud flat in Long Island all night and that they had been soaked by the spray. They arrived here about 6:30, and sailed in a westerly direction after purchasing $15 worth of gasoline.

Bound With Half-Inch Rope.

Discovery of the bruised and battered body of Collings on a Long Island beach at dawn today confirmed certain phases of his widow's story of a midnight invasion of their cruiser, but left the bizarre mystery of who killed him and why as much an enigma as ever.

Heavy breakers during the night rolled the body on the beach of the Marshall Field estate, not far from where the Collings' boat had been anchored a week ago tonight when the yachtsman vanished from it.

A patrolman made the gruesome find. The hands and feet of the dead man were bound with a 10-foot length of half-inch rope, tied in what one investigator called "revengeful knots."

There was a hole in the head. The throat was slashed and the arms and shoulders bore numerous bruises.

The face was set in a grimace.

The possibility that another man may have drowned near the Penguin last Wednesday night arose when the yachtsmen who found the Collings girl on the drifting Penguin said they now were positive a man they saw in the water near the cruiser could not have been Collings.

"We saw the figure swimming with speed toward the Penguin," said N. L. Noteman, owner of the yacht which rescued 5-year-old Barbara Collings. "We saw the water splash around him. A man bound as Mr. Collings was never could have been swimming like that."

Blue was asked if he believed that Collings, after he had been struck, could have made the remarks his wife ascribed to him in telling her story to officials anad reporters.

"I hardly think it would have been possible for any man to have retained consciousness sufficiently to make any such deliberate statements after receiving such a blow," he replied.

"I believe the blow was of sufficient violence to have caused death."

Fess to Sound Keynote In Address on Saturday

(United Press.)

Chairman Simeon D. Fess, of the Republican national committee, in a political speech, at Allentown, Pa., Saturday will sound a keynote of the party's fall campaign.

The speech is expected to set political wheels in motion again with a three-fold objective, victories in the scattered but important elections of this fall, the replenishment of the depleted party war chest, and the renomination and reelection of President Hoover next year.

Fortune Editor Suicide; Heat Blamed for Leap

New York, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—A man identified as Parker Lloyd-Smith, 30 years old, editor of the magazine Fortune was killed today when he jumped or fell from the twenty-third floor of an East Eighty-sixth street building to the roof of an adjoining structure.

Lloyd-Smith had plunged from his suite on the twenty-third floor. His body, nude, was found on the eighth floor extension of the Hotel Croyden, adjoining. Police listed the case as a suicide and attributed it to overwork and the heat.

Veteran Fireman Dies From Stroke

E. J. Dwyer, Who Drove Famous Horses, 30 Years in Ranks.

Flags were at half mast over every District fire house yesterday for Edward Joseph Dwyer, veteran District fireman, who drove the old fire horses, Gene, Tom and Barney, in every firemen's Labor Day parade until the last. He died at Emergency Hospital Tuesday night, from a stroke suffered two weeks ago.

U. S. STUDIES WORLD'S NAVIES, ANTICIPATING HOLIDAY PLAN

construction or contracted for would be completed.

Otherwise, it is pointed out, hundreds, perhaps thousands, of men would be thrown out of work.

Yesterday the Navy Department opened bids for ten 35-knot destroyers, which will cost approximately $50,000,000. A contract for a similar type of craft was let in June. The destroyers are the first fighting ships to be provided for by Congress since the ratification of the London Naval Treaty of 1929.

Before the ratification of the London Naval Treaty, Congress made appropriations for the construction of six 10,000-ton 8-inch gun cruisers, and for the modernization of the battleships Arizona and Pennsylvania.

Current Projects to Go On.

At present, the Navy has under construction seven 10,000-ton 8-inch gun cruisers, one aircraft carrier, three submarines, and in addition is modernizing three more battleships.

The expectation is that if a holiday on construction is agreed on, none of these projects would be halted, any more than the current construction of other nations would be halted.

However, the Navy's program for future construction undoubtedly would be held up. This program, among other things, provides for a new aircraft carrier, a cruiser with a flying deck, some additional submarines, and the modernization of some battleships.

In any event, it is felt that a holiday on construction would affect the United States no worse than any other nation involved. In fact, it is felt that this country is now much better off, from a relative standpoint, than it was just before and at the time of the London Naval Conference.

Treaty Period Extension.

Naturally, if a holiday agreement is entered into, the United States would expect that the period covered by the London Naval Treaty would be extended. The treaty expires in 1935. If the holiday was for five years, the United States would expect that the treaty then would be pushed back to 1940.

From here it seems that the nations ought to be able to get together on a holiday plan. Great Britain, now going through one of the big crises of its history, would welcome a chance to suspend construction and thus trim her budget. At any rate so it is felt here.

Italy, having proposed the holiday, would be certain to agree. With regard to France, there is some doubt. Thus far, she has shown little enthusiasm for the holiday idea, but some observers believe that this is simply because it was proposed by Italy.

France's Position Good.

France, it is pointed out, is in a splendid position so far as her Navy is concerned, and ought to welcome a continuation of the present status quo.

Japan, like other nations, is suffering from budget trouble, and ordinarily would welcome a plan for relief. The Japanese, however, are loath to slow down work in their shipyards. They feel that these shipyards should be kept at a high point of efficiency so that, in the event of war, they would be prepared to meet whatever demands the government should make on them.

AMERICA'S ONLY REFINER OF GERM PROCESSED OIL OFFERS....

$10,000 IN CASH PRIZES

FOR THE BEST ANSWERS EXPLAINING THE

MYSTERY OF THE "HIDDEN QUART"

AND TELLING HOW THIS QUART BENEFITS MOTORISTS

Fact No. 1—Thousands of motorists and service station men have observed that after a car has been given its first fill of Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil and is driven 200 to 350 miles, a look at the crankcase gauge shows that about one quart of oil is apparently missing . . . but

Fact No. 2—These same people have noticed that on the second and later fillings with Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil, scarcely a drop of oil will disappear during the first 350 miles and practically none at 500 and up to 1,000 miles!

THE above facts have been checked by actual tests with cars that use six quarts of oil for the crankcase, cars in good mechanical condition and driven at ordinary rates of speed. These facts will also prove true for your car, in proportion to the amount of oil your crankcase usually holds, your car's mechanical condition and the speeds at which you drive.

What becomes of the "hidden quart"? The answer is easy if you study the Facts given above and keep in mind the things that only Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil can do. The explanation of the whereabouts of the "hidden quart" is simple — no technical knowledge of motors or oil is necessary.

THE QUESTION
"What becomes of the 'hidden quart' and how does this quart benefit the motorist" ?

Remember — The "hidden quart" of Germ Processed Oil does not escape through leakage . . . does not burn up, wear out nor evaporate. It is "present but unaccounted for." Fact No. 2, given above, proves all this.

After you've found where the "hidden quart" goes, you can easily see the special benefits it gives the motorist—advantages that no other oil can give.

Ask at any Conoco Station or Conoco Dealer for free entry blank, which contains information about Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil that may help you win. Conoco Station and Dealer employees will gladly answer your questions. Remember, you do not have to buy anything to enter this contest. . . Any Conoco Station or Conoco Dealer will give you, free of charge, a convenient Official Contest Entry Blank for writing your answer.

Answers written on one side only of any plain white paper will be accepted as accredited entries in the contest. But we recommend that you secure an Official Contest Entry Blank, which gives valuable information about Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil and its operation in motors—clues about the "hidden quart" that may help you write an answer that will win a prize.

OWNERSHIP OF HOMES.

President Hoover has formulated a plan of huge proportions for the promotion of home ownership and home building. Two objectives may be obtained by this plan in one stroke. Business in all branches should be stimulated, and thousands of families should be assisted in their efforts to acquire homes.

While the new Hoover plan was announced at the White House on Tuesday, this was not the beginning of a dream. The idea had its origin some twelve months ago, when the President called upon outstanding agencies, all interested in the various complicated details of real estate transfers, building and banking, to make preliminary surveys in their own fields to the end that the people might profit.

In December a thousand delegates will come to Washington to place their findings before each other and draw up practical methods for facilitating home building. There are, as the President knows, many difficulties in the pathway of those who would own their own homes. The charges and surcharges placed upon transactions relating to titles have become costly and complicated. Mr. Hoover hopes to eliminate some of the faults to be found in the process of home ownership. He would open avenues of credit for reliable citizens who are trying to become home owners.

There is no doubt that the agencies called upon by the President will find a way to enable the average man to purchase his own home, on terms that are not prohibitive.

The President put his finger on a very vital spot in the whole process of home owning when he said that "the present depression has given emphasis to the fact that the credit system in home building is not as satisfactorily organized as other branches of credit. • • • In the period of expansion preceding the current depression rates for second mortgages, including commissions, discounts and other charges, rose in many cities to the equivalent of 20 or 25 per cent per annum. This not only stifled home ownership, but led to the loss of many homes through foreclosure."

With that one point in mind, and the elimination of evils that have, in some quarters, attended the injudicious purchase of homes, it is inconceivable that the plan of President Hoover will fail; for it enlists the support of all who wish to promote the building of the Nation on a firmer and more solid foundation and to set many men to work in the creation of homes.

The sound of the carpenter's hammer is sweet music in the land, played to the accompaniment of the swish of mortar from the bricklayer's trowel—a symphony that ends with affectionate fathers and mothers watching little children at play on lawns in front of their own homes.

DR. CURTIUS' BLUNDER.

Dr. Julius Curtius, foreign minister of Germany, surprised the world with his radical warning against any attempt to revive reparations payments at the expiration of the Hoover moratorium. Speaking before the League of Nations assembly at Geneva, his voice rang with challenges that are frequently heard from followers of Adolf Hitler. The man whose former good judgment and conservative policies have been a large factor in saving Germany from an economic collapse has now made a blunder which brings his further usefulness to the German government into question.

The explanation for this sudden outburst of radicalism was hinted at in Dr. Curtius' address. He considers himself on trial before German public opinion, with the odds against him. Dr. Curtius has become a victim of popular resentment in Germany over failure of the Austro-German customs union project. The Reich regards this defeat as a great diplomatic humiliation. Neither Dr. Curtius nor any one else could have saved the proposed customs pact with the European situation as it is, but the public is determined to punish some one. Dr. Curtius, seeing the handwriting on the wall, took advantage of his opportunity at Geneva to placate the German radicals who are threatening him.

It is unfortunate that Dr. Curtius has seen fit to kowtow to radical opinion at a time when a rapprochement with France was considered imminent. Premier Laval and Foreign Minister Briand are preparing to visit Berlin in the hope of promoting a settlement of some of the problems that keep France and Germany antagonistic. Dr. Curtius' tactless address virtually closes the door to these negotiations, at least for the present.

This sudden change in Dr. Curtius' attitude is especially unfortunate, because he has been regarded as the leading advocate of the Stresemann policy of international cooperation on the part of Germany. Apparently he has abandoned his principles and given up the hope of solving Germany's problems through amicable diplomacy to save himself from the maelstrom of public opinion.

The effect of Dr. Curtius' address will be to encourage the irresponsible element in Germany. If the Reich takes the counsel of radicalism its recovery from the depression and the effects of the war can only be prolonged. Germany is in no position to make arbitrary demands. Dr. Curtius' appeal to the grandstand impairs the confidence of other governments in him, and in the end will probably weaken his position with the German people.

A REAL DEMOCRAT.

Gov. Ritchie of Maryland refuses to allow the fine old traditions of the Democratic party to die. While some so-called spokesmen of Democracy are demanding that the Government enter the field of public utilities in competition with its citizens, and that the Government undertake relief work which is a peculiar responsibility of the States, Gov. Ritchie stands out boldly for an "irreducible minimum of legislative interference in every field of human effort." His address before the American Bar Association stamps Maryland's governor as a true follower of Jefferson and a real leader of the Democratic party.

"Government ownership of the power industry would make us political slaves of the Federal Government," the governor said. "By that I mean that it would result in a political machine staggering in its magnitude. That is what has happened in Ontario. It would just as surely happen in this country."

The Democratic party professes to believe in decentralization of government. Traditionally the party abhors bureaucracy. Yet most of the socialistic legislation that has been proposed on Capitol Hill in recent years has either been sponsored by Democrats or has drawn liberal support from that party. In many instances Democrats have fallen in line with bureaucratic legislation promoted by renegade Republicans with apparently no other purpose than to embarrass President Hoover. The Norris bill to put the Government into the power business at Muscle Shoals, which was passed in both houses by Democratic votes and vetoed by the President, is a classic example.

Weaklings in Congress have been willing to surrender principles in order that they might bestow special favors upon their constituents or hinder constructive measures sponsored by the administration. They have virtually robbed the Democratic party of its reputation as a champion of States' rights. When a stalwart like Gov. Ritchie reminds the public of fundamental Democratic principles he throws into sharp relief the average politician who claims to be a follower of Jefferson and then sacrifices all of Jefferson's principles.

Gov. Ritchie has given his party a text that might well be its guide through the coming session of Congress. He says:

> Government interference in human affairs means an excess of power. It means bureaucratic centralization and sterilization and undue impairment of individual rights and liberties. In business it becomes more of an incubus than a help. It can hector and harass so much easier than it can guide and guard. It can so readily do more harm than good, even where only good is intended.

If the Democratic party held to the principles in which it pretends to believe it could not join forces with insurgents and radicals in socialistic ventures, and it would not play politics so recklessly in Congress. Its ventures in radicalism and its partisan obstruction of efforts intended to protect the citizen against governmental bureaucracy have greatly damaged its prestige. It gains no new adherents when it departs from Jeffersonianism, because real radicals are radicals still, and not Democrats. As for insurgent Republicans, they are always glad to make tools of Democrats, but they will betray the Democrat party whenever they can, just as they betray the Republican party.

Gov. Ritchie's voice sounds like the voice of one of the fathers of the Republic. It may be a voice crying in the wilderness of modern political manias, but it is authentic just the same. If the Democratic party is to hold together and be prepared to take over the responsibility of governing the United States it must shake off the Communists and grafters who are trying to gain control of it. To the extent that these vicious elements are strong in the Democratic party, the party itself loses the confidence of the people.

BRITAIN'S NAVY.

For the first time in centuries the crews of a British fleet became recalcitrant this week on account of a reduction in pay, and put a stop to projected maneuvers.

As mistress of the sea Great Britain takes exceeding pride in its navy. Anything affecting the welfare or the loyalty of the navy is given first consideration. Hence there was no time lost in getting to the root of the present trouble—a strike that was not exactly mutiny, since the sailors voiced their loyalty to the king, but quit work as a protest against the cut in wages.

All England, from his majesty down, has suffered scrimped salaries. The balancing of the budget has reached into every possible corner. Taxes are raised to the nth degree. Sacrifices are spread all along the line. The navy could not be exempted. But evidently some adjustment must be made. In the end British sailormen will be found, where they have always stood, before the mast; but the incipient revolt, which has caused concern even on this side of the Atlantic, may have far-reaching results. It may show, and in no uncertain terms, that the day has arrived when the upkeep of a great navy, such as England has always demanded, and claims it must expand for safety's sake, is far too big a burden on the backs of a people already taxed to a staggering degree. If this happens and there is a let-down in the race for supremacy on the seas, with England breaking its neck to set the pace, the revolt at Invergordon may not have been such a bad thing in itself.

Ramsay MacDonald was never a "big navy" man, and MacDonald is now at the head of the king's government. A word from him will go a long way toward making not only a new wage adjustment for the British navy, but fresh emphasis upon the world plan for reduction of armaments that has interested the major powers of the earth for so many years.

No one denies that Great Britain must have a navy, and a good one, but when the navy has grown so large that its personnel can not be paid without deranging the exchequer, and when the personnel of the navy revolts against a cut in pay, it would seem that the time has come for serious consideration of Britain's attempt to expand her navy. The threatened mutiny may result in curtailment of construction now under way and other unnecessary expenditures, even if it means putting some ships in drydock.

After all these years John Bull knows how to handle his navy, so there is little concern felt over any red activities in the ranks of those who wear the blue. By reducing naval construction instead of navy pay the problem may be solved. Such a solution fits in admirably with the world-wide call for reduction of the heavy tax resulting from overgrown armaments.

WALKER AND GANDHI.

James J. Walker, Mayor of New York City, had a date to meet Mahatma Gandhi at Kingsley Hall Settlement House in London. An hour past the appointment time, and Mr. Walker failed to grace the presence of the little lion of the loin-cloth. Two hours, and it was learned that the sartorially splendid Mr. Walker had decided to spend the evening seeing London's night life.

What must have been an acute disappointment to the mahatma was turned into a joyous occasion for the mayor, for he had nothing whatsoever to learn from the holy man of India, so far as clothes is concerned, whereas in a strictly night club atmosphere the Mayor of New York was right at home in dear old London.

It's a pity that these two extremes in fashion did not meet—the mahatma with his scanty array, and the mayor with his debonair double-breasted tuxedo, with wide flange to the lapels, razor-edge trousers, neatly pointed pumps, cane and opera hat.

MEASUREMENT OF NOISE

From the London Times.

We have all heard of noise. At quite an early stage in our earthly pilgrimage a special connection between noise and ourselves was more than hinted at, and as the years have passed we have gradually changed from being accomplices to being judges. It is one of the privileges of being grown up to be able to adjudicate upon noise, and to declare that it is intolerable and simply must be stopped.

It is a comfort in middle age to have science upon one's side, and to hear that the instruments have been invented which can measure noise exactly. No longer will it be possible for the more self-assured of the young to enter the room with blatant lies upon their lips, denying that in fact they were making any particular noise. The men of science now know how to measure noise with extreme exactitude, and recently Nature had an article from the pen of Dr. Kaye, the noise-measurer, which tabulates all noises which must put a man off his work, from the rumbling of a tram car to the snarling of a Bengal tiger.

Noise is so real a menace to life today that a special means of measuring it has had to be invented, a means called decibels, by which intensity of noise can be measured. Seventy decibels means that seven noughts follow, that is to say that the intensity is 70,000,000 strong, while 30 decibels means that no more than three noughts follow—a paltry 1,000 intensities of vibration.

Armed with this measuring rod, so well suited to geometrical progression, the man of science can prepare his tables and can show that whispering is really very much more polite than thunder or church bells, because whispering, when measured at a distance of 5 feet, yields 10 to 40 decibels of noise, while church bells yield 60 decibels, and thunder 65. Thunder is just the same, in the eyes of science, as the dog barking, which is also 65 decibels, but science shows that we have reason to be thankful for our dogs, and for not living in the jungle, because the Bengal tiger snarling at a distance of 15 feet registers 75 decibels, and the Siberian tiger roaring no less than 7 feet away registers 80 decibels, while a lion roaring (in the New York Zoo, at 18 feet) has no difficulty in showing 85 decibels on the score.

This last figure is exactly the same as the figure yielded by Niagara Falls when tested at the loudest spot. Such noises are, as is only to be expected, considerably less than some noises very much more familiar. The pneumatic drill, which we all hear in the streets, registers 90 decibels, or 9,000,000,000 intensities, and so does the printing press-room in whose proximity journalists do their deep and thoughtful work and formulate their judgments upon the state. As for airplane cabins ("at least a thousand times noisier than an express train," says the report), the noise inside them is anything from 80 to 110 decibels, intensities of noise so shattering that they explain immediately why so many people ride in airplanes once, and no more than once.

Where the new measurements are likely to prove particularly valuable is in those chronic railway car controversies. Victory will now rest with the traveler who knows his science. It has been established that opening the car window increases the sound by 5 decibels for every 10 miles an hour in the speed. One of the chief methods of measurement in use is to collect the sound in a cloth and then to measure the amount of heat generated, a method which presents some difficulty when it is desired to place upon permanent record the degree of angry loudness of some dissatisfied visitor, whose lack of an accommodating spirit further shows itself in an unwillingness to give an encore for the benefit of science. But though there are these troubles in individual cases, noise is such an intimate friend today that we must be glad of any news of how it is getting on, as it undoubtedly is. Even if the measurements seem strange and do not seem to allow enough for sheer aggravation, at any rate it is much to know that we are on measuring terms with something which plays so great a part in all our lives.

POST HASTE.

If the American Legion does not realize that both fair play and political expediency will cause a different attitude in Congress next winter from that of last winter toward further bonus appropriations, it will pull a boner at Detroit.

Gandhi will not be required to perform an obeisance before King George at his audience. He will just raise both hands. In Indian that means hold your base, and in English, surrender. Everybody satisfied.

Delay in passing a cotton acreage restriction law in Texas brought the charge from Gov. Long of Louisiana that the Legislature had been bought off by the cotton brokers. The Lone Star howls can be heard at any west window.

Japan required a good many swift kicks to make her realize the desirability of granting Pangborn and Herndon a flying permit "in the interest of international friendship."

Reciprocal settlement of German and American war claims will be compromised—as usual. German claims are to be paid now and Germany will pay American claims—some time.

New York is so poor this year that opening seats for the "Scandals" are only bringing $100 each.

Much irresponsible talk about a running mate for Herbert next year calls for the prediction that by convention time one good, reliable Charley will outclass all the young Twenty Grands in the paddock, and he won't abandon the National Handicap for a State fair premium, either, if you know what we mean.

Now is the time to draw diagrams on the business highway, like street intersections in Washington, so that by the time the traffic is heavy again they will

"Shine by the side of every path we tread
With such a luster, he that runs may read."

California towns are refusing Tom Heflin permits to speak. This is serious. He may come back to the Senate if not allowed to blow off steam elsewhere.

When Gov. Ritchie sets out to scalp Government ownership propagandists he does a neat job and doesn't stop to ask whether they are Democrats or Progressives.

When free trader Sir John Simon decides that a tariff is a "necessary step in Britain's economic emergency, to put at once some block in the way of free imports," he delivers a blow that is felt in the most exclusive Democratic circles in this country.

It is distressing to see the dignified Senator Gore trying to become a wisecracker.

British fleet maneuvers were abandoned because the sailors developed a Chile feeling in the North Sea.

THE SULLEN MOUNTAIN.

He built a mountain of his loss
Which he could never see across.

His lofty pinnacle of woe,
Was crested with perpetual snow.

Gray rock and gaunt sides sparsely clad
Told grimly of the grief he'd had.

Where'er he turned from day to day
The sullen mountain blocked his way.

Stranger and neighbor he'd accost
With: "Stand and see how much I've Lost!"

Then came an old man gray and wise
Who on the mountain cast his eyes.

"Friend," he exclaimed "you should be glad
So many blessings to have had!

"You've built a mountain, towering tall,
Of joys I've never known at all!"

A Camel Improves on Closer Acquaintance Only If You Are a Camel

By ROBERT QUILLEN

PHYSICIANS in charge of the diagnostic hospital for veterans at Washington know the value of congeniality. They do not handicap sick men by forcing them to associate with fellow patients with whom they have nothing in common except affliction.

When a man enters the hospital, his examination includes questions concerning his tastes, hobbies, likes and dislikes, and he is then assigned to a ward occupied by men of his own kind.

A visitor entering one room finds every man in it playing games; in another the men are talking, laughing, "kidding" one another; in a third there is complete silence and every occupant is absorbed in a book.

How much misery and tragedy could be avoided if a similar wisdom guided youth in the choice of mates.

It is commonly supposed that the success or failure of marriage depends on love, but no love is great enough to bind two people who have no tastes or standards in common.

The pity of it is that love feeds on imagination and often leads its victims to the altar before they discover the reality that destroys it.

The cause of love is nine parts youth and one part propinquity. Young people in love may think they were made for one another, but the unromantic truth is that they fall in love because chance or parental design brought them often together.

If they fell in love quickly, without having time to compare tastes, only the rarest good fortune can make them happy together in the intimacy of marriage—unless they are young enough to develop new tastes in common.

Once love is awakened, it is too late to consult reason. For good or ill, the ship has sailed.

Wherefore it behooves parents old-fashioned enough to have influence, and youngsters modern enough to have brains, to make discovery of congenial tastes before risking the propinquity that may result in love.

It is easy, when one is young, to love a soft and slender body, graceful ankles and perfect teeth. It is easy, if one is a girl, to love curly hair and cleft chin, strong hands and a deep chest. But the things that awaken love seldom are enough to maintain it.

Neither beauty nor wit can make comradeship endurable if one mate scorns and abominates the pastimes, faiths and appetites dear to the heart of the other.

Before surrendering to a garment in a show window, you should try it on to see how it fits.

PRO AND CON

Government Interference.

Chicago Tribune.

A glance at the condition of business in this country reveals the fact that the industries which appear to be suffering most acutely are precisely the industries in which Government interference has been most pronounced. Perhaps it would be unfair to conclude that Government interference is ruinous to any business, but the coincidence is too striking to be ignored.

To be sure, agriculture was in an unhealthy condition when the Government stepped in, but it is now apparent that all that the Government has been able to do is make matters worse. Had there been no Farm Board a year ago the price of wheat and cotton would have dropped until our 1930 wheat and cotton had moved into consumption either here or abroad. There would have been no such surpluses crowding the warehouses to greet the 1931 crops as now exist. With a smaller supply on hand today prices would be higher than they are, and, without a meddlesome Government to fear, speculative buying would have been encouraged. Whatever benefits were conferred on the farmers by the Farm Board's operation a year ago have been more than canceled by the existence of the Farm Board and its surpluses today. Agriculture is plainly suffering from Government interference.

Possibilities.

Boston Globe.

Vice President Curtis is keeping his plans for 1932 very much to himself. He may run for his present office again and he may prefer to run for senator. It is just possible he may not be elected to any office.

Hard Luck for Tom.

Heflin should be getting used to being denied by this time. Alabama removed him from the floor of the Senate and now California forbids him to speak.

A Political Feint.

New York Times.

Reports from Washington that dissatisfied Republicans are now looking about for a man to contest the party nomination with President Hoover sound like bulletins from a defeated army. All is not lost. A timely diversion may yet confuse and baffle the apparently triumphant enemy. A new commander will strengthen the morale of the dispirited troops. But the trouble is that, when these military analogies are applied to a political campaign, the bottom drops out of it. For the Progressive Republicans opposed to Mr. Hoover start out by admitting that they have no idea of being able to prevent his nomination. Nor do they think of forming a third party. Their only hope is that, by acting as a unit in opposition, they rally more than a beggarly array of delegates at the national convention and so prove that they are a power to be reckoned with.

Borah Is Willing.

Senator Borah, who has been playing a lone hand in politics for many years, is suspected of having presidential ambitions. Some of his admirers in Virginia have organized "Borah-for-President" clubs, and the senator did not disguise his gratification over this tribute to his popularity.

Senator Borah's chances of defeating President Hoover for the nomination are not much better than the chances of Gov. Pinchot, who also is a receptive candidate.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

British Laugh at American Labor Passing Over Economic Problems to Put Trust in Beer.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Neither hysterical sobs nor appeals to primitive appetites can solve our present economic troubles. But common sense and courage can. Salvation by way of catering to appetite features the recent cries for a restoration of wines and beer as a means of revenue, and their superficiality is well illustrated by the comment from the Manchester Guardian, of England, on the probeer resolution recently adopted by the A. F. of L. Here are the words:

"The American Federation of Labor has in its time reached some unlikely decisions, but few seem stranger than the one arrived at in their recent convention, when the A. F. of L. delegates went on record as favoring the manufacture of light wines and beer as the chief plank in their program for the relief of unemployment."

After a sufficiently sarcastic reference to the numbers of farmers, teamsters, brewers, barrelmakers and bartenders that the federation hoped to absorb back into industry "in the revival of prosperity," the writer sums up thus: "The whole thing throws a terrifying light on American politics. In a crisis like the present the leaders of organized labor have a heaven-sent opportunity to press forward for economic reform, unemployment insurance, better labor exchanges, shorter working hours, lower tariffs, higher social service, or what not—but they put their trust in beer!"

This editorial of August 11 is the voice of experience, and hardly complimentary to our American labor intelligence. Does it not remind us of the wise remarks of Robbie Burns, "O wad some power the giftie gie us
To see oorsels as ithers see us,
It wad frae mony a blunder free us
And foolish notion!"

Writer Pictures the Inevitable Results of Nepotism in Business or Government

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Anent the reference to officials putting wives and daughters on the congressional payroll, the writer remembers a significant incident that occurred under his observation.

In a suburb of the city in which he lived at the time was an extensive iron furnace that had not been prospering for years. After long-continued agitation the stockholders finally made a thorough investigation to try to find out what was the trouble.

The general manager was a man of big business and an outstanding citizen of the community who was regarded above suspicion. A careful survey revealed the fact that about 75 per cent of the operatives of the plant were relatives of the general manager and many of them trifling fellows. There followed a wholesome house-cleaning and even the general manager lost his position. The furnace went steadily on to a period of prosperity.

Wherever unjustifiable selfishness is eliminated and sound humanitarian business principles are complied with, there will be satisfaction.

W. B. WITHERSPOON.

Horrors of Democratic Rule Are Pictured by Imaginative Citizen.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Democratic senators who are making their stupid attacks on the tariff law of 1930 must undoubtedly be monomaniacs, for they seem unable to talk or think about anything else; that is, if they are capable of thinking. I can picture conditions that would exist if the Democratic party had had continuous control of the Government for the last 70 years. The farmer would have a standard of living on par with the European peasant. Labor would have a 12 or 15 hour day at 50 cents per day. Autos, radios and other articles now in reach of every one could only be afforded by the wealthy. Due to low tariffs our industries would rank third or fourth, with the industries of England and Germany controlling the world's trade. We would have no good roads and few schools, for the States could not raise revenue to pay for them.

Yet the Democratic slogan is, "The greatest good for the greatest number." When they are in power money is drawn from circulation by the bankers and business leaders, for they know that it would be impossible to compete with the foreign industries who would flood our Nation with their products made by cheap labor.

Roosevelt Considered a Good Navy the Surest Guarantee of Peace.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial in regard to Chairman Wood brings to mind the following quotation from our late esteemed President Theodore Roosevelt, which Chairman Wood has never seen, I judge.

President Roosevelt wrote: "We are a very rich country, vast in extent of territory and great in population. A country moreover, which has an Army diminutive indeed when compared with any of the other first-class powers. We have deliberately made our own foreign policies, which demand the possession of a first-class Navy. A good Navy is not a provocation of war. It is the surest guarantee of peace." DANIEL GOODFELLOW.

Former Service Man Protests Against Federal Sales Tax.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I note that a proposition was made in your paper to put a tax on purchases to cover the present deficit. I do not think this is a good idea.

Our fellow citizens who get their living by clipping coupons no doubt think this the ideal way. The great number of men who took part in the war have a different way of thinking. The people with money and assets must pay the bill. We protected their holdings, now they must protect us.

3 GANGMEN KILLED; RIVALS ARE BLAMED

Detroit Hoodlums Are Slain After Ignoring Warning; Warfare Expected.

Detroit, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Three members of Detroit's once notorious purple gang who, police say, refused to heed a gangland warning, were shot to death in a quiet apartment house this afternoon in what police fear is a new outbreak of underworld warfare.

Fifteen shots were fired by the killers, believed to number four, who then fled down a rear stairway and escaped in a sedan which awaited them in an alley.

The victims were identified by police as Herman Paul, 31; Joe Lebovitz, alias Jewell, 31, and Joe Sutker, 28. Police said they were operators of a handbook agency and were attempting to invade the liquor racket. All had police records.

Each was shot through the back of the head. The bodies were found, face down, one in the bathroom, one in the hallway and the third in a bedroom, as if they had attempted desperately to escape after the first shots were fired.

Checking Guise Theory.

Police were checking a theory that the three victims and a fourth man whose identity is not known, had been picked up by the killers elsewhere and taken to the apartment, possibly under the guise of a conference.

The fourth man, according to this theory, either talked his way out of the fate which his companions met or was a decoy in the confidence of the killers.

Clutched in the hands of the dead men were freshly lighted cigars, giving added support to the theory that a conference had been begun. A phonograph had stopped in the middle of a "blues" record.

The apartment was rented by a man giving his name as James Regis, on September 1. Other tenants said there had been no signs of activity since then.

Rooms Ideally Situated.

The rooms were ideally situated for an assassination. They were at the rear of the building on the second floor, and with the rear stairway leading to the alley close at hand. The building is at 1740 Collingwood avenue, in the heart of a quiet residential neighborhood.

The caretaker, Frank Holt, tentatively identified one of the dead men as Regis.

There were only slender clews as to the identities of the assassins. Even the number of men in the killer band was in doubt, some witnesses claiming to have seen four men run down the stairway to where a fifth man was seated at the wheel of a sedan. Others said no one was in the car.

Carter, at Typographical Convention, Favors 5-Day Week.

Boston, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Long Beach, Calif.; Asheville, N. C.; and Washington were nominated today at the convention of the International Typographical Union for choice as the 1932 convention city.

The convention rejected a resolution under which the union laws would be changed to provide the general president should furnish international assistance immediately on the appeal of any local union engaged in a wage dispute or other grievance with employers.

George H. Carter, of Washington, public printer, told the convention he favored the five-day week in industry.

Grave Caretaker Reports Gold Find

Two Deposits Discovered in Blue Ridge Near Hoover Camp.

Waynesboro, Va., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Discovery of gold in the Blue Ridge Mountains above Luray, Page County, is claimed by a resident of Luray.

The claimant to the gold finding is Henry Alger, caretaker of a cemetery, who formerly lived in the mountains. He says there are two deposits, one one each side of the road leading toward the Hoover camp from the mountain top.

Alger said that the two deposits are a mile and a half from the camp, and that he has specimens of the gold, which has been assayed and found to run $4 to the ton. The locations are in the Shenandoah National Park area. He has offered to lead prospectors to the locations.

Von Steuben Will Be Guest At Yorktown

Major Is a Collateral Descendent of Hero in Revolution.

Impressive names are added daily to the list of delegates to next month's anniversary celebration of the Cornwallis surrender, to be staged at Yorktown, Va. The most recent addition to the group is the distinguished Maj. Fritz von Steuben, collateral descendant of Baron von Steuben, of American Revolutionary fame, who will come here as a guest of the Government. With his wife, he will sail for New York aboard the Bremen, October 7.

A visit to Washington will doubtless be included in the itinerary of Maj. and Frau von Steuben during their sojourn in this country, in which case they will be guests at the German embassy. Both the German and French embassies will claim the spotlight in connection with the Yorktown celebration, for the latter embassy will house a distinguished group of delegates from France during their visit to the capital.

Maj. von Steuben is one of the most colorful figures in German life. He lives on his estate near Griefswald, Pomerania, and is a typical representative of the Pomeranian landed gentry. Now 50 years old, he served in the army during the World War.

He, incidentally, is a godson of James G. Blaine, Secretary of State in the Harrison administration, and his father visited the United States as a guest of the Government in 1881.

By ROBERT D. HEINL

OUT of the welter of discussion of the proposed radio patent pool, three different and distinct points of view are emerging, according to O. H. Caldwell, former Federal Radio Commissioner.

1. Threatened with a gun at their heads, in the form of the Department of Justice suit, accompanied by the menace of staggering fines, the Radio Corporation group have been giving careful consideration to the "open pool" proposed by the Government's agent, Judge Olney.

2. The independent radio manufacturers want a pool, but a pool limited to their own or present industry membership. An "open pool," they insist, would throw the radio business indeed "open" to every outside manufacturer who ever took a whim to enter radio as a side-line, thus compounding the present situation of too many factories and too much production.

3. The radio inventors claim that unless the proposed pool machinery is carefully designed, the inventor would have only one prospective customer to whom to take his future inventions, the pool monopoly, and that such concentration of patent buying power would leave little opportunity for incentive or reward for invention.

Here are the three conflicting viewpoints which must, in the end, be coordinated—and a compromise reached—in the interest of the public, which is the ultimate customer to be served.

IT is good news to learn that the forthcoming concerts of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, sponsored by Philco, are to be broadcast direct from the stage of the Academy of Music in Philadelphia. This is one of the finest auditoriums acoustically speaking in the United States. Likewise, the full orchestra, which is something over 100 musicians will be heard. It will be a broadcast of a regularly scheduled concert hall appearance of the orchestra with a real audience to add a background of natural enthusiasm with which the performances of this great orchestra are received.

Last winter Mr. Stokowski tried the experiment of broadcasting from New York with only 50 musicians. Not only were the acoustics not as good, but nothing like the volume of the full orchestra came through. The first of the six concerts will be heard October 12 over Columbia and will last an hour and three-quarters, beginning at 8:15 o'clock in the evening.

AFTER seven years as an announcer at Station WRC, George F. Ross, who was better known perhaps as a staff pianist and organist, has severed his connection in order to conduct a school in the "Art of Broadcasting," with studios in Stoneleigh Court.

The preparation for broadcasting will be carried on in several departments. Piano and voice instruction will be given by Mr. Ross; pipe organ, Marguerite Allan Ross; spoken word, Hester Walker Beall, and violin, Harold Veo.

Mr. Ross believes that Washington has many amateurs who need just a little coaching and an understanding of microphone technique to be potential air stars. His studios will be fitted with regular radio studio equipment so that when the pupils actually go on the air they will be perfectly at home.

Closely associated with broadcasting almost since its inception here, Mr. Ross has played hundreds upon hundreds of hours on the air, either at the piano or the organ. When a multiple system of lines was almost unknown, he often had to take the air unexpectedly, sometimes playing for two or three hours until repairs had been made in the lines. It was not unusual for Mr. Ross and "Bill" Sweets to gather in a group of entertainers and provide the whole evening's entertainment.

The special events broadcasting staff of the NBC will arrive in Akron, Ohio, this morning to await the initial flight of the U. S. S. Akron. The dirigible may take the air the latter part of this week or early next week.

Massenet is the hero of the Dramatic Musicale tonight (WRC, 8 o'clock). Jaffrey Harris' symphony orchestra will be assisted by three soloists and a male quartet in presenting the works of this famous French composer.

A program under auspices of the Uniformed Firemen's Association of Greater New York will be broadcast (WMAL, 2:15 this afternoon) on behalf of their campaign for an eight-hour working day.

The "Mystery of the Speckled Band" will be revived tonight for the first performance this season, as Dr. Watson recounts his experiences with Sherlock Holmes (WRC, 8:30 p. m.).

"HOW times have changed," sighed Arthur Pryor, jr., the other day while directing a rehearsal of "The March of Time." He recalled the first occasion on which he was ever in a broadcasting studio. He was playing in his father's band. The engineer assigned to the program was Eddie Cohan, who is now Columbia's technical director. The announcer was Jules Seebach, who now is program director of the Columbia chain.—Columbia Press Notice.

This was our first knowledge that Arthur Pryor, jr., has been directing "The March of Time," and explains a great deal. Mr. Pryor, like his father, is a genius in his line and his work in "The March of Time" speaks for itself. It is our contention that it is infinitely more difficult for the son of a famous father to make good than an ordinary mortal.

Likewise, Jules Seebach is another bright and shining star behind the scenes in radio. The program director gets all the knocks if a performance is a failure but if it is a success, the artist, who has had the advantage of competent coaching, usually receives the credit. The program director is frequently congratulated in the studio, but seldom sees his name in the electric lights.

Ernest Charles, young composer of several songs used exclusively by John Charles Thomas, will be guest soloist with Rudolf Schramm's orchestra during the Gas Hour (WRC, 10 o'clock tonight). Mr. Charles is appearing with Lew Pollack, song writer, at the Earle during this week.

TWO-WAY transatlantic telephone conversation was broadcast during the Chesapeake & Potomac "Music Along the Wires" premiere last Sunday. • • • John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President in 1924, will be the principal speaker at the unveiling of a bust of Thomas Jefferson at Richmond, Va., next Tuesday. • • • A series of international broadcasts presenting world authorities in a discussion of "What I Would Do With the World" will begin September 26. The first spokesman will be H. G. Wells. • • • Important races scheduled at Belmont Park will be described over WMAL during the rest of the week. • • • New England's oldest radio station, WBZ, will celebrate its tenth anniversary with special programs tomorrow night. • • • Aviation Night will be celebrated from Memphis, Tenn., in an hour's program Monday night.

Jane Interprets the Mode

New York, Sept. 16.

IF you're not sure—don't! Because, if you do, you'll be sorry and the people who have to look at you will be the sorrier. Don't do what? Don't, my deahs, yield to the lure of wearing any of the various forms of little peplums that have come in with all the rest of the autumn styles, for they are attractive only on a slender, perfectly formed woman.

Afternoon frocks and evening dresses both have made use of back drapings and bows and peplum panels—and veyr quaint and lovely they are, too, if they are worn by a slender, graceful young thing, whose slender youth can carry such dangerous aids to fashion attractively. But for those of us who are large across the hips or across the back, or who are short, these peplums are definitely bad. They cut us off and make us look shorter and broader than we are. And this autumn brought with it such quantities of unusual lines, we can easily suit our own type of figure the while we retain our last-minute smartness!

• • • •

The Beauty Sorceress.

"Little Miss Muffett, sitting down the way you do on your tuffet—I can't help noticing you—er—r—r limbs! Not only are they graceful, but they're absolutely hair-free!"

'If you will be rude enough to comment on personal details, my dear, you don't deserve to hear why I have no hair on my legs in spite of summer sun, which stimulates and darkens hair growth! But as there are lots of people who should know, I'll tell you! First, I remove the hair growth with a good depilatory, or by shaving——"

"But doesn't that make the hair reappear and get thicker and more bristly?"

"You interrupted me! After the hair has been removed completely the first time, I take with me when I'm in the bathtub—every single time—a pumice stone. And I scrub my legs hard with this pumice stone every day—'n' so, the hair never gets the chance to reappear. The only thing to be careful about is not to scrub so hard with the pumice that it takes the skin off along with the hair!"

• • • •

Oh-o-o-o-o, what is the gorlicious ladyee wearing today? Why, a negligee et commo! All black chiffon, interspersed and lined with pink chiffon, to be sure—all tightly tied at the normal waistline, with a sash affair that trails—and high necked with black sash ends that float 'n' float. Well, and sleeves and little "shoos" of pink and black at the wrists. And her negligee is worn over either a pink satin nightgown, or well, watch next week for the black chiffon pyjamas that this negligee really belongs to!

• • • •

I wonder if a lovely lady has ever had as many collars and cuffs as she really wanted? 'N' even if she had, it wouldn't do her much good this autumn when collars and cuffs are so vitally important on all daytime dresses—and so totally ifferent from any ever seen before! And expensive? Wel-l-l, just price a few to find out. Just the same, your own Dah-ray knows that you never can have enough, so she sat her down and made a leaflet brimfull of new collar-and-cuff ideas—and all you have to do to get this is to send your stamped, self-addressed envelope right off to the Dare department of The Post for this leaflet.

Au revoir!

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

POOR BACH!

THE girls are out gunning for "Bach," that noble experimenter who recently wrote us of his grand gesture in "taking the decision out of the woman's hands," leaving the girl whose "emotional upheaval" he felt would cause her to share his poverty if the choice were hers. Now from the depths of an arm chair on easy street, Bach congratulates himself that during the 12 years of struggle that brought him to his goal, he was not hampered by the emotional one, who is now the wife of another man. Bach crowned all this with the statement that there would never be any other woman. His was an undying love. Instead of reverently placing any laurels upon this brave spirit's brow, we felt a strong urge to weave him a crown of goat feathers. And now some of the readers offer a few well-chosen comments:

Dear Frances McDonald: I've read your column since the day it started and have boiled and beamed mentally many times, but "Bach's" letter gets a rise out of me. Whew! That girl can thank her lucky stars that she didn't have a chance to marry such a cold creature as he declares himself to be, evidently entirely immune to "emotional upheavals." Any man who goes with a girl long enough to arouse her emotions to the state where she is incapable of deciding her own affairs without its affecting his emotions or judgment is too much of an iceberg for a normal woman.

He is selfish rather than "true" and doesn't want to share "easy street" any more than he wanted to share the ups and downs of the climb. Would he give her the opportunity to take the chance, and stick it out through thick and thin and ride with high adventure as every human is made to do? No, sir, he kept that for himself, along with the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. Women are the mothers and makers of men—no laurels, the men get their 50-50 share of the credit when they give them the chance to be that. I say, "Bach" was selfish in cheating some woman out of that chance, and in "taking the decision out of her hands."

And conceited—he did the deciding—he climbed to easy street all by himself, he came through with flying colors, he was the intellectual, capable individual, he did it all, even to giving himself a pat on the back. Maybe the girl appreciated his prowess, but I'd much prefer the compliment to my ability and intellect that my Buddy gave me when he said, "I'm afraid it won't be easy, a tight squeeze sometimes, but it's up to you.

A GIRL WHOSE BUDDY DIDN'T LET HER DOWN.

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me how to get rid of insects on roses. MRS. A. R.

Arsenate of Lead Spray.

3 teaspoonfuls of arsenate of lead powder.
1 ounce of any liquid soap.
1 teaspoonful of nicotine sulphate.
A gallon of water.

These ingredients must be thoroughly mixed. As this formula contains poisons, they must be kept out of reach of children or other irresponsible persons.

Please tell me the name of the inclosed plant. Also tell me if it is possible to transplant seedlings of lupine. GUY H. H.

The plant you inclosed was a wildling which I do not know. Lupines dislike being moved, so they should be planted and left alone.

I fertilized a rosebush with bonemeal when in bud, now the leaves are turning yellow. Is this the usual effect of bonemeal? The bonemeal did not come in contact with the roots. MARGARET M.

The bonemeal was not responsible for the condition you describe. Better dust the plant with Massey dust, which is a mixture of nine parts of dusting sulphur and one part of lead arsenate.

Am inclosing some leaves from my rambler. Each year the bush becomes covered with this powdery substance. What is it and what is the remedy? MRS. FRANK M. W.

Your rambler has been attacked by mildew. Better dust it with Massey dust or powdered sulphur, or you may even spray it with Bordeaux mixture. See answer to Margaret M. in this column.

I have a most beautiful magnolia tree which I brought from Florida last year and planted in a lawn tub. It has now outgrown its quarters. What do you suggest? Is it hardy? MRS. J. S., JR.

Better plant your magnolia tree in some sunny place on your lawn. Unless I knew the variety, I can not say whether it will be hardy in your locality.

Please tell me the name of the plant of which I am inclosing a leaf. Also explain when is the best time to prune a honeysuckle. My husband insists on pruning it once a month. MRS. T. E. W.

You neglected to inclose the leaf. A honeysuckle, being a rank grower, must be pruned frequently. One of my gardener friends prunes his honeysuckle every time he mows his grass and his vine is always neat and grows only where he wants it to go.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

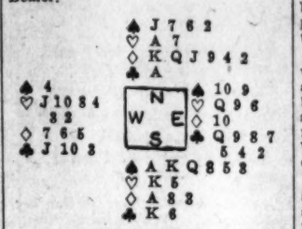
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

NARY A CRUMB OR THE LOAF.

Bidding a Grand Slam in Contract is, generally speaking, a losing proposition. If there is any excuse for the bid, it generally means that the certainty of a Small Slam has been surrendered. It is a case of either wolfing the whole loaf or having the entire meal snatched from you and being left without even a crumb.

For this reason I have never sought to lay down a system of bidding Grand Slams. Even though you hold every Ace and every King and possibly have a monopoly on the Queens as well, some Knave or maybe even a lowly trump has a habit of bobbing up to wreck your hopes and ruin your score. Occasionally, however, a hand comes along, in the dealing of which Fate has been more than passing kind and then one would be foolish indeed not to take full advantage of her fickle favors. The rewards are great in the making of a Grand Slam. Fate wisely made the risks commensurate with the rewards. Here is a hand in which the Grand Slam seemed fully biddable and when the Dummy was exposed and the first lead was not trumped, all that was necessary was for the Declarer to show his hand and claim all thirteen tricks.

North-South vulnerable. South, Dealer.



THE BIDDING.

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1♠(1)	Pass	3◇(2)	Pass
3♠(3)	Pass	4◇(4)	Pass
6◇(5)	Pass	6♠(6)	Pass
7♠(7)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—Many players would bid three spades, which would be sound. The hand has eight playing-tricks and great honor strength outside of the spade suit, but the Opening three-bid crowds the bidding to such an extent that it is likely to shut out valuable information. Opposite a trick and a half, which partner can show, this hand probably can go game, but opposite a burst it might not make even three-odd. With one more spade and one less diamond the hand certainly would have been better bid at three.

2—South now is delighted with his moderation. Game he had felt was a certainty if his partner could make any response. Picture his surprise and pleasure in finding that response a Forcing Takeout which disclosed at least 3 honor-tricks in the hand of his partner. To reach a Small Slam now is only a mere formality.

3—South can pretty accurately read the honor-trick holding of North. It must be the Ace of hearts, the King-Queen of diamonds and the Ace of clubs. Either that or North has bid with two strong biddable suits on less than the usual 3 honor-trick requirement for a jump bid. South's rebid of spades indicates greater length and possibly greater top strength than originally shown.

4—Showing rebiddable length revealing to South surely the King-Queen at the top.

5—To North this Slam bid in diamonds discloses certainly South's possession of the Ace. Most players with North's hand would now be content and pass, but North has as yet not revealed the fact that he holds adequate support for the suit with which South opened the bidding and which was strong enough for a rebid.

6—The decisive bid in the Grand Slam attempt. North probably has four spades and six diamonds. South can visualize his partner's hand as being of at least 6-4-2-1 distribution with both the Ace of hearts and the Ace of clubs, one of them a Singleton.

7—As nearly safe a Grand Slam bid as could ever be made on any hand except one played at Double-Dummy. Every Ace and King and two of the Queens are located and the others will be pounded to wreckage on the rocks of distribution.

West opened with the Knave of hearts from a perfectly hopeless holding. When East followed suit, South exposed his hand and the accountants were set to work adding up the score.

TODAY'S POINTER.

With a consecutive partner at the Bridge table, one should avoid bed rock minimum bids because such a player is temperamentally unable to visualize them and his Raises therefore are apt to be light. With an aggressive type the bidding should be light and spirited but never carried to the extreme limits of the hand. Also risky high bids which offer no escape if trapped should be absolutely avoided.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Mr. Culbertson will be glad to answer questions on bidding and play of hands sent in by readers. Address him in care of The Washington Post, inclosing a 2-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

What Today Means to You

"VIRGO."

IF September 17 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:10 a. m. to 11:15 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 4:50 p. m. and from 8:30 p. m. to 10:15 p. m. The danger hours are from noon to 1:45 p. m. and from 5 p. m. to 7:10 p. m.

Delayed or long standing activities will take a turn for the better on September 17, according to astrological indications and difficulties which hitherto have impeded progress will be overcome. The signs are not very promising for social activities, nor do they promise romance.

A child born on this September 17 will have musical and artistic taste and will be a great reader. It will be thorough, practical and very observing. It will have an affectionate nature and crave love and devotion. Without these it will be unhappy and discontented.

You, if born on September 17, have a strong, independent disposition, and, at times, are inclined to be imperious and unforgiving. You think more of yourself than is justified either by your intelligence or position and are not sufficiently democratic to be a good mixer. In early years you were always trying to ape the manners of those who you thought were better circumstanced than you. This, however, is a phase that has passed. What remains is a keen respect—bordering on veneration—for tradition and conventionality.

Your horoscope predicts a career of varying fortune, and by no manner of means an uneventful one. There is, in your make-up, a strong streak of adventure, and you will never be satisfied to travel in a rut. You will always be on the lookout for some new experience, some fresh thrill.

You have determination of character and strength of will. When you concentrate your efforts on any one thing you invariably get what you want. Your temperament is extreme, so are your likes and dislikes. You can be, and are, a good friend. You can be, and are, a bitter enemy. Many of your desires have been unfilled, because your attention has been given more to getting than to the work in hand. Your home life promises more discord than harmony.

Successful people born September 17:

Dolores Costello, film actress.
James R. Haskell, inventor.
Martin H. Glynn, former Governor of New York.
J. Peter Lesley, geologist.

POST BEACH BRINGS SUMMER JOYS NEAR

No Long Trip, No Packing for Those Who Build at Woodland.

How many times have you wished that when summer comes there would be no packing to take a long trip to get away from the city? How many times have you wished to go some place where you might loll around in the sun or shade as you pleased, with no hustle or bustle of crowds to disturb your enjoyment?

Probably plenty of times. And have you discovered that the time has come to make that wish come true? It is all very simple, for the only requirement is to become a property owner at Woodland Beach, The Washington Post summer home development on South River in Maryland and then build a cottage there.

It is not far away. Just 32 miles over good roads. It offers the rest and comfort which you have always sought, and there are recreational facilities, for just loafing becomes boresome. At the beach you will be able to swim, fish or go boating. The children will be able to play in safety and you will be surrounded by contented neighbors.

Purchase of a lot at Woodland Beach requires only $9 down together with the price of a subscription to The Washington Post. The remainder of the $93 which is the sale price of all lots may then be paid at the rate of $3.50 a month with no interest charges added.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL.

HEAT waves (before it really cools off and destroys the excuse for short paragraphs):

If you had happened upon them yesterday afternoon down around the National Theater, you would have found Leonard Bergman, producer; Myron C. Fagan, author, and Stephen E. Cochran, manager of the Rapley-Erlanger interests in the National Capital, wearing smiles broader than the economic depression over the matinee business being done by "Peter Flies High," starring Glenn Hunter. The house was sold out.

At about the same time, you might have caught the same soft of ear-to-ear grin suffusing the genial countenance of Mr. Jimmy Lake, manager of the Gayety, Adonis of the sports arenas and erstwhile actor of parts. Mr. Lake had just been to the Earle Theater where one of the short-reel screen attractions is "Screen Souvenirs," a reminder of the years when the cinema was in its babyhood. One of the integral parts of this composite film bears the title of "Jack, the Kisser," and in it, big as life and as sure as you're alive, struts Mr. Jimmy Lake, head man in the frolic. Jimmy phoned me to say that the film was made in 1908 and paved the way for his exodus from the gelatins—details to follow by first post.

But was he thrilled when he saw it after all these years!

And speaking of the Earle, Maxine Doyle, the mellifluous mistress of ceremonies, really is to leave the Capital Friday night to play that week in New York with Joe E. Brown, opening at the B. S. Moss Broadway Theater on Saturday. It will defer the celebration of her completion of a full year at the Earle one week, but it is still planned to have that party with the one candle on the cake.

Incidentally, the ingenious Miss Doyle imposed a vast responsibility upon this column yesterday when she called to make official the details of her New York engagement.

Having become apprised through the gabbiness of Don B. Reed, our pinch hitter in times of somnolent summertiming away from the typewriter and the paste pot, that a great to do was made over Ishtar, Omar, Francois and Sappho, the office goldfish, the demurer of the Doyles has intrusted Ishtar, Omar, Francois and Sappho, jr., to our care for the period of her absence on Broadway.

These four bothersome youngsters are not goldfish, to whose peculiarities we are, by this time, thoroughly inured, but four juvenile Mexican jumping beans over which we are supposed to ride herd for the next ten days to prevent their hopping clear our of the District.

Can you imagine!

Mr. Reed, by the way, upon whom this onerous duty ordinarily would devolve, has sufficiently recuperated from his recent two weeks on this tour of duty to project himself upon a motor cruise to Buffalo, Cleveland and points betwixt and between in further vacational search of convalescence.

Matinees at the National, if you are still listening, are not the only things that have been playing to capacity. With the thermometer way up in the thousands you should have seen the Crystal Pool out at Glen Echo Park, which for your greater pleasure and comfort, remains open throughout the current month.

Following "Peter Flies High," at the National, will come "Cherries Are Ripe," cofeaturing Basil Sidney and Mary Ellis, the engagement to begin on Monday night. This is the comedy by John Emerson and Anita Loos, in which Rod La Rocque and Vilma Banky almost played here many months ago.

At the Gayety next week, the attraction will be "Southern Belles," one of the more engaging of the Columbia Burlesque Association's extravaganzas, featuring Nora Ford.

The screen divertissements for the ensuing week—with the Palace and Columbia joining the Fox and RKO-Keith's in their Friday openings, in case you had forgotten—will be: Metropolitan, George Arliss in "Alexander Hamilton;" Palace, Nancy Carroll in "Personal Maid" and Loew stage revue; Earle, Winnie Lightner in "Side Show" and Venita Gould headlining the vaudéville; Fox, Edmund Lowe and Lois Moran in "The Spider" and Fanchon & Marco stage unit; RKO-Keith's, Mary Astor and Robert Ames in "Smart Woman;" Columbia, Sylvia Sidney and William Collier, jr., in "Street Scene;" Rialto, Rose Hobart and Charles Bickford in "East of Borneo."

Just between you and me, I would have liked it better if Floyd Gibbons had kept the first of his "Thirteen Supreme Thrills of History," with which the presidential plaque was dedicated at a special ceremonial preview at RKO-Keith's on Tuesday midnight, free from politics. "Woodrow Wilson's Great Decision" revives a few animosities that might better be permitted to play dead.

And I hope you'll pardon my run-over sport shoes and dingy straw hat, too!

Maj. Royce to Get Air Trophy Today

Mackay Prize to Be Given Aviator for Feat in Subzero Weather.

The Mackay Trophy for achievement in flight will be presented this morning at 10 o'clock to Maj. Ralph Royce, of the Air Corps, by F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War, in Mr. Davison's office. The trophy has been awarded annually for eighteen years under rules made by the War Department.

The feat which gained the trophy for Maj. Royce occurred in January, 1930, when, as commanding officer of the First Pursuit Group, he led his command from Selfridge Field, Mich., to Spokane, Wash., and return in subzero weather without serious accident. The group encountered storms and blizzards throughout the trip and at times the fliers were forced to draw steam from railway locomotives in order to start their engines in the intense cold.

Much valuable information regarding utility of equipment and behavior of airplanes and personnel under severe conditions was acquired as a result of the flight.

Mrs. Gann to Be Guest Of Conservation Group

Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister and official hostess of Vice President Curtis, will be guest of honor this morning at the formal opening of the District's surplus food conservation committee's new demonstration center at Harvey's old restaurant, Eleventh street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, chairman, will preside, and a demonstration will be conducted by Mrs. Mildred Traynham, food expert. Organized by the District Unemployment Commission, the committee is engaged in canning fruits, meats and vegetables for the needy.

ARLINGTON WOMEN HEAR 9 CANDIDATES

Luncheon Precedes Session at Ashton Heights Clubhouse.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Following a custom of years, prior to county elections, the organized women voters of Arlington County held a meeting yesterday at the Ashton Heights Woman's Clubhouse. Preceding addresses by candidates for sheriff and trial justice of the new county court, a luncheon was served by the Ashton Heights Woman's Club.

Sheriff Howard B. Fields, incumbent, who seeks reelection for a third term, declared that there is more enforcement of the prohibition and other laws in Arlington County than in any other county of the State.

"My opponents are making the promises that they will keep all the men I now have on the county police force and to the next person they see they are promising a job," he said. "I shall not only keep all the men I now have, but hope to add to the force after January 1, 1932.

An Officer for 32 Years.

"I lay my present and past term to the support of the women of Arlington County. I make no promises except that I shall enforce the law. I have been an officer for the past 32 years and feel confident that I am well qualified to continue and seek my third term."

A. C. Clements, former sheriff of Arlington County, said that he would replace men on the force only where it is found necessary.

"I organized the police force of this county and started the placing of officers in front of the county schools," he said.

Edward Duncan, Carl Schultz and Z. O. Kines, who are also opposing Sheriff Fields, did not appear.

B. M. Hedrick, Republican nominee for the office of trial justice and now member of the county board of supervisors from Arlington district, said: "The board of supervisors authorized the installation of water in Waycroft and we are proud of our efforts in extending the water system and if any one so desires it, I, for one, will be glad to make a campaign issue of my record in that respect.

Other Candidates Speak.

"If elected to the office which I seek I pledge myself to the administration of that office in the same manner I have attempted to administer the office of supervisor. In any case that may come before the county court the final decision will be rendered according to the voice of my own conscience and the dictates of justice and humanity."

M. G. Ely, defeated candidate for the Republican nomination, and who has since come out as an independent candidate, declared that he was a victim of steam-roller proceedings at the county Republican convention held in July.

J. Hammond Brewer, jr., president of the Arlington County Bar Association; Walter U. Varney, former corporation attorney for the town of Potomac; H. W. Dudley, who advocated more consideration to the juvenile and domestic relations court; W. Thomas French, and Bryan Gordon, assistant trial justice of the county police court, also spoke.

Mrs. Wilda McNemar, chairman of the political committee, explained the proper method of marking the ballot.

Murder Charge Placed Against Bethesda Man

Maynard Miles, colored, of Millers Flats, Bethesda, Md., was charged with murder by Montgomery County police last night, following the death yesterday of Fred Oldfield, of Bethesda, at Georgetown Hospital.

Oldfield, police say, was struck on the head Saturday in a fight with Miles at Bethesda. Miles was held at the Bethesda substation on charges of assault and battery, which last night were changed to murder. Police only learned of the fight Tuesday, when Oldfield was taken to the hospital.

Joint Episcopal Service Planned in Alexandria

Episcopal churches of Alexandria and vicinity will unite in a service of Holy Communion in St. Paul's Church this morning at 10:30 o'clock, the time of the presentation of the Women's Triennial United Thanks Offering in connection with the general convention in Denver, Colo.

Ministers participating will be the Rev. Percy Foster Hall, rector of St. Paul's; the Rev. Dr. William J. Morton, Christ Church; the Rev. George B. Vest, Emanuel Church; the Rev. C. A. Langston, Pohick Church, and the Rev. H. W. Van Couenhoven, Grace Church.

Arlington Business Women Meet.

The Business and Professional Women's Club of Arlington County will hold its monthly dinner meeting this evening at 6:30 o'clock at Windsor Arms, Glebe road. Reports will be received from delegates who attended the recent national convention at Richmond, Va.

Arlington League To Back 5 Men

Group Rejects Committee Plan to Indorse Four for Board.

Meeting last night at Ashton Heights, the Better Government League of Arlington County rejected the recommendations of the executive committee that the league indorse four candidates for membership on the County Board. After much discussion it was unanimously voted to select and support five candidates.

C. K. Lewis, chairman of the eligibility committee, announced that the committee will have its report ready in ample time for the league to study the qualifications of all candidates prior to the selection of the five, which will be made at a meeting to be held October 2.

A special committee, composed of Hugh J. McGrath, chairman; Arthur J. Porter, and Munson Lane, was appointed to arrange for a mass meeting to be held at a place to be selected by the committee Friday evening, September 25. All candidates for the County Board will be invited to speak briefly. The meeting will be open to the public.

PROSECUTOR'S SON FINED IN RUM CASE

He and Walter Reed Employe to Appeal Sentences After Liquor Chase.

Robert Wills, who said his father was State's attorney in Woodstock, Va., was fined $100 for possession of liquor and $5 for speeding when he appeared in Hyattsville police court yesterday. Fred Martini, who claimed to work at Walter Reed Hospital, was fined $200 for possession, with an alternative of six months in jail. Constable Howard Slater said he arrested the two men together in a car on the Defense Highway. Seven cases of liquor were found in their auto, he said. Slater also said they did not stop until he had fired at them six times, shooting both rear tires off their auto. The men, who were represented by Attorney Robert W. McCullough, appealed the sentence.

Liquor charges against Mary Emig, of Ardmore, were dismissed when she testified she had been in her home only two days when it was raided by police. Before that, she said, it had been rented to another person. Police testified that they found a quantity of mash which could not have been fermented in two days. The woman, who was charged with possession and manufacture, said she did not know of the mash, which was found in the cellar.

Mrs. Kathleen Leyne, who recently filed and then withdrew charges against the county police force, appeared to ask that her plea for a jury trial on liquor charges be withdrawn. She wanted to be tried by Police Court Judge J. Chew Sheriff, she said. State's Attorney Alan Bowie objected and the judge told her her plea would have to stand.

Laura Hurd, who lives on River road in Bladensburg, was fined $25, with an alternative of 30 days in jail, on charges that she was drunk and disorderly. The complaint was made by Mrs. Elmer Tucker, who lives in the neighborhood. Mrs. Hurd's husband, Fred, was asked in court if he had not been sentenced before. He said he had done 30 days—"30 days for nothing," he added. He was then fined $10 for contempt of court.

William Mahoney, former president of the Prince Georges County Firemen's Association, appeared to answer charges of nonsupport brought by his wife, Mrs. Mary A. Mahoney. Judge Sheriff ordered him to post bond of $200 and to pay his wife $25 per month.

Gallahan, who died on Tuesday after an illness of three years, will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning from the home of her son, William B. Gallahan, 138 Hume avenue, Alexandria, and burial will be in the family lot in Stafford County.

She is survived by two sons, William B. and J. O. Gallahan, of Potomac, Alexandria; three daughters, Mrs. Lena Woodward, Potomac; Mrs. Andrew J. Woodward, Denver, Colo., and Mrs. Daniel Curtiss, of Washington; a sister, Mrs. Anna Hubbard, of Washington, and a brother, Barrington Brannon, of New York. Mrs. Gallahan was born in Fredericksburg, Va., and was an eyewitness of the bombardment of that city in the Civil War.

Four Flee Overcrowded Jail.

With complaints of overcrowding at the Alexandria Jail, four prisoners quit it. Tuesday evening, while working in the streets with the chain gang, Willie Flagg, Jim Simmons, William Terry and Leroy Adams made good their escape, thereby making room for others who are awaiting entrance at this hostelry.

FAIRFAX DEMOCRATS SCORE PRIMARY LAW

Revision Asked in Resolution by County Committee; Harmony Urged.

The Fairfax County Democratic executive committee yesterday adopted a resolution asking the State Legislature to revise and amend the primary election laws, which were called "complicated and uncertain." A committee composed of John W. Rust and Wilson M. Farr, of Fairfax, and Edmund H. Allen, of Newington, was appointed to bring the question before the next session of the legislature.

Representative Howard W. Smith, of Alexandria, addressed the meeting appealing for harmony and success in the coming general election.

The successful candidates in the August Democratic primary were declared the nominees of the party, and it is planned to bring to the attention of the voters who participated in the August primary their obligation to support all the nominees of the party in the general election in November. Edmund H. Allen, W. M. Farr and Walter Tansill Oliver were made a committee to prepare the list of candidates and bring their names before the people.

The county committee decided to select a committee of seven to devise ways and means of raising money to finance the operations of the Democratic party. They were also instructed to plan for a campaign among the individual voters for their support and cooperation. A list of Democratic voters is to be prepared under the committee's guidance for use in all campaigns. Judge James Love, chairman of the county Democratic party, refused to assume the responsibility of appointing such a committee, so the following persons were selected by the committee: James U. Kincheloe, John C. Mackall, Walter Tansill Oliver, William H. Ellmore, M. D. Hall, C. C. Carr and Wilson M. Farr.

Water in Counties Offends; District Supply Is Tapped

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4203.

Water served by the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission to its consumers in Montgomery and Prince Georges County has drawn as much criticism in the past two days that the commission yesterday hooked up its mains with the Washington water system again. The water has been unpalatable in most of the suburban area for several days, residents say.

The water has a repulsive odor, taste and a muddy color, the residents complained. A number of them said yesterday that they had been patronizing soda fountains for bottled drinks to quench their thirst.

Several proprietors of soda fountains, especially in the Silver Spring-Woodside-Montgomery Hills section, complained that they could not serve drinking water to their customers because of the obnoxious odor and acrid taste, as well as muddy appearance of the water.

Robert Morse, chief engineer of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, yesterday explained that the condition of the water is due to the lowering of the level in the reservoir at Sandy Spring so that water from bottom level has been served to the consumers.

Mr. Morse declared, however, that he had not recieved any complaints until yesterday when J. Donald Clagett, a member of the commission and a resident of the Montgomery Hills section, spoke to him about it. Tests were made of the water and it was found safe for consumption, but "unpleasant," he said. The commission already was using about 25 per cent Washington water and additional flow from the District was ordered, so that by last night approximately 75 per cent of the water used in the county was from Washington.

Lack of rain in the past few days has lowered the surface of the water in the reservoir to a marked degree, Mr. Morse said.

Power Pole Cut Down By Truck as It Skids

A skidding truck of a chain grocery store being towed into Washington on the Cherrydale Hill, Arlington County, last night crashed into a pole of the Virginia Public Service Co., cutting it off at the base, according to Arlington County police.

Only the heavy cable and other wires prevented the pole from falling across the highway. Workmen were soon on the job making necessary repairs. No one was hurt.

Ballston Garden Club Meets.

President Mrs. Howard F. Rothery announced the appointment of Mrs. Frank L. Ball, Evelyn Cannon and Mrs. I. N. Quigg as nominating committee for the October meeting.

Announcing plans for the reunion, Secretary Ben C. McQuay outlined accomplishments of the organization, including the replacement of Schneider's Lane with Calvert street, and the paving of Tunlaw road, Benton street and Huidekoper and Observatory places.

ALEXANDRIA JURORS INDICT 12 PERSONS

Perjury Is Charged to Man in Divorce Case; Alleged Slayer Is Named.

The grand jury in the corporation court, Judge William P. Woolls presiding, has completed its work for this term and been discharged. Indictments were returned in twelve cases, five persons were remanded to the police court for trial, while nolle prosses were entered in six other cases.

Among the indictments returned was one against a man indicted under the name of Neal O'Leary, who is charged with perjury in connection with testimony regarding his residence in a divorce suit June 30, in the corporation court. The case was brought to the attention of the grand jury by Commonwealth's Attorney Albert V. Bryan, who recently announced his intention of putting a stop to Washington people coming to Alexandria and obtaining divorces under the pretense of having established permanent residence here.

William Lewis, colored, was indicted for the murder of George F. Webster, also colored, July 26, and his trial was set for October 9. Indictments were also returned against John Robinson, charging felonious assault; John Oliver, attempt to break and enter; Leatha Williams, Thomas Pratt and Elizabeth Talley, felonious assault; John Simmons, shooting; Robert Jackson attempted burglary; William Johnson, Kesse Le Grand and William Brown, attempted housebreaking. Johnson pleaded guilty to an attempt to rob the store of George H. Carter and was sentenced to one year in the penitentiary.

Nolle prosses were entered in the cases of Lillian Bowen, charged with felonious assault; Dean Spencer, assault, and Frank Mason, housebreaking, and Theodore Richmond, B. J. Kerbleski and Alza L. Avery, charged with attempted grand larceny.

5 Break Bladensburg Jail By Sawing 'Sawproof' Bars

The "sawproof" bars of Bladensburg's much-abused jail were violated again yesterday morning and five prisoners escaped. A sixth inmate, who slipped through the opening to go to a restaurant and telephone police that their stronghold had been crashed reversely, was fined $5 later in the day for being drunk and disorderly.

Four other prisoners refused to join in the break, which brought to seventeen the total of those who have fled from the jail since the first of the year. One of the quintet who got away yesterday gave himself up a short time later, but Prince Georges County authorities last night were still searching for the others.

Four of those who escaped were from Philadelphia and had been arrested by railway police in Alexandria, Va., last week on charges that they entered the caboose of a freight train and robbed the conductor of about $10. They were George Michels, Charles DeWitt, Oliver Sprard and John Kiger. William Groves, of Mount Rainier, also joined in the escape, but later surrendered to Eugene Plumer, chief of police of Mount Rainier. The sixth man was John White, who went to a nearby restaurant and notified the police of the jail break by phone.

White said the Philadelphia men cut their way out with a file handed to them by a white man whom he did not know. The jailer does not live at the jail, and previous escapes were engineered also by instruments handed in through the bars. The strips of steel which were cut this time were reputed to be sawproof, having been put in after the last break.

White appeared in county police court yesterday and was fined $5 for being drunk and disorderly. Once before when a break was reported by a prisoner the man was released in court as a reward.

CAN YOUR FAMILY CARRY ON?

A CERTAIN very large business, now in the hands of the second generation, is trying to choose members of the third generation for training in leadership. The founder of the business was a dynamic human being, but he deviated considerably from a well-balanced personality.

Starting with nothing, he built up one of the great businesses of the world; a business on the welfare of which hangs the security, the economic future, and the welfare (in many ways) of thousands of people. He was a great big animal—tireless, energetic, with great endurance, heavy muscles, shrewdness, foresight, strategy, ability to organize, leadership, courage. He had aggressiveness, an irresistible drive, mechanical ability, imagination and good judgment. He was selfish in the sense that he wanted to have his way. No one can question his loyalty to the business he built up.

He begot a large family of children, several of whom were boys. This, in a sense, was loyalty to the business, since he kept financial control and he provided legal heirs to carry it on. Perhaps his imagination did not go beyond that point, for he did not take the trouble to train these sons for the operation of the business that he had taken to build the best machine possible for the trade.

However, among the numerous sons enough were found for successful leadership of the business. Now the time is approaching when some one in the third generation must be decided upon, and then specially trained for the head place, and others must be selected and trained for leadership of some of its divisions.

All of this is for the purpose of introducing the thought that the dominating, compelling men who head great enterprises should select wives who are likely to breed men who can be trained for leadership. They should select from their progeny those who have the intellectual ability and the personality required for the conduct of the business. They should especially train those so selected for the work and, finally, if the individual selected fails to take training, he should be set aside or scrapped, while another is chosen in his stead and trained for the work.

The man with the power to create a great business should have the wisdom to see that that which he has builded is due to be wrecked unless he, the founder, has some regard for genetics and the efficacy of training. Men of this dominant type are fond of raising horses, or other animals, as an avocation—the project through which they get relaxation and diversion of interest. When they lay aside business management, and put on the role of stock raisers, they never forget the principles of breeding and training.

MOISTURE IN LUNGS.

J. M. O. writes:

1. What foods should one eat to build up and strengthen the lungs after an attack of bronchial flu?

2. What is meant by "moisture on the lung?"

REPLY.

1. An ordinary, wholesome, nutritious diet is all you need in that line.

2. Moisture in the lungs often means infection with tubercle bacilli.

Water Mill, Century Old, Is Used in Tennessee

Moscow, Tenn., (U.P.).—A century old water mill built on the banks of the Wolf River, a half mile from the center of town, is operated on Saturdays by its owner, W. H. Pearce, and farmers for miles around bring grain to him to be ground into flour. It is one of the few remaining mills of its type in the South.

Pint Still Raided.

Smithfield, N. C. (U.P.). — Deputies H. M. Parker and W. W. Stewart recently found a pint capacity copper still, complete in every detail. An eight-pound lard bucket was used as the condenser, and the container for the manufactured product was a half gallon fruit jar. Marion Corbett, the owner of the miniature still, was arrested.

STOCK RALLIES END IN LOSSES AT CLOSE

Prices Fluctuate Erratically, but Yield to Pressure; Gasolines Gain.

New York, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Stocks wavered erratically today, but late selling of the utilities stole the market's courage and final prices were lower again. Overlooking a number of air pockets, net losses were moderate.

Firm grain markets and a somewhat better tone in parts of the bond list brightened the financial day a bit, nor was the action of stocks themselves wholly discouraging. Several rallies developed, and although none proved durable enough to start a real covering movement, the irregularity at least had the merit of relieving the monotony of decline. Sales totaled 1,962,349 shares, thus continuing the week's gradual slackening in activity.

The unusually hard shower of unfavorably interpreted news which has been pelting the market this month spilled out a few more adverse dividend actions, notably the cuts on the Westinghouse issue and Kansas City Southern's omission.

Otis Steel News.

Otis Steel passed its preferred payment after the close. Evidently a smaller rate than the $2.50 annual basis decided on by Westinghouse would not have been surprising, for the stock rallied as shorts protected themselves. General Electric, on the other hand, made a new low, doubtless because of a belief that the electrical equipment business is suffering with other major lines.

North American and Consolidated Gas both made fresh minimums, the former losing 3 net. American Telephone was much steadier and at one time sold 2 points higher. Western Union flopped nearly 7. Support for U. S. Steel faltered a little toward the close, resulting in a net loss of 1⅜.

American Can also slipped in the late trading, duplicating its previous low for a decline of 1⅝. General Motors was unchanged. Metal shares were down in sympathy with the lower export price.

Rails Continue Losses.

Rails made some compromise with weakness, but 3 to 4 point losses in Atchison, the Union Pacific and Louisville & Nashville and a maximum drop of 5 by Kansas City Southern indicated that traders did not believe the group was out of the woods. Pittsburgh & West Virginia, an inactive, tumbled 12.

Shorts in Delaware & Hudson were squeezed. Baltimore & Ohio firmed and New York Central's net loss was fractional.

The steel industry has made its expected rally from the Labor Day recession and is encouraged by better inquiry for rails, pipe and structural fittings. Improvement anticipated for next week may extend further; certainly the seasonal rise is very tardy and at this late date the amount of recovery may not be so generous as was anticipated a few weeks ago.

Gasoline Stocks Rise.

Gasoline stocks are rising for the first time since spring, signaling the termination of summer motoring. Electric power production fails to hint an improvement in industrial operations, the deadline for September's first fortnight being about 4 per cent as compared with the same period of last year.

Unfavorable weather, insect damage in Argentine fields and a bullish Russian report sent wheat up a cent or more and futures retained much of the advance. Corn profited by hot weather in the Southwest and predictions of smaller receipts, closing fractionally higher. Cotton stiffened with Liverpool in the early trading and then declined, December coming near the record low. Net losses ranged from 65 to 80 cents a bale.

Sterling exchange reacted and the French franc was a trifle easier, but other European rates were steady. German marks firmed, reflecting August's favorable trade balance.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—A slight opening advance in response to relatively firm Liverpool cables was followed by declines in cotton here today under liquidation and some Southern selling. December contracts after selling up to 6.94 early broke to 6.79 in the late trading and closed at that figure or within 4 points of the low record for the season. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 13 to 18 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 3 to 5 points on a moderate demand promoted by the relative firmness of Liverpool, while there also appeared to be considerable trade buying. The early demand was supplied around 6.72 for October and 7.23 for March contracts, however, and after backing and filling during the middle of the day, prices weakened in the later trading under increased Southern selling which was attributed partly to Hedging. This seemed to bring out some liquidation or reselling by early buyers which sent the price of October off to 6.53 and March to 7.03. Closing quotations were at the lowest point of the day.

While Liverpool was better than due on the New York close of yesterday, this appeared to be attributed partly to a readjustment of differences and reports of unrest in the British army owing to the cuts in pay, seemed to make rather an unfavorable impression on sentiment. Houses with Liverpool connections were among the early buyers here, however, while there was also buying by brokers with Japanese connections. This helped to absorb the offerings and imparted a rather steady tone to the market during the early trading, but the demand was not active, and when offerings increased later in the day prices yielded quite readily. The weekly report of the Weather Bureau attracted generally favorable comment as reflecting conditions favorable for picking and ginning, although it is said that harvesting generally was rather slow.

Liverpool cables said that hedging and liquidation in that market had been absorbed by covering and foreign buying and reported an improved inquiry for cotton cloths from China and South America. Exports today 12,720 making 434,793 so far this season. Port receipts 23,102. U. S. port stocks 2,862,077.

RAIL BONDS RECOVER AS MANY LOANS SAG

Wide Losses Hit Foreigns; Utilities Still Decline With Industrials.

New York, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—The bond market went through a series of fluctuations today and, although average prices for rail, public utility and industrial loans reached further new low levels, some issues at times were strong.

This latter trend was particularly true of the carrier issues. Such bonds as Baltimore & Ohio refunding 5s of 1995 and 4½s of 1960, Canadian National Railway 4½s of 1957, Central Pacific guaranteed 5s, several Rock Island loans, Chicago & Northwestern series A 4¾s and Erie refunding and improvement 5s of 1967 made good net gains in active trading. However, the rails as a whole closed lower.

Many of the wider losses occurred among foreign obligations, although this group during the first half of the session kept within narrow fractions of the preceding final prices. And a few of them even showed mild strength. Net losses of 1 to 7½ points were scored by several Argentine loans, Belgian 7s of 1955, Berlin City Electric 6½s of 1951, Brazilian 6½ of 1926-57, several Chile mortgage bank issues and Royal Dutch 4s. German 5½s and 7s were relatively steady, although other loans of that nation lost ground.

Public utility and industrial issues sagged also, but the decline was more consistent than in the rails. American Telephone collateral 5s of 1946 and the debenture 5s of 1960 and of 1965, Consolidated Gas of New York 4½s, Cincinnati Gas & Electric series A 4s, and Columbia Gas & Electric 5s of 1961 were some of the active utilities to recede.

Dodge Brothers 6s of 1940, International Match 5s of 1947, Armour 4½s and 5½s, Liggett & Myers 5s and 7s and Phillips Petroleum 5¾s were active industrials to decline.

United States Government loans were moderately active and generally higher.

The Chase National Bank, of New York, announced today that $12,000, principal amount of 7 per cent sinking fund gold bonds of the State of Rio Grande do Sul have been drawn for redemption at par on December 1.

CARDS CLINCH PENNANT AGAIN BY MARGIN OF 12 GAMES;

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

Mr. Cornelius McGillicuddy,
Shibe Park,
Philadelphia.
Dear Connie:

Now that you Athletics have won three pennants in a row and the remainder of the 1931 race is just a formality for you, perhaps you have the time and the inclination to straighten us out on a few items that we would like to know about.

What is all this talk about breaking up your great team that we have been hearing ever since you started to make a runaway race of the pennant? I know how you scrapped your $100,000 infield in 1914 after your team outclassed the rest of the league so much that there wasn't any fun in winning. I know, too, that it was a good business stroke because the Philadelphia fans were tired of seeing your club win so regularly and stayed away from Shibe Park in such great numbers that made it unprofitable for you.

But, Connie, you remember what a horrible time you had trying to build up a pennant winner again. And how you spent eight dismal seasons in the cellar experimenting with young ball players who couldn't play a lick with the exception of Eddie Rommel, who won twenty games with your last-place club.

That was tiring for the Philadelphia fans, too, and you know it was as unprofitable for you as was your team that won so regularly. Now, Connie, I am not trying to tell you how to conduct your ball club and business affairs, but it seems to me that if you are disposed to break up your present good team, you ought to reflect that if the fans stay away from a losing ball club as well as a winning club, it would be infinitely better to conduct a winning club, because as the manager of a winning team you could still cash in on the testimonials and syndicated articles and other emoluments that do not befall the manager of a second-division club.

Anyway, the fans this season are not staying away from your ball games because your club is winning so regularly and there is no reason to scrap your team unless it is a very personal one. I know it would be a grand stunt for you to get rid of your expensive stars and start to build a pennant winner all over again and show your managerial acumen, which nobody doubts, but I don't have to remind you again that those were long, lean years between 1915 and 1922 and you are no longer in the flower of your youth.

But if you can not be restrained, I have a suggestion to make. If you are really determined about scrapping your team and making the race a little closer and demonstrating again your managerial ability, it would be a simple matter. You really wouldn't have to scrap your whole team. Just sell Simmons to the Red Sox and trade Lefty Grove to the Nationals and I will personally guarantee that the Athletics will make no more runaways of any more pennant races, and that you will have plenty of latitude to demonstrate your managerial wizardry in winning another championship.

The others on your club are good ball players, but not great ones, with the exception of Earnshaw and Cochrane, and when you are rid of Grove and Simmons you will have scrapped enough strength to enable you to start at the bottom all over again. You haven't got a $100,000 infield this season at comparative values of 1931 and 1914. Foxx, Bishop, Boley and Dykes should not be mentioned in the same inhalation with Barry, Baker, Collins and McInnis, and you could throw McNair and Williams in, making it a six-man infield, all playing at the same time, and I would take the old 1914 quartet for mine.

In other words, Connie, when you are rid of Simmons and Grove, you haven't got much to scrap, and if you are really serious about making the 1932 pennant race a little closer knit, I know the rest of the American League magnates would be willing to pension Simmons and Grove and let you keep the rest of your ball players and be willing to say that you scrapped your team. Yours truly.

Abe Espinosa Victor Over Melhorn

Smith, Walker, Shute, Creavey Also Reach Quarter-Finals.

Sarazen to Oppose Smith Today; Shute Faces Armour.

By BILL KING.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 26 (A.P.).—The exacting competition for the Professional Golfers Association championship today drew a step nearer to the apparently inevitable clash between the defending titlist, Tommy Armour, of Detroit, and Gene Sarazen, of Great Neck, Long Island, who has supplied the tourney with its best golf.

The six others who, with more or less difficulty, accompanied this pair of stars into the quarter-final 36-hole matches were Billy Burke, the open champion; young Horton Smith, of Detroit; Abe Espinosa, Chicago veteran; Cyril Walker, of Ridgewood, N. J., and two of the younger-set professionals, Tom Creavy, of Albany, N. Y., and Denny Shute, of Chicago.

Armour Coasts Home on Second Nine.

Armour, shooting a 73 this morning on the breezy 70-par Wannamoisett course, was able to finish his first round with only a one-hole lead on Walter Murray, of Valparaiso, Ind. The latter, however, was unable to stand the pressure, for the "Black Scot" annexed four more holes on his second outward nine and coasted in to end the match on the thirty-third green.

Sarazen's victory over Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y., was even more decisive. Gene, who has won two P. G. A. championships and was runner-up last year, had another 72 on his morning round and went to 4 up on Runyan, who carded a 76. Sarazen's second trip out was a par 35 performance, during which he gained four more holes to two for Runyan. Sarazen's par 4 gave him the twenty-ninth and he concluded the match by halving the next hole to win by the top-heavy margin of 7 and 6.

Burke continued his quest for the only other major championship open to him by overwhelming young Bob Crowley, of Haverhill, Mass., 6 and 4, in a match that was never close.

MacFarland, Off Form, Bows To Smith.

Willie MacFarland, 1925 open champion, was in such poor form Smith blasted him off the course at the thirty-first green, where he clinched his 6 and 5 victory. Willie, in explaining this crushing setback, blamed it on his own "rotten" golf.

The feud between Abe Espinosa and "Wild Bill Mehlhorn, of New York, resulted in such close and determined competition that most of the gallery was about the thirty-fifth green, where Abe won by 2 and 1.

Espinosa was 1 up at the seventh and a few inches away from the pit in 3 when Mehlhorn sank his second putt for a 4. Expecting Mehlhorn would concede his putt, Espinosa picked up. Wild Bill, however, did not do so and the referee charged the hole against Espinosa, squaring the match.

This incident annoyed the excitable Espinosa, but his aggressive play only spurred Mehlhorn to such an extent that the first half of the match ended in a deadlock. On the second round, Mehlhorn gained an early 2 up lead only to have Abe wipe it out by taking four consecutive holes.

The only match to reach the last green marked the exit of old Pete O'Hara, of Verona, Pa., who gave the tourney its major upset yesterday

JIMMY FOXX

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

No. 4—Plowboy.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Jimmy Foxx, the big, cherubic farm boy power house who was Home Run Frank Baker's gift to his old manager, Connie Mack, still treads a baseball field as though he were following a plow down a furrow.

But now he lives in Philadelphia all year round to keep as far away from the farm as possible.

Jimmy left his plow one morning in Sudlersville, on the Maryland Eastern Shore, not so many years ago, and he never did go back to it. He was 15 years old.

He dropped those plow handles in response to a post card invitation from Frank Baker to come over to Dover and try playing baseball for a living.

Only Cost Mackmen Postal Card.

All Jimmy ever cost the one-time home run king was that 1 cent post card. Baker made a catcher of him and sold him to the Athletics that same season for a price that can only be guessed at.

Today, one of the greatest hitters of baseball, Jimmy is still a youngster and he still worries about going back to that plow some day.

He doesn't catch any more. Connie sent him away for a couple of seasons as an outfielder. He wound up as a first baseman after playing every position in the infield, including pitching.

He'd still rather be a third baseman. But it really makes no difference where he plays as long as they let him play. Anything but that plow.

Foxx is a big fellow, but he still has the face of a cherub. He has an immense chest, covered with hair. His mates call him "Ingagi" because they once saw a gorilla with that name in a movie.

He started to chew tobacco so he'd look more grown up. Now he's married and has a "Jimmy junior." He's turning into one of the fashion plates of the team.

Foxx's ability to drive a ball for distance is second only to Babe Ruth's, and the Athletics won't even admit that.

Wishes All Hurlers Were Left-Handed.

He hit a ball over the left field stands in Comiskey Park off Garland Braxton last year and the fans thought it must have been done with mirrors. The bottom of the stands is 362 feet from home plate.

He's the particular pride of Connie Mack's baseball life. He acts on the ball field like a college junior trying to be a good student. He is probably the easiest man on the team to handle, never flustered nor ill-humored.

He is a great huntsman and likes duck shooting best. Al Simmons, another good hitter, is his particular pal.

White Sox Win Cellar Grip As Red Sox Falter to Take Finale of Crucial Series

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.
Special to The Washington Post.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 16.—The White Sox stormed the depths today as the climax of their irresistible downward sweep and won eighth place from the Red Sox. The White Sox lost, 2 to 1, in the closing game of their crucial series for the lowest honors in the American League and the boys left town for Philadelphia confident of defending their position until the end of the season.

Talk is now being heard of an interleague series with the Cincinnati Reds when the season is over, but the White Sox players are not sympathetic with the idea. As one of the young men put it, losing is easy in the National League and there is really no parallel between the achievement of the Reds and their own gallant advance to the rear in the face of fierce opposition from the Red Sox. Anything can happen in a single series and the Reds might manage to lose by a fluke in which case the prestige of the White Sox would suffer unfairly.

And, while the boys undoubtedly have their heads down now and face the series with the Athletics confident of losing, they realize that their task will be much more difficult under the present circumstances than it would be ordinarily. They approach the impending games in Philadelphia fully aware they must keep constantly on their heels if they are to lose in the face of the special effort which Connie Mack is preparing to put forth to thwart them.

Mack Saves Worst Players.

Connie Mack is saving some of his worst players for this series, and while there is nothing in the league regulations to forbid this, it is felt that such conduct is not quite right from the ethical standpoint. Still, it will take a great losing team to drop this series and the White Sox have been telling themselves that any team which could lose to the Red Sox need not be afraid of winning from any team.

The dramatic windup of the crucial Boston series aroused the disinterest of the customers as no other sporting event has done since Bryan Downey fought Johnny Wilson for the middleweight championship of the world. The attendance fell off by eighteen customers and Mr. Harry Stevens' hot dog and peanut concession was reported to have scored a no-hot-dog, bags of peanuts game, the first time this perfect figure has been achieved since May 8, 1914, in the Brooklyn park of the old Federal League. As that record was made in an outlaw league, however, it is not considered valid in organized hot dog and peanut circles.

Olson Tries Hard For Red Sox.

Marvin Olson, a recruit shortstop working for the Red Sox, was the most gallant defender of eighth place as the Red Sox were slowly but firmly removed from their position after long occupancy. This young man came through with a slashing error in the fourth inning placing young Billy Sullivan on first base and Bull Durham, the Red Sox pitcher, suddenly finding himself, then pitched an opportune two-bagger to Fonseca which sent Sullivan to third. As he scored on Appling's fly the customers came up cheerful to jeer with cries of "Boo, who said you muggs were losers? Back to first division where you belong, you major leaguers."

Olsen was the one member of the Red Sox who refused to acknowledge victory until the game was definitely won and he almost turned the tide when he dropped Frasier's pop fly in the eighth. But there were two out at the time and he was fighting a lone battle for there was nobody to cooperate with him so the run died when Blue bounced to the first baseman. A timely muff here would have let the ball roll to the outfield and a run might presently have come in t.

Ad Liska on Trial Tomorrow In His Plea for Full Salary

THE upshot of a salary argument between Pitcher Ad Liska and Owner Clark Griffith of the Nats is a batting practice tryout which the pitcher will be given tomorrow to decide whether he shall be paid his salary for the remainder of the season or settle his claims against the Washington club for one week's pay.

Ever since Liska was recalled from Chattanooga last week his salary status with the Nats has been indefinite. Under the league rules a player is entitled to full pay for the season even if sent out on option to a league which ends its season early, but Griffith announced to Liska that in view of his sore arm and general uselessness to the Nats this season he would receive only one week's salary for the remainder of the season and be allowed to go home.

Pitcher and owner were in session yesterday afternoon in a long debate in Griffith's office and the argument ended in a draw. Griffith suggested that Liska work out in practice today to decide if his pitching arm was in condition, but the pitcher refused on the grounds that he had worked for a long spell yesterday and could not be expected to be at his best.

Even under the threat of suspension for the remainder of the season, which would cost him his entire salary, Liska refused to accept one week's pay and Griffith has agreed to watch him in a tryout tomorrow, at which time Liska hopes to demonstrate that he should be paid his full salary. The season ends September 27.

8th Straight Victory for Crowder

Bunch Hits Off Coffman; Top Yanks by 1½ Games.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

ALTHOUGH not showing as much in his pitching repertoire as he had in several of his previous games, "General" Al Crowder had enough "stuff" yesterday to beat the St. Louis Browns, the 6-to-2 victory credited him being his eighth straight and his seventeenth of the season. As the Yankees and Tigers idled, the triumph put the natives a game and a half in front of New York in the second-place fight.

Crowder allowed nine hits in seven rounds and the Browns had at least one man on the paths in every frame, but, thanks to two double plays by the Myer-Cronin-Kuhel combination and two strikeouts he inserted in the seventh when the visitors showed signs of a rally, he held them to but two runs and one of these was a rather cheap one, being scored on a double-theft on which Spencer had pegged badly to second, making a return throw impossible.

Marberry, Back in Good Graces, Finishes Game.

When Spencer opened the home seventh with a single and carried on to third after Schulte had let the ball get by him, Joe Judge poled out a single at Crowder's turn at bat and Fred Marberry, back in the good graces of the club again after a minor argument with Manager Walter Johnson, finished the game in fine style after Kress, first to face him, had smote a lusty double to left-center on Fred's first offering.

Dick Coffman, former Nat, did the alien flinging. Three runs were curried from his slants in the first two frames and a trio were clustered in the seventh, but between these happenings the young righthander was most effective. All told, he held the Nats to seven hits, but all but one of these came in their scoring frames, while both of the passes he issued were later turned into markers.

Washington was in front at all stages of the game but it was not until the seventh that the lead was big enough to enthuse over, the runs gleaned in this round coming after the visitors had shown every symptom of staging one of those big innings.

With one gone in the first, Rice saw four wide ones pass him and this was the beginning of a two-run stand, the markers being made from singles by Manush and West and Cronin's long fly to left.

One of these runs was gotten back by the Browns in the second. With Melillo and Levey on the paths, as a result of two singles, and two dead, a double steal was staged. Spencer's throw to second went skidding over the base to center and all hands were safe.

Browns Make Dire Threat In Seventh.

The Nationals came back with an equalizing run in their half, made from a walk to Bluege, Spencer's single and Crowder's infield out and then both pitchers were in full command until the seventh.

It looked like Crowder was due for a knockout in this round when Bengough and Levey singled successively. After McNeely had replaced the catcher on second, Coffman fanned, Schulte singled one run home, and Burns went down swinging at a third strike. This put it up to Goslin, but all he could do was to pop to Kuhel.

The Nats used their half to sew up the game. Spencer opened with a single and went to third on Schulte's two-base error. Judge, up

ARGENTINIAN POLOISTS SCORE

Advance to Finals by Beating Greentree Four, 11 to 9.

MEADOWBROOK CLUB, Westbury, Long Island, Sept. 16 (A. P.).—The four galloping horsemen from Santa Paula, polo champions of Argentina, rode into the final round of the United States open championship with a thrilling victory today over Tommy Hitchcock's Greentree Team. The final score was 11 to 9.

The Argentines, as a result of their triumph in another breath-taking battle on horseback, will play Stephen (Laddie) Sandford's spectacular Hurricanes, defending champions, in the title match Saturday on International Field. They are the first South American combination to reach the final round of the United States championship since 1922, but it will be an upset if they conquer the Sanford outfit, featuring 10-Goal Pat Roark and Nine-Goal Winston Guest.

Marvin Hart, Former Champion, Near Death

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Only extraordinary vitality kept Marvin Hart, former heavyweight boxing champion of the world, alive tonight. Physicians said Hart, who is suffering from enlargement of the liver and high blood pressure, might die during the night and that at best the end was but a day or so off.

The former champion was 55 years old today and has been ill nine months. He was unconscious tonight and physicians said he probably would not rally.

Hart became world's champion at Reno, Nev., July 3, 1905, when he knocked out Jack Root in the twelfth round of a scheduled twenty-round bout. Jim Jeffries refereed the bout after having retired from the championship throne. Hart held the title eight months.

TIGERS HERE FOR 3-GAME SERIES

Burke or Fischer Due to Hurl; Nats Sign Harley Boss.

BUCKY HARRIS and his Detroit Tigers open their final invasion of the year here this afternoon in the first of a three-game set which ends Saturday. Manager Walter Johnson last night was undecided as to his pitching choice, but declared it lies between two of his young southpaws, Bob Burke and Carl Fischer. Art (Kippered) Herring likely will do the slab-work for the Harrismen.

Of particular interest to the fans is the announcement that Outfielder Johnny Gill, recently purchased from the Baltimore Orioles, has been ordered to report and will fill one of the fly-chasing berths, today. Of the 19 previous meetings, the Nationals have copped thirteen from the Jungle Cats and they figure to take at least two of the three games in this set, while hoping, of course, for a clean-up.

Dave Harris, the Greensboro sheriff, took a flying trip to his home last night. He left by airplane and was due to arrive at Greensboro at 9 o'clock. He will leave there this morning and be back in time for today's game.

Infielder Cecil Travis, recently purchased from Chattanooga by the Nats, is leading the Southern Association at bat with a healthy stick-mark of .429. He has participated in but thirteen games, however, having made 15 hits, four of them doubles, in 35 times at bat.

Travis is an inexperienced, overgrown youngster with a world of natural ability. He is not yet 18 years old, and is two inches over the six-foot mark in height.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16 (U.P.).—Although no club in baseball history ever has won three successive world championships, $5 will bring you $8 if you are certain the Philadelphia Athletics will not accomplish the feat in the 1931 world series.

St. Louis Wins Fourth Flag In 6 Years

Automatically Given Title When Giants Bow to Reds.

Won 14 of First 17 Games to Get Good Start in Race.

(Associated Press.)

THE St. Louis Cardinals automatically won their second straight National League pennant yesterday when the New York Giants dropped the first game of a double-header to Cincinnati, 7 to 3. The Cards defeated the Phillies, 6-3, and their margin of victory was 12 games when the Giants lost the second game of the twin bill with the Reds.

In sewing up their fourth pennant in the last six years, the Cardinals followed closely on the heels of the Philadelphia Athletics, who yesterday clinched honors in the American League. They will clash in the opening game of the world series on October 1 at St. Louis.

Compared to last year, when they had to fight right down to the last day to beat out Chicago, the Cards had easy sailing this season, and will have plenty of rest in preparation for the world series. They were given quite a battle the first two weeks by the Boston Braves, but on April 29 they passed the Braves, took over the leadership and held it.

Cards Set Fast Pace From The Start.

Although they have not run up any long winning streaks comparable to the seventeen straight credited to the Athletics early in the race, the Cardinals set a fast pace from the start, winning six of their first seven games and fourteen of their first seventeen to get out in front. In the course of the campaign they had one run of eight consecutive victories and four times scored six straight. Up to today, they had won eleven of their last twelve games, five of them being shutouts.

Never higher than fourth in club batting in their league, the Streetmen have depended primarily on their crack pitching staff and fast fielding to stay in front. In recent weeks, however, they have shown a disposition to slug the ball with more abandon, running up high scores in almost every game.

MISS CAROLINE PAYS $319 MUTUEL IN LINCOLN FIELDS SEVENTH

Longest Shot In Race Is Winner

Hertz Pair Runs One-Two in Handicap at Belmont.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Miss Caroline, a 3-year-old fifty, by Hourless and War Tidings, which had never won a race before, captured the seventh race at Lincoln Fields today and paid $319.70 for $2 straight mutuel. Deducting the price of a ticket, this figure represents odds of $158.85 for $1—the highest price paid by a winner on the American turf in many years.

An extreme outsider in the field of ten engaging in the mile and a sixteenth contest, Miss Caroline was well ridden by Jockey E. Neal. She came up fast through the stretch, fancying the muddy track, and won handily. A $2 place ticket on her paid $102.38, while a show ticket brought $36.84.

Curiously enough, with the longest priced horse in the race winning, Transgression, the 3 to 2 favorite, finished last, being pulled up when trailing the field.

Long shots also were winners in the second, third, fourth and fifth races, paying off in big figures.

Hailton took the second and paid $43.26 to win, and Miss Tulsa won the next heat paying $8.66. Bill Looney outlasted the favorite, High Tom, to take the Eastlake purse and rewarded his backers with $18.16, and Chene, a long shot in spite of several good efforts lately, won the Humbolt Park purse over the public choice, Shasta Broom, and his win price for a $2 ticket was $18.94.

Belmont Park Race Track, N. Y., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Valenciennes and Risque ran one-two for Mrs. John D. Hertz in the sixty-first running of the Ladies' Handicap, at one mile, here this afternoon. The entry was held at 9 to 10 and Valenciennes earned $2,725 by her victory, while Risque took down $700, the place award. Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Polly Play annexed the show position.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VISHNU, $4.14, $3.14, $2.66; HOOSIER PRINCE, $8.66, $7.84; MANASSAS, $14.28.

VISHNU broke slowly but, under strong urging, worked his way up fast in opening quarter, drew into decisive command rounding stretch turn and, maintaining good speed, held sway thereafter. HOOSIER PRINCE, in close quarters at far turn and blocked when trying to get through on inside entering stretch, closed with a rush when clear and with better luck would have been more formidable at the end. MANASSAS moved up with a rush at the far turn, went evenly thereafter and outstayed BEAVER. Latter closed strongly. RUSSCENES began very slowly.

SECOND RACE—One mile (600 yd. chute). Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:46½. Off at 2:46½. Winner, Mrs. E. L. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HAMILTON, $43.26, $17.28, $7.62; SETH'S BALLOT, $3.60, $2.86; GOLD MINT, $2.82.

HAMILTON, well ridden and suited by the going, raced into lead on inside in first quarter, made the early pace under good rating and, holding on well, outstayed SETH'S BALLOT. Latter, reserved off the pace, responded well when called upon, lost some ground in final five-sixteenths and, closing boldly, was wearing down the winner. GOLD MINT, a forward factor throughout, weakened in last eighth.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:15. Off at 3:18. Winner, Jack Howard's ch. f. (2), by Tryster—Tuscola. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS TULSA, $8.66, $5.08, $3.74; TONIGHT, $11.76, $7.66; INDIAN DANCE, $12.02.

MISS TULSA, much the best, was under strong restraint while alternating with INDIAN DANCE in the early lead, drew into clear command quickly and won hard held. TONIGHT, away slowly, began working his way up after reaching the turn and easily disposed of the others, but was no threat for winner. INDIAN DANCE had speed, was on inside throughout and weakened slightly in final drive. ANITA ORMONT, weakly ridden, swerved badly in stretch.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; allowances. Eastlake Purse. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:45½. Off at 3:47. Winner, J. N. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BILL LOONEY, $18.16, $7.00, $4.24; HIGH TOM, $3.96, $3.14; MUCKER, $3.70.

BILL LOONEY, away fast, forced the early pace under restraint, slowly disposed of HIGH TOM without need of strong urging and came away fast in, final eighth. HIGH TOM had speed, was in the more holding part of the track throughout and weakened badly after five-eighths, but outstayed MUCKER. Latter came to outside at stretch turn and stood the drive gamely. MAID OF HONOR closed strong.

FIFTH RACE—One mile (out of chute). Purse, $1,300; claiming. The Humboldt Park Purse. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 4:16. Off at 4:19. Winner, C. V. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHENE, $18.94, $6.56, $3.48; SHASTA BROOM, $3.06, $2.28; REVERBERATE, $2.46.

CHENE, steadied along under snug restraint first five-eighths, responded well when called upon and, rushing through on inside, won under energetic hand riding. SHASTA BROOM had speed from the start, was allowed to bear out slightly when entering the stretch and, failing to withstand winner, held on fairly well. REVERBERATE, a prominent factor from the start, raced wide and weakened slightly in the drive, but outstayed UNCLE HENRY. Latter had speed, was under steady restraint for three-quarters and failed to respond when urged hard. OUTCRY was done after a half mile.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:44½. Off at 4:45. PLUMAGE, under light weight and going in her best form, met interference at first turn, moved up rapidly when clear, then held the lead under slight restraint to stretch, where she came away. FINNIC began fast, but dropped out of it at far turn and closed well after coming to outside in stretch. PRINCE TOKALON, a forward factor throughout, had no mishap and weakened in final drive.

MISS CAROLINE, taken back repeatedly, began working her way up at the stretch turn and, passing leaders inside, won drawing out. ENGLEWOOD, never far back, held the lead briefly and, failing to withstand winner, outstayed EVERGREEN QUEEN. Latter, far back for three-quarters, closed fastest of all. ESSIE had speed, was shaken up repeatedly during early stages and weakened in stretch run. ROBERTA L. had no mishap. ARROWLIKE was outrun. TRANSGRESSION ran out badly and was eased up when she threatened to crash into the outer fence at far turn.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Lincoln Fields Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

LINCOLN FIELDS, Chicago, Ill., Sept. 16—A field of eight high class sprinters will match strides in the 6-furlong dash of the Sunflower Purse, feature event of the program at Lincoln Fields tomorrow. This number carries a purse of $1,400 and will be contested under allowance conditions. The remainder of the card is composed of three sprints and three route races, all carrying the claiming clause.

In the main attraction, fourth event, the Labrae Stable's SEGURO, which finished second to Dark Sea last start, appears best of his seven opponents. The Carraude pair of ARAB and KINCSEN are gifted with plenty of speed, and should furnish stern opposition. SISTER MARY has displayed mud-running ability, and over the slow track which will prevail should share in the purse.

FIRST RACE—MARLENE scored easily in her previous outing over a heavy track and figures to outfoot her nine rivals. MEMORANDUM turned in a surprise victory last start and is given the place call. SHAKER LADY and CELTIC QUEEN will battle it out for the minor award.

SECOND RACE—A limit field will face the barrier in this event, with A. A. Baroni's DON ALVARO fancied to take down the honors. In his last start he stepped 6 furlongs in 1:12 3-5, to finish a neck behind Dick Morris. LAMP BLACK weakened last out over the 7-furlong distance, but should go well at the shorter route here. SUITOR is dropping down in this field and on his best form may prove a dangerous contender.

THIRD RACE—Eleven juvenile fillies will contest the purse with PRECEDE from the F. Risk string, winner of previous effort over a similar field favored to annex the major award. DOLLY'S BABY has shown improvement in recent trials and should finish in the runner-up position. PUPPET raced well over a muddy track and should gain a part of the purse.

FIFTH RACE—BIDE A WEE from the E. R. Bradley string showed speed for 6 furlongs last start then faltered. With that effort as a conditioner, the Bradley color bearer will be hard to beat. STOP GAP turned in several creditable performances over a slow track and under the conditions is the place selection. GRIFFIN will like the route and should hold the others safe.

SIXTH RACE—BOBBY POWERS has trained well after a brief rest and appears best of his nine rivals. CESARE and FERN F., are closely rated for the remainder of the purse.

SEVENTH RACE—THEORIST JANE has the speed of the platers which will contest this 9-furlong gallop. The Labrae racer is well weighted with 110 pounds and should romp to an easy victory. GENGHIS KHAN is rounding into form and figures to extend the top one. HILEE, from the C. V. Whitney string, is a capable mud-runner and appears best of the others for the show money.

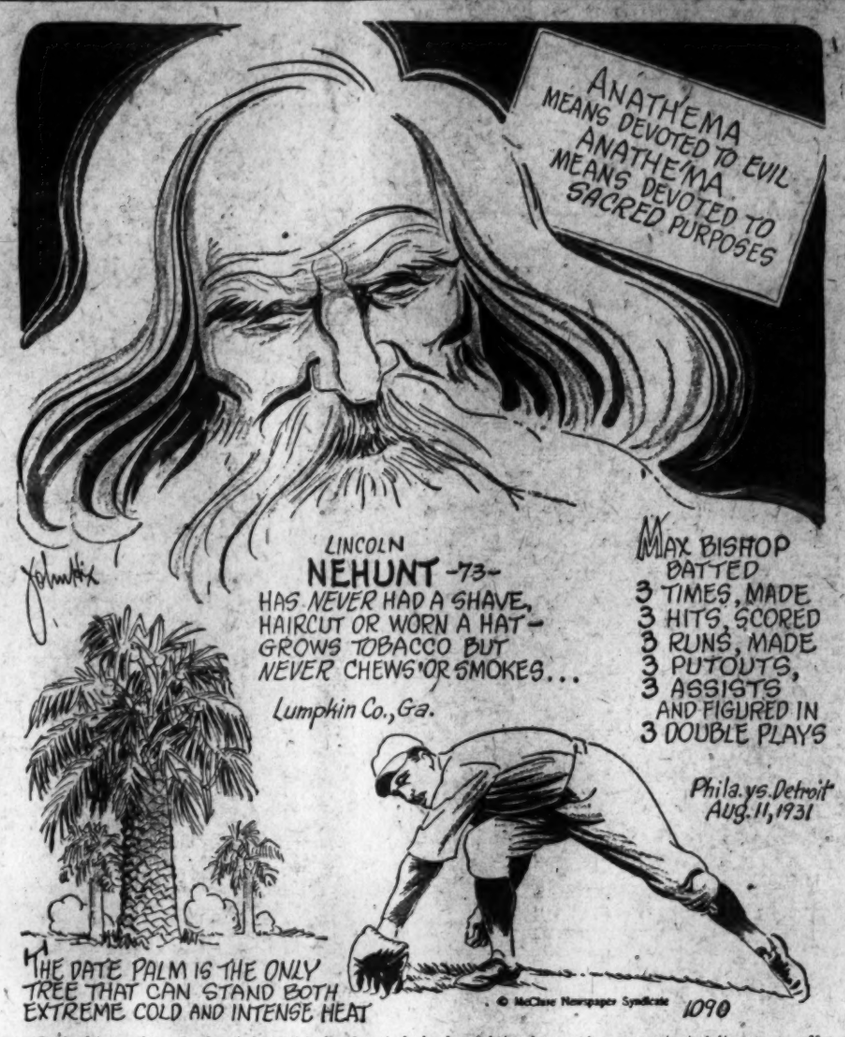
STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix



NO doubt you've wondered how it is possible for a man to become totally bald in the fraction of a second, as stated in yesterday's cartoon. Here's how: Fred Skelton, a farmer of Excelsior Springs, Mo., believed in plenty of fresh air, and made it a practice to sleep with his head near an open window. One night the quiet of the countryside was suddenly disturbed with a crashing thunderbolt. Lightning entered the window which had become Skelton's favorite sleeping place and tore to shreds the very pillow upon which his head rested. An hour later he regained consciousness and discovered that the lightning had cleanly removed every hair on his head.

Lincoln Nehunt not only refuses to have a haircut or shave, but during all his 73 years of life has never been inside a schoolhouse, church or court. When he married, this unusual old Georgian drove with his bride in an oxcart from his home to Dahlonega, and, to avoid entering the clerk's office, persuaded a friend to go in and buy the license. Nehunt has never tasted liquor or coffee, nor has he ever used tobacco in any form, although the growing of the weed is his occupation.

HUNTER TO BE RELIEVED AS PROFESSIONAL AT INDIAN SPRING

Present Term To Expire In March

Long-Driving Player Assumed Job Here During 1928.

Diffenbaugh Retains Post as Assistant Professional.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

J. MONRO HUNTER, golf professional at the Indian Spring Club, was yesterday notified that his contract with the club, which expires on the fifteenth of next March, would not be renewed. This action was the result of a decision reached by the board of governors at its meeting last Monday night.

While the officials of the club were reluctant to go into details regarding the reasons which influenced their action, it was stated that present conditions were not satisfactory and that a change was deemed best for the interests of the club. Nothing has yet been done toward selecting Hunter's successor, but a committee will be appointed in the near future to invite applications and decide upon the new professional. Ampel time is being afforded Hunter to locate himself in a new position.

Came to Indian Spring In 1928.

Hunter was originally appointed professional at the Indian Spring Club in February, 1928. Born in Scotland, he came to the United States after winning two degrees at the University of Edinburgh and settled in western Canada. He had played golf as an amateur on the varsity team and twice won the western Canada amateur championship. Financial reverses compelled him to adopt golf professionalism as a business and he became connected with the Tripoli Club at Milwaukee. From that city he came to Washington.

His fame as a long driver was established before he reached the National Capital and he soon became noted in this section for the distance covered by his tee shots. He has figured in many notable events here, especially the matches played with George Diffenbaugh as his partner in 1928 against Archie Compston and Aubrey Boomer and recently against Billy Burke and George Von Elm. In the first match, the players ended all even and in the last contest the visitors won by the narrow margin of 1 up. Last year, Hunter and Diffenbaugh, playing against J. V. Brownell and J. William Harvey, jr., had a best ball of 31—32—63 on the Indian Spring course, eight strokes under par. This is a record score.

Hunter Figured High In Tournaments.

Hunter has figured conspicuously in professional tournaments in this section and with his son, J. Monro Hunter, jr., as his partner, has frequently won in amateur-professional events. His daughter, Miss Dorothy Hunter, is also a golfer of considerable skill and was runner-up in the District women's championship in 1928. She was winner of the consolation flight in the District women's championship this year. Hunter, jr., has been among the leading golfers in the younger class and was the medalist in the Woodmont invitation tournament last spring.

No action has been taken regarding Diffenbaugh, who retains his position as assistant professional. Hunter is at present president of the Middle Atlantic Professional Golfers' Association and new officers will not be chosen until the annual meeting of the association next winter.

JACOBS WINS IN TENNIS TOURNEY

Latona Extends Star; Mitchell Reaches Semifinals.

EDDIE JACOBS, seeded No. 1 star in the Wardman Park Invitation Singles tournament, met with his first real opposition since his first round slaughter yesterday afternoon when he quelled the tumultous game of Anthony Latona by the score of 6—2, 6—3, a tabulation which far from expresses the battle the District youth put up before sinking beneath the wave of shots directed at him by the big league netman.

By his victory, Jacobs reached the semifinal round. Dooly Mitchell came abreast of him, subsequently, by downing Maurice O'Neill, 6—2, 9—7, in a well played match, featured by long rallies and sensational "gets" on the part of the eventual loser.

The third quarter-final round match yesterday was rained out after Elmer Rudy, of Baltimore, had won the first set 6—1 from Eddie Yeomans, and then had yielded the second to the local boy, 6—4. Yeomans showed a distinctly lackadaisical game in the first set, and the gallery, which bordered near the 1,000 mark, wondered how he managed to salvage a game out of his poor showing. Starting the second set, Yeomans began hitting the ball hard and soon had the giant Baltimorean on the run. Yeomans went to 5—2, but at that point commenced a safe and sane game again.

Men's and women's doubles, and women's singles were also listed on the card yesterday, and will make up today's program.

MEN'S SINGLES.

Quarter-final round—Jacobs defeated Latona, 6—2, 6—3; Mitchell defeated O'Neill, 6—2, 9—7; Yeomans and Rudy tied at 1—6, 6—4 (rain).

WOMEN'S SINGLES.

Second round—Doris Ferry leading Betty Kohner, 6—1 (rain); Marion Butler defeated Ruth Lynn, 6—2, 7—5; Hilda Levy defeated Mary Ryan by default.

Third round—Clara Tabler defeated Margaret Graham, 6—0, 6—2.

Frances Krucoff and Clara Tabler defeated Dorette Miller and Helen Philpitt, 6—1, 6—0; Ruth Lynn and Betty Cochran defeated Sara Moore and Marion Butler, 7—5, 2—6, 6—3.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 16 (U.P.).—President Hoover will be invited to attend the football game between the Naval Academy and the University of Maryland in Washington, October 10, it was announced today by Commander James Hall, director of football.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland likely will be the guest of honor at the Navy-Notre Dame game in the Baltimore Stadium, November 14.

'ARMOUR, SARAZEN WIN IN PRO GOLF

when he eliminated Walter Hagen, five-time P. G. A. champion.

He was 1 down to young Tom Creavy, Albany, N. Y., when they reached the thirty-sixth tee. The former Irish champion trapped his drive, played out short and then missed a long second putt as Creavy sank his short one to win at 2 up.

Cyril Walker, of Ridgewood, N. J., the 1924 open titlist, took Johnny Golden, Noroton, Conn., over the hurdles to the tune of 5 and 4 and Denny Shute, Hudson, Ohio, had to play superb golf to eliminate Jim Foulis, of Chicago, who trounced Johnny Farrell yesterday, by 2 and 1.

This win gained Denny the dubious honor of playing the defending champion in tomorrow's 36-hole match. Sarazen will clash with Horton Smith. Walker with Creavy and Billy Burke will have the stubborn Espinosa on his hands.

ALEXANDRIA HIGH FACES 10 GAMES

'Twins' Open Season Sept. 26 Against Devitt Here.

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Sept. 16.—Ten games will be played by the Alexandria High School football team this season, it was announced today by "Squire" Given, head coach.

Five contests will be played on foreign fields and the remaining games at Baggett's Stadium. The "Twins" will open their season in Washington with Devitt Prep on September 26.

The first home game is pending with Charlotte Hall Academy on October 2 at Baggett's Stadium. Trips will be made to Chester, Va.; Hopewell, Manassas and Fredericksburg. The latter is a District contest.

Washington and Lee High School eleven withdrew from the Virginia Literary and Athletic League, so only two District contests are listed, one with Culpeper and the other with the Yellowjackets.

High school officials have arranged the Washington and Lee game, the latter team from Ballston, as the big contest of the year. These two rivals clash here on November 6. This is to be known as "Home-coming Day."

The schedule for the season follows:

September 26—Devitt, away.
October 2—Charlotte Hall, here, pending.
October 9—Western, here.
October 16—Hopewell, away.
October 23—St. John's, here.
October 30—Chester, away, pending.
November 6—W. & L. H. S., here.
November 13—Culpeper, here.
November 20—Fredericksburg, away.
November 26, Swavely, away.

Maryland U. Reserves Get Call in Grid Workout

MINDFUL of his one crying need—reserve strength—Coach Curley Byrd doled out plenty of work to his second stringers yesterday as the gridmen of Maryland University entertained the Quantico Marines in a hot scrimmage session at College Park.

For practically the entire duration of the scrimmage, Byrd kept the reserve players in action, and he probably will repeat this procedure today when the same squads clash again.

Byrd's first team, composed entirely of last year's lettermen, seems likely to remain intact at least for the opening of the season on September 26. Thus far there have been no serious threats against the retention of their positions.

Reserves May Furnish Some Good Men.

However, the reserves may produce some first-team material with continued activity such as yesterday's. At any rate, Byrd hopes for this result, for he foresees plenty of trouble with the Navy game coming second on the schedule.

The second team lined up yesterday as follows: Buscher and Benner, ends; Duley and Vincent, tackles; Wright and Koelle, guards; Scott, center; May, quarter back; Kiernan and Settino, half backs, and Miller, full back. Byrd also used Hines at end, Feldman at guard, and Faber, last year's regular, at center.

Faber suffered a recurrence of his knee injury and it is feared now that he may have to do bench duty this season. Meanwhile, John Mitchell, a sub last year, is holding down the varsity pivot berth in impressive style.

The first team was composed of Pease and Norris, ends; Carliss and Keenan, tackles; Hayden and Krajcovic, guards; Mitchell, center; Woods, quarter back; Chalmers and Berger, half backs, and Poppelman, full back.

Birmingham Defeats Houston in First, 1-0

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 16 (A.P.).—Birmingham of the Southern Association hopped on "Dizzy" Dean for three hits in the eighth inning to score a single run, and won the opening game of the Dixie series from Houston, of the Texas League, today, 1 to 0.

The Buffaloes touched Ray Caldwell for seven hits, and the Barons garnered five hits off Dean's delivery. The game was played before a crowd of 15,000, believed to be a record for the Dixie series in the Southern Association.

Constructioneers Play Eldbrooke Nine Today

The two also rans of the race for the city week day series championship will clash today at 5:15 on the South Ellipse, when Eldbrooke, champions of the Georgetown Church League, and Constructioneers, title holders of the Industrial League, come together. Little or no bearing is felt to hinge on the game, since Eldbrooke has won but one of three games played in the league and Constructioneers one of four.

The game will serve chiefly as a warm up for tomorrow's promised treat when Commerce and G. P. O., tied for first place, with a record of three wins and one loss apiece, come together in the game which probably will decide the championship.

NO REGULARS YET NAMED AT G. U.

Special to The Washington Post.

REHOBOTH BEACH, Del., Sept. 16.—Having seen his charges romp impressively through a two-hour scrimmage yesterday, Head Coach Tommy Mills today was still undecided on the matter of choosing a first-string team. The performances of the 35 players who took part were on the whole so satisfactory that Mills declared he might await the opening of the season nearly two weeks hence before selecting the "regulars."

As a result of the scrimmage, which saw some of the hardest football imaginable, today's practice was limited to one session, in the afternoon. Mills excused six players who were injured yesterday, namely, Russ, Danieu and Buddy Bordeau, backs, and Bo Richards, George Becker, Joe Katalinas and Joe O'Neill, linemen.

Scrimmage to Be Resumed Tomorrow.

Scrimmage will be resumed tomorrow and a third clash probably will be held on Saturday when camp will be broken preparatory to the squad's return to Washington.

While speaking of the possibility of a first-string team, Coach Mills indicated that he will not organize "shock troops" such as are familiar with Notre Dame football, which he teaches. The idea of "shock troops" was originated by the late Knute Rockne, who sent on a reserve team at the outset to wear down the opposition and then inserted the first team to "mop up."

Only out-of-town opponents need apply to Leon Hager, 5040 Dana place, Cleveland 2133-J, whose Palisade A. C. is opponentless for next Sunday.

Boats From D. C., 13 States In President's Cup Regatta

WITH more than 100 boats entered by racing enthusiasts from California, New York, Michigan, Illinois, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Virginia, Delaware, Rhode Island, Maryland, Ohio, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Washington, D. C., the final 1931 race of the Gold Cup Craft of America, better known as the President's Cup Regatta, will swing into action tomorrow, and come to a climax Saturday.

Eighteen events, ranging from a putt-putt encounter between Class F outboards to the winning thrill of the President's Cup event itself, make up the meet, which will attract representatives from every walk of life in and near Washington. The meeting this week will close the Eastern racing season.

Most Interest Centered In Cup Event.

While the Nation's best outboards, hydroplanes and runabouts make up the bulk of the show, interest again is centered in the main event, the scramble for possession of the giant President's Cup. The gruelling race, made up of three 15-mile heats, has attracted one of the greatest fields in the history of the regatta.

Eleven more than speedy boats will vie for the main trophy. Included in the list is Hotsy Totsy, the gleaming steamline bullet, which last year gave Victor Kliesrath, of Port Washington, N. Y., possession of the coveted trophy. Not to be overlooked is El Legartito, owned by George Reis, of Lake George, N. Y., who has been dividing honors with the Kliesrath craft in previous Gold Cup Craft Races.

Other entries in the feature race are Miss Philadelphia, entered by John Shibe, Philadelphia baseball mogul; Delphine IV, entered by William Horn, of Hampton, Va.; Red Banker and Red Bander, entered by G. C. Holbrook and J. E. Bandfield, both of Red Bank, N. J.; Miss Columbia, also from Red Bank, and boats from the "stables" of Felix Adams, of Wyandotte, Mich., and R. J. Harrington, Chicago, Ill.

Races tomorrow will start at 12:30 o'clock in the Eastern Branch, off the Speedway. The first heat of the President's Cup event is slated for 3:30 o'clock. On Saturday the races will begin at noon, with the hours of 1:30 and 2:55 given over to the two remaining President's Cup heats.

TONY BURRUTO, one of the few sandlot managers who do not say "I'm going to play Sunday" (instead of "We're going to play," &c.), ambled in last night to say that Ciro's Italian Village nine needed a game pretty badly for the coming Sabbath. Metropolitan 2497.

One of the several week-end sandlot features promises to be the doubleheader between the Union Printers and the Howitzer Giants, to be played at Garrett Park, beginning at 1:30 o'clock.

The week-end will be no period of rest for the Chevy Chase Grays, either. They play the Washington Red Sox Saturday and Rockville Sunday.

The boys who wear the Phoenix uniforms are looking under old logs and behind chairs for a game Saturday. Lincoln 7730-W.

Those Northern Red Birds'll practice football tonight at 7:30 o'clock, provided they can clear the Tidal Basin Field of slumbering taxpayers trying to escape the heat.

The Mercury A. C. also is football minded tonight. Both A and B is the place for the dust raising, and 7:30 o'clock the time.

The Olmsted Grill nine will play at Front Royal, Va., Sunday. The Grillmen will drill today on the North Ellipse at 5 o'clock.

CHISOX WIN CELLAR IN BOSTON BATTLE

tie the score and revive for the Red Sox a fighting chance of defeat.

For two teams engaged in a bitter struggle for eighth place, the White Sox and Red Sox played remarkably futile baseball and it was less a credit to the White Sox than a reproach to the Boston Club that the White Sox finally came through to protect their disadvantage through the final inning. Both pitchers, Durham for Boston and Frasier for the White Sox seemed to be unconcerned as victory threatened and while Frasier will receive credit for losing the game that put his club in last place, Durham won by only the merest misfortune. He gave only three hits. A poor enough record for a pitcher chosen to defend the cellar, but Frasier gave only four.

Psychologically, the White Sox have the advantage of despondency and a team which can go through a day against the Red Sox with only three hits certainly can face Earnshaw and Grove in Philadelphia with no fear of winning.

MACKS 8-5 CHOICES TO WIN IN SERIES

A survey of betting odds at St. Louis, Philadelphia and New York today revealed the Athletics as an odds-on choice to take the series, and according to the commissioners there is little St. Louis money in sight.

Eastern bookies apparently concede the Cardinals so little chance of winning the series that they have not bothered to make quotations against the possibility of the Cards copping either the series or individual games. Of course, they say, if any St. Louis money shows they will offer "attractive" odds against the Cardinals, but to date all the betting in this sector has been on the Athletics.

in a pinch-hitting role, singled to center and scored a moment later on Myer's triple to left. After Rice had popped out, Manush lofted deep enough to the middle garden to give Myer plenty of time to score after the catch.

Kress doubled opening round eight, but got no farther than third and there were no other threats.

Although Schulte made a glaring error, he also led both teams with the stick, cracking out a trio of singles. Melillo and Bengough made two hits each, as did Spencer and West, of the Nationals.

Melillo contributed the feature fielding play of the game, robbing Kuhel of a hit in the eighth with a great over-the-shoulder catch of a looper in short right-center. Cronin, on first at the time, did not think the second-sacker was that good and so was easily a double-play victim.

COUNTY LADIES MEET.

Games will be played at the Lucky Strike Alleys on Fridays. Officers elected were Richard Whiting, president; Walter Snyder, vice president; Louis Brisker, secretary-treasurer, and Jack Bohrer, official scorer.

BUSINESS HIGH REPORTS.

Business' greatest loss by graduation is Bill Duryee, full back. Among the returning veterans is none who can fill his shoes. The team will be lightweight again.

POJELLO AND LEDOUX IN MAT BOUT

Top Tonight's Card; Steele-Dusek Bout Sought Here.

THE boys who live by the fret on their brows will congregate again tonight at Mr. Griffith's ball yard, there to cavort in the manner which Washington's wrestling fans have come to revere, respect and reimburse. Tonight's mixture of might and maudlin is featured by the presence of Cari Pojello, practically colorless little Lithuanian, whose enormous knowledge of legitimate wrestling does him no good as a drawing card in a day which demands scampering instead of science.

Mr. Pojello's victim tonight is Jean Ledoux, a barrel-chested renegade from the Sandow syndicate, who made his initial appearance here last week again: George Zaharias and pleased the boys who want gore, gore and more gore for their money.

The other exhibitions bring together Tiny Roebuck and Milo Steinborn, Pat O'Shocker and John Maxos, Mike Romano and Son Jennings, Doc Wilson and Nazareno Poggi and George Romonoff and George Klatti.

Climaxing tonight's bill in importance, by several thousand climaxes, is the news that Rudy Dusek will return to the scene of his old and beloved haunt, if Matchmaker Turner pays him enough. Turner has secured Ray Steele's agreement to meet Dusek at Griffith Stadium in the near future and is now awaiting word from the Bohemian Bad Boy, who has shifted his thor-hammering to the South.

64 Gridmen Report To St. John's Coach

Sixty-four huskies reported to Coach Paully Byrne, of St. John's yesterday and were put through a drill on the Monument Grounds. Scanlon, captain; Lynch, Dixon, Rogerson and Daly were the only regulars returned from last year.

The Cadets' season opens October 3 against Mount St. Joseph, followed by Calvert Hall, October 16; Loyola, October 23; Georgetown Prep, November 6, and Gonzaga, November 13. More games will be added to the list.

Brother James has succeeded Brother Eugene as sports director of the school.

JURORS ARE UNABLE TO ASCRIBE REASON OF MORROW'S FALL

Patrolman's Death Due to Plunge, Is Verdict After Inquest.

LEFT HIM NEAR CAR, SAYS WOMAN FRIEND

Could Not Have Walked After Injury, Doctor Testifies.

The mystery of the death of Policeman Raymond Morrow is still a mystery, following a verdict by a coroner's jury that the man died as "the result of a fall, the cause of the fall being unknown."

The woman referred to as "Sugar" by a witness of the day before, Miss Martha E. N. Habey, told the jury that she left him on Sixteenth street near her home at the Chastleton just before 2 o'clock the night of his death. Whether or not he was alone when he fell into the ravine where his body was found is not known. Whether he fell or was pushed is not known. Whether he had assistance in walking from the bank to where his body was found, the hands and feet neatly crossed, is not known.

The testimony given yesterday by Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, who made the autopsy, does not wholly agree with the opinion expressed by Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt as to the possibility of Morrow walking from the foot of the bank.

Coroner's View Differs.

Dr. Nevitt said, "As to whether he might have stumbled 200 feet, mortally injured, I won't say that would be impossible." This statement was not made at the inquest, but informally, while the jury was viewing the scene of the death.

Dr. MacDonald testified that Morrow was exceedingly drunk and could not have walked from the back of his home at 1445 Spring road to the spot his body was found. He called it "a physical impossibility." Dr. MacDonald also said that the analysis of blood and stomach contents showed the third highest percentage of alcohol ever found in a dead man at the District Morgue. The doctor said that Morrow could have walked only a few feet, but it is 137 steps from the foot of the bank to the bed of twigs where he was found. His lungs were punctured and he was bleeding from the ruptured liver which caused his death.

Woman on Stand.

Miss Habey, who is manager of the Playhouse Inn at 1814 N street northwest, said that Morrow telephoned to her to ask for a date early Friday night. She had another engagement, she said, and he phoned to her again after her company departed. At this time she went to the apartment of Hainer Hinshaw, where Morrow passed most of the early evening. She said she found Morrow under the influence of liquor, and took him away in her car in an attempt to sober him. They visited a restaurant near Union Station and also went around the Speedway.

She then took the policeman to where his car was parked, which was near her home. At this time he said he was able to drive, and left her, apparently to go to his home. This was just before 2 o'clock, she said. She did not see him again. His car was found in front of his apartment about 2:30, and his body was found next morning near the Sixteenth Street Bridge over Piney Branch Valley.

Mrs. Morrow Starts Search.

Mrs. Harriet Morrow, the man's widow, said that he failed to call for her at her office at 5 o'clock Friday afternoon, but that he telephoned her about 7 o'clock. At this time he said he had been in an accident and was not going to patrol his Third Precinct beat.

When he had not appeared at 1 o'clock Friday morning Mrs. Morrow went to look for him with friends. They went to his beat, which passes Hinshaw's apartment, and to the Speedway. When the friends brought her home she saw her husband's car in front of the apartment, and she went in alone. He was not in the apartment, however, and she went out again to continue her search.

Mrs. Morrow said she went to the back of the house, near the path down which Morrow is supposed to have fallen. She knew that he was fond of the wooded valley. At the back of the house she felt that he was near, she said, but she looked for him no farther. Next morning, when she saw the curious crowd on the bridge, she went to the spot, to learn that her husband was dead.

Advised to Tell Kelly.

Miss Habey's guest before she went out with Morrow was Traffic Policeman C. O. Kidwell. He testified that the woman told him of being out with Morrow, and he advised her to tell Capt. Edward J. Kelly, but she did not do so, as she feared the notoriety. She waited in a car outside the Morgue until called to testify and rushed out, avoiding photographers, after being questioned.

Hinshaw, in whose apartments on Seventeenth street near L street Morrow spent most of the early evening, testified that Morrow was drinking and that he took a bath in the apartment.

SCENES AT PLAYGROUND'S WATER CARNIVAL IN SOUTHEAST SECTION

Post Staff Photos.

ARREST CHAMPION'S TRIAL SLATED TODAY

Suspended Motorcycle Policeman Accused After Party in Home.

Raymond V. Sinclair, suspended member of the motorcycle patrol of the Traffic Bureau, will be tried at 10 o'clock today on charges of conduct prejudicial to the good order of the Metropolitan Police Department.

Sinclair's trial was scheduled for yesterday, but unforeseen developments cropped up throughout the day and after half a dozen brief postponements Inspector O. T. Davis, chief ranking officer of the board that will hear the charges, announced that because of the heat, the number of witnesses that are to be heard and the lateness of the hour," the trial would be held at 10 o'clock today.

Previous to the announcement of the postponement, James A. O'Shea, attorney for Sinclair, had insisted that all witnesses be brought into the courtroom to hear the announcement of the postponement. He noticed that Sergt. Raymond (Reds) Carroll, who had ostensibly brought the charges against his client, was absent from the room. Inspector Davis, his attention having been called to several other missing witnesses, ordered that they all be brought into the room, and when they were, he announced that all must, under penalty of a possible contempt order, appear today.

Sinclair is being tried because of a party that he held in his Illinois avenue home several days ago. At that time, Sergt. Carroll, formerly precinct detective of the First Precinct, responding to a call, went to the Sinclair home. Two days later he suspended Sinclair, who is known as the champion arresting officer of the Traffic Bureau.

Woman Slightly Hurt In Triple Car Collision

In a collision between the taxicab in which she was a passenger and two private cars late yesterday near Thirteenth and Gallatin streets northwest, Miss Varina Freeman, Silver Spring, Md., received lacerations on the forehead and neck. She was treated at Garfield Hospital.

Douglas W. Winters, 25, 1607 E street southeast, was driving the cab, according to police, when it skidded on the wet pavement and collided with machines operated by Clarence E. Schofield and Herman R. Strobel, both of Takoma Park, Md. They were not hurt, nor were their cars badly damaged.

Victim Identifies Suspect In Alleged 'Con' Game Case

Shoemaker Accuses Man Arrested After Search Since December, 1929; Prisoner's Threat Fails to Make Him Alter Swindle Story.

Vincent Bruno, 48, said by headquarters detectives to be known in many cities throughout the country as a swindler and "con" man, was positively identified last night by Leo Reiguglo, Italian shoemaker, of 4602 Fourteenth street northwest, as the man who mulcted him out of his life savings of $1,300 in December, 1929, through the medium of the "Italian box trick."

Identification of Bruno, who is known also by a dozen odd aliases, ended nearly two years of work on the case by Detective Sergt. Paul W. Jones, who was assigned to it when Reiguglo reported the incident. Detective Jones said that Bruno has been convicted of similar offense before and has served time in California and Michigan prisons.

Confronted by Reiguglo last night, Bruno glowered at the man and threatened to "get him" if he went to the penitentiary as a result of the identification. The middle aged shoemaker paled at Bruno's threat and appeared somewhat taken aback, but persisted in his claim that Bruno was the guilty man.

Bruno also was identified by several other persons as having been seen frequently in the vicinity of Reiguglo's shop about the time of the swindle. Reiguglo's story is that two men came to his shop early in December, 1929, and after gaining his confidence told him they were fellow countrymen of his who had retired after amassing a modest fortune in this country. They said they intended to return to their homeland but wanted to do something for charity before they went. Reiguglo said the men asked him to act as their agent here in distributing some of their money to needy persons. He agreed, he said, and the two men obtained a metal money box in which they deposited apparently genuine greenbacks. Then they asked him as evidence of his good faith to put his own money in the box, they to retain the key and Reiguglo to keep the box. This was done and the men left, saying they would return in a few days. After several days passed and the men did not appear, Reiguglo opened the box and found that the supposed wads of money were bundles of paper covered with a few $1 bills on the outside. His own money had been removed.

Bullet Wound Fails To Halt Fugitive

Alleged Radio Thief, However, Is Subdued After Chase Through Alley.

A bullet wound in his leg failed to halt Richard Williams, 27, colored, after he failed in an alleged attempt to steal a radio from Catlin's, Inc., 1324 New York avenue northwest, yesterday.

Fleeing through an alley in the rear of the store, with John Padgett, of Cottage City, Md., in pursuit, Williams finally was overtaken by Samuel Hook, 22, of Eleventh street near G street northeast, who subdued him with the aid of James Bradford, 37-year-old colored driver of the establishment.

Attention was attracted to Williams when a burglar alarm, attached to radios in the store after eight were recently stolen, went off. Padgett, who is foreman of the shop, attempted to catch the man in a garage in the rear of the store. Failing, he drew a gun and shot Williams as he ran down the alley, police said. The foreman was detained by First Precinct police for questioning. Williams was treated at Emergency Hospital.

9 Health Groups To Convene Here

Combined Sessions Will Draw Attendance of 3,000 Persons.

The American Public Health Association and eight affiliated organizations have decided on Washington as their 1932 convention city, according to word received here last night from C. N. Nichols, convention manager of the Washington Board of Trade's greater National Capital committee, now in Montreal.

Three thousand persons will attend the combined sessions, he said. In conjunction with the Health Association, meeting will be the American Association of School Physicians, American Social Hygiene Association, Association of Women in Public Health, Conference of State Sanitary Engineers, Conference of State Laboratory Directors, International Association of Dairy and Milk Inspectors, International Society of Medical Health Officers and Delta Omega Fraternity.

Features of the convention will be the dedication of the new United States Public Health Building and the laying of a corner stone for the Health Institute Building. Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming is retiring president of the Public Health Association.

Police Investigate Boy Gang Shooting

Youth Still in Hospital in Undetermined Condition; Comrades Held.

Police yesterday were investigating the allegedly accidental shooting of 13-year-old John Manthos, who was shot in the back with a .32 caliber bullet by one of his three companions while playing on the fourth floor of Manthos' home at 326 John Marshall place northwest, Tuesday afternoon.

The boy, last night, was in an undetermined condition at Emergency Hospital, where he was rushed, and it is still unknown whether the bullet seriously injured the spine.

The three other boys, Michael, 15, John's brother; Joseph Caroraletti, 15, of 50 E street northwest, and Quido Antonio, 14, of 112 E street, who are said to have called themselves the "Three Skulls," are being held at the Receiving Home pending results of the investigation. Police are trying to discover the origin of five .25 caliber revolvers and a bottle of nitroglycerin found in the room where the shooting took place.

Three Take Bankruptcy In Petitions Filed Here

Three men yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to adjudge them voluntary bankrupts.

They were Phillips Moody, a butcher, of 4406 George avenue northwest, who listed debts of $1,029.97 and no assets; William E. Slaughter, a railroad brakeman, 1364 Sixth street northeast, who listed debts of $1,461 and assets of $127.69, and Carl L. Porter, a dental mechanic, of 822 Forty-eighth street northeast, who showed debts of $651.74 and assets of $100.

CONTRACTORS SPEED WORK ON SCHOOLS

Board Is Told of Effort to Finish Buildings Still Unready for Use.

In a final meeting before the opening of school on Monday the District School Board considered routine business yesterday at Franklin School. The session, which lasted less than a half hour, was one of the shortest on record.

A report was received from the committee on buildings, grounds and equipment concerning progress being made on certain school and high school buildings which, it was reported, would not be ready for occupancy when classes are resumed next Monday. The committee, consisting of the president of the Board of Education, Dr. H. Barrett Learned, together with two others, personally visited the schools and reported that every effort was being made by the contractors to complete construction, renovation and improvement work. In many instances it was found that men were working overtime in order to get the work finished as soon as possible.

It was also reported that a representative of a furniture company which is supplying equipment for certain additions had arrived in town and was supervising the installation of the furniture and expediting the equipping of the new schoolrooms.

A motion was approved by the board for the assessment of $8 a credit hour to nonresident students who attend the Teachers College on a part-time basis.

A motion to communicate with the District Commissioners regarding the early completion of the John Eaton Playground, Thirty-fifth and Lowell streets northwest, was adopted.

Judge and Cronin at Carnival.

Joe Judge and Joe Cronin, players on Washington's baseball team, will autograph baseballs tonight at the St. Aloysius Church garden party and carnival which is being held at North Capitol and I streets.

G. U. Class Ring Lost.

Maj. Lewis J. H. Herwig, 3945 Connecticut avenue northwest, reported to police yesterday the loss of a Georgetown University class ring. The army officer said he believed he lost the ring on Labor Day.

Lunch Will Honor Regatta Entrants

Present Holder of Cup Is Expected to Attend Press Club Affair.

A luncheon in honor of participants in the President's Cup regatta, to be held Friday and Saturday on the Eastern Branch, will be given today by the National Press Club at 12:30 o'clock in the club's quarters.

Among those expected are Victor W. Kleisrath, present holder of the President's Cup, who won last year's event with an average speed above 60 miles an hour; George Reis, whose boat is El Largitto; John D. Shiva, Miss Philadelphia; John Wanamaker, Jr., Louisa; Richard Loynes, Miss California, and Theodore Hall, Miss Columbia.

Arrangements have been completed to handle the huge crowds expected to view the regatta. Special provisions have been made to accommodate those that will line the waterfront along the War College, the Naval Air and Bolling Field grounds.

Reservations for the special seats which have been erected at the start and finish of the races can be secured by calling in person at Room 201, the Earle Building.

Regatta Committee Appeals to Sponsors

Many prominent persons have been invited to sponsor the President's Cup Regatta, which is one of the most colorful affairs held in Washington. Its success on this occasion, and its continuance as an annual event, depend upon public support.

In order that adequate provision may be made for the sponsors to view the races it is important that the public respond immediately to the committee's invitation.

Please make your check payable to John Poole, treasurer, and mail to JAMES A. COUNCILOR, Chairman, Finance Committee, President's Cup Regatta Committee, Tower Building.

Backwalking Texan, 36, Here on Tour of Globe

Plennie L. Wingo, 36-year-old Texan, who is walking backward around the world, arrived in Washington unofficially last night to study the Capital's layout preparatory to entering the city today and seeing the sights for several days before resuming his odd enterprise.

The persevering pedalist pulled up late yesterday in Bethesda, 5 months and 1 day after leaving Fort Worth, and will make his official debut in Washington today. He will visit the city's many places of interest, walking there while facing in the opposite direction.

Wingo, when on the road, wears a pair of smoked glasses with rear-vision mirrors attached to either end.

It will take about three years for him to girdle the globe, Wingo estimates. His average mileage is about 25 daily. From here he will go to New York via Baltimore and Philadelphia.

Kimbell Witnesses Win Contempt Case

Schuldt Sustains Refusal to Answer Questions by Police Trial Board.

Judge Gus A. Schuldt, in Police Court, ruled that two witnesses, who were being tried before him for Police Trial Board contempt, were not guilty of contempt in that they had a right to stand upon their constitutional rights and "refuse to answer because their answers might incriminate them."

Lillian B. Wilson and Leonard Hoffman, the two who refused to answer Trial Board questions, were thus freed of a possible charge of contempt. They were connected with the case of Policeman C. B. Kimbell, of the Twelfth precinct, now suspended, who was involved in an affair several months ago at Fifteenth street and Rhode Island avenue northeast, in which Hoffman was shot with Kimbell's gun, the police say.

Miss Wilson and Hoffman were summoned before the Trial Board, and after noting an official appearance, they refused to answer certain questions. Other questions were fully answered, and when the witnesses said that they refused to answer disputed questions on the ground that they might incriminate themselves, they were cited to the Police Court, which has jurisdiction over contempt cases of the Police Trial Board.

Bunche, of the department of political science, to the position of assistant to the president, who will fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Prof. William Stuart Nelson to accept the position of president of Shaw University; and of the appointment of Dr. Precy L. Julian as professor and head of the department of chemistry.

BREWER ACQUITTED IN RHEEM CHARGES

Indictment Is Nolle Prossed Insofar as It Concerns Former Official.

J. Newton Brewer, former vice president of the Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co., yesterday was formally acquitted of the charges contained in an indictment returned many months ago which had connected him with embezzlement and concealment of writings.

At the request of Government counsel, Chief Justice A. A. Wheat, of the District Supreme Court, nolle prossed the indictment insofar as it affected Brewer. The nolle prosse means that the Government does not wish to proceed with the prosecution for reasons best known to special prosecutors in charge of the case.

Nugent Dodds, special assistant to the Attorney General, appeared for the Government to ask that the indictment be dropped. At the time that Edmund D. Rheem, executive vice president of the bankrupt Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co., entered a plea of guilty to a charge of concealing writings, it was understood that he accepted responsibility for the acts of the other officers of the company.

Rheem is now serving a seven-year sentence at Lorton Reformatory. Rheem, in the indictment, was said to have asked Brewer to go to the vaults and bring him a certain amount of securities. That was the only part said to have been played by Brewer in the case, and the Government, in asking that the indictment be dropped, explained that Brewer was only acting on the orders of a superior officer when he went to the vaults and took $162,000 in securities and handed them to Rheem.

Smith Co. Ballot Count Slow Work

Result of Election by Stockholders May Be Known Today.

Results of ballots cast Tuesday for new directors of the F. H. Smith Co., on order of the Chancery Court of Wilmington, Del., were undetermined last night, Charles C. Keedy, Wilmington attorney, special master in the case, announced.

Counting of the ballots cast for three separate tickets at Tuesday's meeting is still in progress, and results may not be known until late today, he indicated. It was necessary to check all voters with the company's stock list, Mr. Keedy explained.

The election was ordered after Chancellor J. O. Wolcott, of Wilmington, canceled 200,000 shares of common stock on the ground they were issued to officers without valid consideration. Three groups of stockholders are seeking control.

PECK SHOWS CHANGE OF OPINION ON GAS PRESSURE IN INQUIRY

Approves Higher One, Asked by Company; Old Report Conflicts With View.

CALLED 5 INCHES BEST ONLY LAST OCTOBER 4

Walter M. Russell, Engineer for Concern, Again Gets Long Questioning.

Bert H. Peck, formerly engineer of the Public Utilities Commission, yesterday took the witness chair as a witness for the Washington Gas Light Co. in the hearings before the commission, and fell into difficulties brought about by a barrage of questions from the commission and attorneys who are opposing the effort of the company to have the commission authorize an increased pressure at which gas is forced through mains to consumers.

Mr. Peck appeared as the engineer assistant to George A. G. Wood, president of the gas company, by whom he was employed away from the commission last March following submission of a report as commission engineer dealing with gas pressures. Mr. Peck, speaking as an experienced gas man, gave his approval to higher pressures, which are desired by the company, but, just before adjournment for the day, Richard B. Keech, people's counsel, confronted him with a report he had written last October 4 while employed as engineer by the Utilities Commission.

"The most satisfactory pressure from a consumer's standpoint," Mr. Peck said in that report, "is undoubtedly from 4 to 5 inches of water. This gives him reasonably rapid service and also gives him the maximum burner efficiency. A pressure below 2 inches is dangerous, because of the possibility of extinguishing the flame."

Present Pressure 6 Inches.

The present legal maximum pressure, under commission regulations, is 6 inches. The company wants to have this maximum increased to 10, and admittedly has been exceeding the 6-inch maximum for a considerable period.

Six-inch pressure is too low, considering the situation as a whole in Washington, Mr. Peck had just finished testifying, when Mr. Keech confronted him with his report written last October. William J. Lambert, counsel for the company, suggested that possibly the whole report would give a somewhat different picture than merely the small part quoted by Mr. Keech and copy of the full report was promised when the hearings are resumed at 10 o'clock this morning, when Mr. Peck will resume his testimony.

Vice Chairman Harleigh H. Hartman inquired if Mr. Peck's estimation were based on the existing distributing system of the gas company, which company engineers have declared in reports to company executives to be inadequate properly to supply all consumers. Mr. Peck said his estimate was based on existing conditions and on the situation as a whole. Mr. Hartman asked if, in estimating the proper pressure he would take into consideration the cost of additional mains and other improvements which might be necessary adequately to supply consumers without excess pressure. Mr. Peck said he would.

Several other questions and answers followed with Arthur Dean, New York attorney, connected with Sullivan & Cromwell, of New York, participating, only to be interrupted by Vice Chairman Hartman, who declared that Mr. Dean was not leading the witness, but pushing him to give the answer he wanted given.

Six-Inch Pressure "Ideal."

Mr. Peck said that he thought a six-inch pressure would be ideal, taking into consideration all the factors involved, because the consumers ultimately would have to pay whatever amount the company expended to extend or improve its distributing system. Mr. Hartman again interrupted, declaring that Mr. Peck was departing from the question of what is the proper pressure and entering the field of rates, which were in no way involved at the moment.

William A. Roberts, assistant corporation counsel, had objected to Mr. Peck answering Mr. Lambert's question about the proper pressure and there followed a series of questions to show Mr. Peck's qualifications to judge.

Mr. Peck told of his various business and engineering connections, among which were eight years as manager of the Southern Illinois Light & Power Co, a subsidiary of the Illinois light & Power Co., which he said he believed was owned, at that time partly by the North American Co. and the Midwest Utilities Co., two large utilities companies. Mr. Roberts asked if he had ever made any studies to determine the most satisfactory flame and what pressure produced such a flame. Mr. Peck said he had not and Mr. Roberts said that was all he had to ask.

Mr. Peck was preceded on the witness stand by Walter M. Russell, chief engineer of the gas company, who underwent another long cross-examination at the hands of Mr. Roberts, Mr. Keech and George E. Sullivan, attorney for the Federation of Citizens Associations. It was Mr. Russell's third day on the witness stand and he did not leave it until late in the afternoon.

In the course of the day he told the commission that the company had prepared an exhibit showing different conditions in gas combustion brought about by varying pressures and adjustment of appliances and invited the commission to see this exhibit.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

READY ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS DURING A DEPRESSION.

QUESTION No. 1. Well, how's business?

Answers:

A.—I don't know; I'm a stranger here myself.

B.—We can't take care of the orders. You're looking pretty bad, too.

C.—I don't know, but if I hear anything I'll tell you.

(Remarks: Answer "A" is particularly recommended. It really expresses the general state of mind in business, it doesn't put things too optimistically, nor does it further pessimism. But answer "C" isn't half bad, either.)

Question No. 2. What do you think of the world situation generally?

Answers:

A.—Pretty good, especially the Alps in autumn.

B.—I used to know the answer to that one, but it's slipped my mind.

C.—Could you give me a little more time before I commit myself?

D.—I think it will be all right if we have an open winter.

(Remarks: Answer "A" will prove fairly fetching. It is a little vague and doesn't seem to complete the thought, but this makes it all the more valuable at a time like this when everybody wishes to avoid saying anything too definite.)

QUESTION No 3. What do you think of the stock market?

Answers:

A.—Well, yes and no.

B.—I think it is all right, if your folks don't object.

C.—I'm pretty well, thanks; how are you?

D.—Only yesterday I was saying the very same thing to a man who was here on his first visit.

E.—Don't sell America short.

(Remarks: "A," "B," "C" and "D" are all right, but "E" has lost its potency somewhat. Another good answer is "Well, it was a mistake for Wilkinson to think he could submerge and cut his way through the ice, anyhow.")

Question No. 4—Does it seem to you that Hoover can win again?

ANSWERS.

A.—I wouldn't know; I go to bed to early.

B.—Personally, I've been away all summer, but if I hear anything I'll phone you.

C.—I remember reading something about it, but the details escape me.

D.—Huh?

(Remarks: We think the last answer is swell.)

QUESTION No. 5—Do you think they're going to amend the prohibition law this winter so we'll get beer?

ANSWERS.

A.—All I know is what I overhear on the party telephone wires.

B.—You might try the people next door; they ought to know—they've lived here a long time.

(Remarks: These are both fitting answers to this common question now being raised in all circles, but "B" seems the least commital.)

READY! AIM! FIRE!

Hi.—I submit as candidate for the firing squad all persons who make these observations when you announce that you've lost your job:

1. "Well, it's a good thing for you; now you can write that book."

2. "You should be glad of it. Your talents were buried there."

3. "You don't have to worry. You've socked plenty away."

4. "It'll be the best thing that ever happened to you. You should have quit and done some serious writing years ago." —W. H. Rosenberg.
